AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied, of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter. In the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months, a member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments, and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices), shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequently thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example—a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

UNION NOTES

By 97, Boston.

Label Section of Boston Central Labor Union held a very successful mass meeting. Addresses were made by Philip Byrnes of the Shoe Workers; Frank McCarthy and Austin Kaveney of the Cigar makers, and Dennis D. Driscoll of the Horseshoers.

The sale of label goods has increased over 100 per cent in Quincy, the patrons being mostly business and professional men. Finn has done good work.

Our label committee has scoured greater Boston, covering the entire jurisdiction of this union, placing calendars in all the stores, interviewing proprietors and labor men. Persistent, energetic label agitation is what counts.

Number of students in trade union college is on the increase, 97 has encouraged this college from its inception.

Another bill for a free state university will be introduced in our legislature this year. There should be no monopoly of education.

The label is the greatest weapon labor has. While you are creating a demand for your own label don't forget the union button and show card of the other fellow. Too many of us forget the other fellow's label, button and window card while we boom our own.

New England Label Conference is a live organization and has justified its existence.

Despite the efforts of the big interests the trade union continues to do business at the same old stand. Remember, the Irish have fought for freedom for 800 years, defeated often, but never conquered. This is an example for organized labor.

Don't forget the bakers' label or the barrel's union window card.

Are your shirts, collars and neckties union made?

The men and women who have realized what organized labor has done for them will never give up.

The Central Strike Committee of the Cigar Makers and Tobacco Workers of Porto Rico uses this means to thank all the unions, bodies and individuals making donations to our strike that was inaugurated on January 1st and brought to an end on the 27th of September, 1921. We shall have international organization for permanent peace and a radical reduction of armaments if the Washington conference is not only wisely supported but at the same time persistently urged forward by public opinion.

We must press for results. As Samuel Gompers said at the beginning of the conference:

"The people of the world do not want an excuse for failure. They do not even want a reason for failure.

"The people of the world demand freedom from the burden of armament and they demand a world organized for peace.

"We have been urged not to arouse too great an expectation, not to agitate the mind of our people too energetically. Let me say that the expectation exists and the mind of the people is determined."

Mr. Gompers concluded with this stirring pledge:

"I pledge to you that for myself, hopeful as I am, confident as I am, determined as I am to help, if failure becomes apparent I shall speak and I shall proclaim to the people the truth as I see it, sparing neither institutions nor persons."

Wars and Crime.

That there is at present a wave of crime sweeping this county and the whole world is a fact that compels serious thought and attention. That such a wave is unprecedented is not a fact, the history of civilization is replete with eras of excessive crime following every conflict at arms great or small. The greater the war the greater the crime wave following it.

Teaching the young manhood of a nation the art of killing, the cheapening of human life when it stands in the way of national aims or personal ambitions has much to do with the waves of crime that break over the nation after the cessation of hostilities and before normal reasoning has again regained its throne. Economic conditions following war are other contributing factors. Wars are usually followed by unemployment, trade depressions and general chaotic conditions. These conditions in their turn cause the same minds lately trained to take by force the things desired to attempt to apply the same reasoning and the same attempt to take by force the things they want and need as individuals.

Equal opportunity and education will do more to correct the evil than any other one thing.

The greatest factor in the absolute abolition of crime waves will be abolition of the major cause, War. When this teacher of legalized crime, be it the killing of men, the looting of homes or the robbing of the public treasury by those who through preferment are allowed to loot at will under the guise of contracts for war's accouterments, is absolutely scrapped, then and not until then shall we be free from the crime wave that always follows in the wake of war.

Among the many big Benevolent issues confronting labor Autocracies today is the attempt on the part of many of the larger employers of labor to institute their own hand made benevolent societies (company unions?) in lieu of the regularly organized protective labor unions in their respective shops and mills. The hope of modern captains of industry is autocratic control of the workers. This they hope to accomplish because natural resources, furnaces, mills and factories, as well as transportation systems, are becoming concentrated into fewer hands. Centralization of ownership, and thereby centralization of power, is becoming more and more of a factor in the lives and working conditions of the workers.

Our task is to organize the workers and inaugurate just and equitable principles of democracy to apply to our industrial relations, to safeguard working conditions to an extent that we shall not become mere chattels or serfs under the increasing centralized autocratic control.

A nation politically democratic and economically autocratic can not endure. Present "Benevolent Democracies," "Benevolent Autocracies" being the better definition, installed in the management of many of the larger business concerns are nothing more than relics of feudalism. They carry long hours and low wages even though in some instances a degree of comfort and safety is granted the workers through the fear of the laws that labor has forced, viz: factory inspection and safety devices.

An individual workman, dependent on his own resources, can not hope to successfully bargain with organized corporate capital. In his failure to bargain successfully with his employer he becomes little more than a mere serf dependent upon the industrial relations dictated by his employer. The future of America with its traditions and its government predicated on the freedom of its citizenship has no place for serfdom under any guise whatsoever.

Women in Industry.

Most of the progress that has been made in civilization is more largely due to women's refining influence than to any other cause. It is said that man's inhumanity to man makes countless millions mourn. Improved machinery brought woman into industry. Her inexperience and defenceless position were seized upon and she was exploited in a frightful, shameless manner. Men received $20, $25, $30 and more per week when women were paid the frightfully measly sum of $4 or in some cases as high as $6 per week for their services. It might then be said that man's inhumanity to woman causes countless multitudes to mourn. It retarded the wheels of progress. It put the skids under many movements inaugurated by men and women and caused them to fail.

Modern woman is alive to the fact that so long as she must remain in industry the only means whereby her interests and the interests of society at large can be advanced and protected is through organization and membership in the constructive trade union movement. If woman applies the same zeal and force to organizing her kind in trade unions that she has in effecting the adoption of the Nineteenth Amendment she will be doing herself as great if not a greater service that she did in bringing about woman's suffrage.

The biggest labor, economic, and political issues in the Middle West or elsewhere are better, more comprehensive, and more effective organization economically and politically. There should be proper and effective cooperation between the farmers and the industrial workers.

As long as an unfair per cent of the profits on farm work, as now, goes into the hands of the profiteering middle men, there is no relief of a substantial character for either the farmer or the industrial worker insofar as the products of the agricultural districts reaching the table of the industrial worker are concerned.

Conditions are such that they demand swift and heroic action in the matter of co-operation in marketing agricultural products and the elimination of the unfair, profiteering, unnecessary middle men. The exploiting money interests, centered in Wall Street, exact from the farmer a few billion dollars annually as tribute. Stop it!

Reduce freight rates, unequal and unfair taxes on the producers, and place them where they rightfully belong—on the holders of vast fortunes. Improve and use all available water power and canals, big, deep, and of all practical sizes and lengths.

There should be harmony and unity of purpose among all industrial workers on first principles. We ought to be able to agree on fair wages, reasonable hours, and fair working conditions. It is a crime if we don't. Those who stand in the way of these undisputed principles are working against themselves, their fellow workers, and generations yet unborn. There is no hope of full justice for the industrial worker so long as we remain divided. Big interests know this and see to it that the elements of discord are kept working overtime amidst us.

Sir Walter Scott said, "The race of mankind would perish did they cease to aid each other." Have the disinherited masses properly aided each other in the past? We think not. Proper headway in the interests of all depends upon the extent of co-operative aid from now on.

Absolute government regulation and control of credit is vitally important. To accomplish this end all money should be issued by the government at a fixed true value and loaned through federal regional banks. The condition made desperate and unfair by the privileged few requires heroic united action. Get down to honest methods of doing business on the principle of justice to all, and our greatest problem will then be to guard and protect the peoples' rights.

Problems so momentous trembling in the balance and so far reaching upon the interests of the masses, our country, and civilization must be handled with resolute determination and always predicated upon justice, freedom, and fair dealing. The situation demands action. Opportunity is knocking at our doors.

George W. Perkins.

(International Labor News Service.)

Report of Committee of Bureau of Co-operative Societies for the American Federation of Labor.

The American Federation of Labor at the Buffalo convention in 1917 authorized the appointment of a Committee on Cooperation. The committee at that convention and at subsequent conventions has declared for the Rochdale Cooperative System, the simple principles of which are:

1. A democratic organization.
2. One vote for each member, with equality in share ownership. No voting by proxy.
3. Cash returns quarterly to members, of the difference between the total amount they have paid for their purchase and the lesser total cost of these purchases to the cooperative society, including among the cost, depreciation and a reasonable amount for a reserve fund to meet emergencies and extend the business.
4. Rejection of the principles of profits.
5. Current interest on loan capital.

6. Sales where possible preferably to members only.

7. Distributive cooperation to precede productive.

8. A sufficient number of retail stores to be established to assure a market before a wholesale department is created.

9. Observance of methods recommended by the International Cooperative Alliance.

It will be noted by the foregoing declaration of principles that the American Federation of Labor has repeatedly declared that "Distributive cooperation should precede productive cooperation." It moreover has repeatedly declared against all stock-jobbing plans masquerading under the title and pretense of cooperation. Millions and millions of dollars have been invested (?) by confiding cooperationists in these stock-jobbing alleged cooperative enterprises.

Bankruptcy proceedings were recently started against Harrison B. Parker who is the head of the alleged stock-jobbing Cooperative Society of America. The court quashed the bankruptcy proceedings on the grounds that an error had been made in the manner of starting and presenting the bankruptcy proceedings. Leave, however, was granted to reinstate such proceedings. It is claimed that millions of dollars are involved, and the end is not yet.

The American Federation of Labor Bureau of Cooperative Societies again calls attention to the menace of get-rich-quick concerns masquerading under the alluring name of cooperation and warns all trade unionists to refuse to put money into any so-called cooperative enterprise until after a thorough investigation has been made and it is fully proven that the enterprise is on the non-profit, Rochdale system. We, however, recommend a careful study of the Belgian and German systems which have been generally successful.

The American Federation of Labor has never endorsed any particular cooperative concern, either distributive or productive. Those most experienced in cooperative enterprises, and work, as well as the keen observers thereof in all countries, have urged that before venturing into cooperative productive enterprises that distributive cooperation should be established, thereby creating a market where cooperative products may find an outlet.

The chances for failure and loss in productive cooperation are much greater than in distributive cooperation, except where assured markets have been created for the products of the productive enterprises as indicated above.

The committee further recommends that business be conducted on a cash basis. If credit is given it should be secured by loan or share capital, above what is needed for operating purposes. Further, cooperative enterprises, both distributive and productive, should have competent, intelligent and honest management as well as close supervision. They can not live without it.

The age long climb of humanity toward the goal of its ambitions has been and is a tedious, painful journey. Beside the rugged road we have traveled are strewn many monuments of martyrs who have made the supreme sacrifice that liberty of action, freedom of speech and press as well as the fundamentals of industrial justice might live.

From grinding serfdom, abject poverty and the darkest obscurity the forces of organized labor have struggled through the weary years toward the promise of a better day. We have contended for the rights of even handed justice upon which our government is predicated and we stand as a bulwark against the forces of reactionary greed and oppression ever active in undermining the structure of human liberty.

Hours of labor have been reduced, even within the memory of those yet actively engaged in industry, in many instances one-half, from sixteen to eight. We are now enabled to enjoy some measure of sunlight for our pleasures and recreations where only a few years ago labor's day was from sunrise to sunset and then some.

We have through persistent agitation secured the free school system that our posterity might enjoy the many privileges of education, long denied the toiling masses. We have forced employers to safeguard life and limb and have secured compensation for industrial injuries. Wages have been raised to an extent that we are now able to maintain at least the semblance of homes as against the hovels that housed us in past dark days of mere miserable existence.

All of these things, and more, have been accomplished through the power of organization. We hold these reasons sufficient for our being and in their fulfillment we find at least partial payment of our obligations to humanity.

In a series of splendid articles on injunctions, John P. Frey shows that in the Court of Chancery or equity courts "It became the basic principles of chancery or equity. that:

"It was to be exercised for the protection of property rights only."

"He who would seek its aid must come with clean hands."

"There must be no adequate remedy at law."

"It must not be used to punish crime."

"It must never be used to curtail personal rights."

The chancery or equity courts have wandered far afield from the basic principles upon which such courts were originally intended to function, especially in strikes in which the workers seek to protect or advance their interests.

"I am glad that a system of labor prevails under which laborers can strike when they want to, where they are not obliged to work under all circumstances, and are not tied down to work whether you pay them for it or not. I like a system which lets a man 'quit' when he wants to, and I wish it might prevail everywhere. I want a man to have a chance to better his condition; that is the true system."

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

The above forceful, cleancut statement made by Lincoln, whose birthday we commemorate this month, is a true expression of the spirit of American liberty to which the life of the Great Emancipator was dedicated and for which he died a martyr.

Compare this attitude toward the rights of workers of one whose name will live in the history of civilization with the attitude of many so-called statesmen of today and it is easily seen why the one will eternally live, beloved by mankind, while the others will never be even known to posterity.

The Court of Appeals has rendered a decision in our favor in the case of Lena J. Reichle, administratrix of the estate of Louis Reichle, deceased member of Union 2, Buffalo, New York, vs. the Cigar Makers' International Union. Louis Reichle, who died in October, 1918, had been confined in a hospital for the insane for three years prior to his death. He left no designation, no widow, no minor children, and no dependent relatives. Lena J. Reichle, as administratrix of the estate of the deceased, claimed the benefit. The trial court and the appellate division sustained her claim. The Court of appeals ruled, however, that the constitution contains two distinct requirements—(1) that the death benefit be paid only to a designated beneficiary, a widow, minor children, or dependent relatives, and (2) that application in writing for the payment of the death benefit shall be made by such an applicant within one year after the death of the member; and that since in this case there was no designated beneficiary, widow, minor children, or dependent relative to make proper application it could not be made, and that therefore all claim and right to such benefit had wholly ceased and determined.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"What did you pay for your last pair of shoes? What do you expect to pay for the next pair?"—asks the International Labor News Service, which then proceeds to say, "The average pair of shoes sold in the United States in 1921 cost the wearer $9.00. But—the average price of the forty million sold for export during 1921 was $3.65." Who's got the (profiteering) button?

We publish elsewhere in this issue a letter and circular issued by the Indiana State Federation of Labor which is carrying on an intensive campaign on the union label, shop card and button. Read both and help the Federation in the splendid work upon which it is engaged. Cooperate with them and boost the union label, shop card and button.

Organized labor is bound to discover and to inaugurate in the course of time remedies and plans by which the condition of the wage worker can be improved and elevated to a higher moral, material, economic and social plane. There can be no delay in the progress; it must move on at all times until all conditions, which have a tendency to lower the standard of living are eliminated.

Three of the principal tobacco companies of the country are engaged in conspiracy with jobbers to keep up prices, according to charges which were presented to Congress yesterday in a report of the Federal Trade Commission.—Wash. Herald, Jan. 18.

Reports from the Department of Commerce show that the total value of trade with European countries in 1921 approximated $2,380,000,000 as against $1,449,000,000 in 1913. Imports from Europe to the United States decreased from $884,666,000,000 in 1913, to $760,000,000 in 1920, owing to the demoralized condition of the European export market.—Christian Science Monitor, Jan. 12.

Unemployment conditions throughout the country have grown worse since the first of the year, Secretary Hoover declared today, due to the seasonal dip in employment following the holidays.—Balto. Sun, Jan. 13.

Samuel Untermyer, counsel to the Lockwood Committee, yesterday charged the General Electric Company of "covering up" enormous profits by its method of book-keeping in order to conceal the vast sums from the public. Of the plant expenditure of $182,000,000, a total of $115,000,000 was charged by the company to depreciation.—N. Y. Times, Jan. 13.

To attain full success and a just reward for services rendered it is necessary that the unorganized working for low wages be enrolled in the membership of the union. Nobody denies this. Let us all give freely in effort, energy, and encouragement to more completely organize our trade. It can be done. It will be done.

It is neither brave nor heroic to advocate and encourage a strike when the chances of success are doubtful. It requires more courage to favor conciliation and arbitration when passions are aroused.

We have our periods of trade activity and steady employment. We have our periods of stagnation, uncertainty, and much unemployment. A wise man will not be fooled and will never apply the same tactics under the two conditions. During times of depression we can and should manfully fight to maintain fair wages, but a strike should never be resorted to until conciliation, mediation, and arbitration have been tried.

Under the modern means of production and distribution there is absolutely no hope for the individual workman standing alone. Our complex, intricate system of production compels the workers to unite to protect their interests and advance their moral, material and intellectual welfare.

Trade unions through collective bargaining enable the workers to achieve that which it is impossible to secure by individual effort.

Evolution in industry is constantly pressing forward. We must keep abreast of the times or suffer the consequences of neglected opportunities.

Before trade unions commenced to shed the light and extend its protection, even skilled workers worked for as low as 40 cents a day. They worked from sunrise to sunset, and as soon as artificial means of securing light were invented they worked until exhausted nature said "Quit."

Cheap labor creates palaces and poor houses, millionaires and paupers. It degrades manhood and womanhood, and robs the little children of the blessings of childhood and health and strength. It grinds their bones and flesh into blood stained money.

Trade unions are the only means that can more evenly distribute the fruits received from the product of labor. When the trade unions have accomplished their object—the things that brought them into existence and have kept them alive—all men and women who perform labor and give useful service will receive fair wages and work reasonable hours. Then there will be no swollen fortunes on the one hand and no poverty of the masses on the other.

Everything that has been accomplished in the matter of improved conditions, better wages, and shorter hours has been wrung from the average employer through the solidarity of the workers in trade union activities.

The trade union movement is the most scientific, helpful, and logical that has ever existed to protect and advance the rights, interests, and welfare of the workers. Its policies and methods can be improved and they should be. The sooner the better. Experience gained and riper judgment developed should and must be utilized to still further advance the interests of the workera. The experience of the past should never be discarded. We should never hesitate, however, to adopt new methods that past experience, judgment, and knowledge indicate we may do with safety and advantage.

The cigar trust and big nonunion manufacturers, true to their religion of dollar worship and dollar chasing grabbed off every penny in advanced wages they so grudgingly were forced to give because of the scarcity of workers during the war. They were the very first to reduce wages at the first sign of unemployment. In workmanlike style they proceeded to put the nose of the defenseless nonunion worker right back on the grind stone. They are merciless in their tactics and their methods. They would put on workmen, permit them to work long hours, and then lay them off and at the psychological moment say, "We can put you back to work but at a reduction of wages." Having no union to sustain and protect them they submitted.

The Wizard of Electricity, Thomas A. Edison, in a recent interview said:

"Gold is a relic of Julius Caesar and interest is an invention of Satan. Gold is intrinsically of less utility than most metals. The probable reason why it is retained as a basis of money is that it is easy to control. And it is the control of money that constitutes the money question. It is the control of money that is the root of all evil.

"Gold is not money until the people of the United States and other nations put their stamp on it. It is not the gold that makes the dollar. It is the dollar that makes the gold. Take the dollar out of gold, and leave it merely yellow metal and it sinks in value. Gold is established by law, just as silver was. When silver was demonetized the former so-called dollar became worth about 50 cents."

"But would not the suggestion that Muscle Shoals be financed by a currency issue raise some objection?" Mr. Edison was asked.

"Certainly. There is a complete set of misleading slogans kept on hand for just such outbreaks of common sense among the people. The people are so ignorant of what they think are the intricacies of the money system that they are easily impressed by big words. There would be new shrieks of 'fiat money' and 'paper money' and 'greenbackism,' and all the rest of it—the same old cries with which the people have been shouted down from the beginning.

"Now, as to paper money, so called, every one knows that paper money is the money of civilized people. The higher you go in civilization the less actual money you see. It is all bills and checks. What are bills and checks? Mere promises and orders. What are they based on? Principally on two sources—human energy and the productive earth. Humanity and the soil—these are the only real bases of money.

"Don't allow them to confuse you with the cry of 'paper money.' The danger of paper money is precisely the danger of gold—if you get too much it is no good. They say we have all the gold of the world now. Well, what good does it do us? When America gets all the chips in the game the game stops. We would be better off if we had less gold. Indeed, we are trying to get rid of our gold to start something going. But the trade machine is at present jammed. Too much paper money operates the same way. There is just one rule for money, and that is, to have enough to carry all the legitimate trade that is waiting to move. Too little or too much are both bad. But enough to move trade, enough to prevent stagnation on the other hand, is the proper ratio."

"Then you see no difference between currency and government bonds?" Mr. Edison was asked.

"Yes, there is a difference, but it is neither the likeness nor the difference that will determine the matter; the attack will be directed against thinking of bonds and currency together and comparing them. If people ever get to thinking of bonds and bills at the same time, the game is up."

On the question of issuing currency instead of bonds Mr. Edison says:

"The bills are issued directly by the government, as all money ought to be. When the workmen are paid off they receive these United States bills. When the material is bought it is paid in these United States bills. Except that perhaps the bills may have the engraving of a water dam, instead of a railroad train and a ship, as some of the Federal Reserve notes have, they will be the same as any other currency put out by the government; that is, they will be money. They will be based on the public wealth already in Muscle Shoals, and their circulation will increase that public wealth, not only the public money but the public wealth—real wealth.

"When these bills have answered the purpose of building and completing Muscle Shoals, they will be retired by the earnings of the power dam. That is, the people of the United States will see that they put into Muscle Shoals and all that they can take out for centuries—the endless wealth-making water power of that great Tennessee River—with no tax and no increase of the national debt.”

“But suppose Congress does not see this, what then?” Mr. Edison was asked.

“Then Congress must fall back on the old way of doing business. It must authorize an issue of bonds. That is, it must go out to the money brokers and borrow enough of our own national currency to complete great national resources, and we then must pay interest to the money brokers for the use of our own money.

“That is to say, under the old way any time we wish to add to the national wealth we are compelled to add to the national debt.

“Now, that is what Henry Ford wants to prevent. He thinks it stupid, and so do I, that for the loan of $30,000,000 of their own money the people of the United States should be compelled to pay $66,000,000—that is what it amounts to, with interest. People who will not turn a shovelful of dirt nor contribute a pound of material will collect more money from the United States than will the people who supply the material and do the work. That is the terrible thing about interest. In all our great bond issues the interest is always greater than the principal. All of the great public works cost more than twice the actual cost on that account. Under the present system of doing business, we simply add 120 to 150 per cent to the stated cost.

“But here is the point: If our nation can issue a dollar bond it can issue a dollar bill. The element that makes the bond good, makes the bill good also. The difference between the bond and the bill is that the bonds let the money brokers collect twice the amount of the bond and an additional 20 per cent, whereas the currency pays nobody but those who directly contribute to Muscle Shoals in some useful way.

“If the government issues bonds, it simply induces the money brokers to draw $30,000,000 out of the other channels of trade and turn it into Muscle Shoals; if the government issues currency it provides itself with enough money to increase the national wealth at Muscle Shoals without disturbing the business of the rest of the country. And in doing this it increases its income without adding a penny to its debt.

“It is absurd to say that our country can issue $30,000,000 in bonds and not $30,000,000 in currency. Both are promises to pay; but one promises to fatten the usurer, and the other helps the people. If the currency issued by the government were no good, then the bonds issued would be no good either. It is a terrible situation when the government, to increase the national wealth, must go into debt and submit to ruinous interest charges at the hands of men who control the fictitious values of gold.

“Look at it in another way. If the government issues bonds, the brokers will sell them. The bonds will be negotiable; they will be considered as gilt-edge paper. Why? Because the government is behind them, but who is behind the government? The people. Therefore it is the people who constitute the basis of government credit. Why then cannot the people have the benefit of their own gilt-edge credit by receiving non-interest bearing currency on Muscle Shoals, instead of the bankers receiving the benefit of the people's credit in interest-bearing bonds?

“The people must pay anyway; why should they be compelled to pay twice as the bond system compels them to pay? The people of the United States always accept their government's currency. If the United States government will adopt this policy of increasing its national wealth without contributing to the interest collector—for the whole national debt is made up of interest charges—then you will see an era of progress and prosperity in this country such as never have come otherwise.”

The cigar trust and big nonunion manufacturers, utterly regardless of the health and moral fibre of the workers and with the single eye glued to the dollar mark, do not hesitate to press little children into service at the earliest possible age, where their undeveloped bodies are soon woven into dollars and cents, their childhood and its enjoyments, destroyed and lost, with no chance for an education, or the means and opportunity to develop into the kind of men and women that make countries prosperous and worth living in. With no chance for enjoyment or play, the freedom of youth lost, living in unsanitary surroundings, they are prey to disease of the body and the mind, and many die before they really reach early manhood and womanhood—all in order that the few may live in riotous, luxurious, and boisterous wealth and pile up enormous fortunes.

TRADE NOTES.

The following table shows the number of cigars by classification, manufactured in December, 1921, as compared with November, 1921:

	December, 1921.	November, 1921.
Class A	150,970,682	195,534,715
Class B	106,688,605	158,201,200
Class C	191,602,916	245,148,492
Class D	10,724,998	12,398,440
Class E	3,676,608	3,068,411
Total	463,663,809	615,351,258

Analysis of the above figures shows a total loss of 151,587,449 when compared with the previous month of November. All classifications show a loss distributed as follows: Class A, 44,764,033; Class B, 51,512,595; Class C, 53,545,576; Class D, 1,673,442, and Class E, 291,803.

In the report of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics for the month of December, 1921, a decrease is shown of 2.7 per cent in the number of persons employed and a decrease of 14.7 per cent in the amount of payroll, as compared with the same month last year.

When compared with the previous month of November, 1921, there is a decrease of 1.8 per cent in the number of persons employed, but an increase of 4.6 per cent in the amount of the payroll.

In one factory 75 per cent of the force had a wage-rate reduction of 10 per cent. An increase of 6.5 per cent in per capita earnings was shown when November and December payrolls were compared.

The following comparative data of tax paid products as indicated by monthly sales of revenue stamps shows the number of cigars manufactured during the month of December as compared with the same month of one year ago:

	December, 1920.	December, 1921.
Cigars (large)—
Class A	No. 119,334,440	150,970,682
Class B	No. 148,353,487	106,688,605
Class C	No. 217,745,078	191,602,916
Class D	No. 16,652,932	10,724,998
Class E	No. 4,040,200	3,676,608
Total	506,126,135	463,663,809

Analysis of the report shows a total loss for the month as compared with the same month of the previous year amounting to 42,462,326. The loss is distributed over all classifications except Class A, cigars retailing for 5c, which shows a gain of 31,636,242. Class B, "the odd penny class," shows a loss of 41,664,882. This classification has shown a loss for the last several months which apparently strengthens the contention of many dealers that the six, seven and eight cent cigars are steadily losing out in the market, the demand being for the previous five cent, ten cent and three for a quarter cigars.

The following table, though incomplete,

REPORT OF ORGANIZERS

Eureka, Calif., Feb. 1, 1922.

At Sacramento, Calif., the agitation committee and myself continued the work of visiting labor unions and distributing cards bearing, in addition to the union label, the names of all the brands of union made cigars made in Sacramento. Since my last letter we visited and addressed the following labor unions in the city of Sacramento: The Dredgermen's Union, the Bakers' Union, the Roofers' Union, Signwriters' Union, Painters' Union, Creamery Workers' Union, Stationary Firemen's Union, Int. Brotherhood Electrical Workers' Union, Auto Machinists' Union, Carpetlayers' Union, Cooks, Waiters and Bartenders' Union, Laundry Workers' Union, Icemen's Union, Structural Iron Workers' Union, Blacksmiths' Union, Bookbinders' Union, Bottlers and Drivers' Union, Carmen's Union, Box Makers' Union, R. R. Federated Shop Crafts' Union, Pressmen's Union, Electrical Workers (outside men), Locomotive Engineers' Union. The executive board of Union No. 238 made a request that I and one of our committee visit and address the Trades and Labor Council of the city of Stockton, now a jurisdiction town of Sacramento, and on Monday, Jan. 23, Mr. N. Samuels and myself visited and addressed the Stockton Trades and Labor Council. On my arrival at Eureka, Calif., Union No. 338, in company of Secretary G. R. Pierson we visited and addressed the following trade union meetings of Eureka: The Typographical Union, No. 207; Machinists' Union, Carpenters and Joiners' Union, Painters and Decorators' Union, Plumbers' Union, Laborers' Union, Journeymen Barbers' Union No. 431, Timber Workers' Union, Int'l Brotherhood of Electrical Workers' Union and a mass meeting called by Trades and Labor Council at Eureka at which all trades unionists and their families were invited. Refreshments were served. This meeting was well attended. Trade conditions in Sacramento are improving and the union intends keeping Brothers N. Samuels and H. Clement of Union 238 on agitation work. I hope before leaving Eureka to get all the members of Union No. 338 working along the same line.

J. E. FARRELL, Gen. Org.

Elmira, N. Y., Feb. 6, 1922.

Since my last report during January I worked around Albany, N. Y., visiting organizations and agitating for the use of the union label; spoke at Central Federation of Labor, Carpenters' Union, Plumbers' Union, Bricklayers and Masons, Painters, Electricians and Teamsters; attended meeting of local label league and suggested plan to that organization to try and get the affiliated unions to renew their work on label agitation. Many organizations do not function in this work, thus the use of the label has fallen off considerable. Proceeded from Albany to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and found much the same state of affairs there. Attended meeting of Trades Council, Cigar Makers, Moulders and Carpenters; visited some of the business houses and found many non-union cigars on sale. There are two large non-union cigar shops in Poughkeepsie where women and girls are employed. These shops were brought out on a wild strike in 1919 by some self styled radicals and self appointed organizers, and like all those movements resulted in the workers going back without an organization. After returning to work, conditions were not improved and what little voluntary increases were given them are now taken away and in many cases these workers blame the union for calling them on strike, which was not the case, for they struck against the advice of the union and worse than that they would not stick to the organization and try to keep what little raises they did receive. To talk to them now is a hard matter, for many believe you are trying to call them on strike again. Jan. 30 I went to New York City to confer with officers of Joint Advisory Board and the various unions on organization work. Shortly after arriving in New York I received instructions to come to Elmira to take up a matter now pending.

W. A. McCABE, Organizer.

St. Thomas, Ont., Feb. 5, 1922.

From Jan. 6 to 17 at Hamilton, I worked with local committee of Union 55 in label and publicity campaign; attended all executive and regular meetings of Union 55; addressed all union meetings, including Trades Council delegates; distributed advertising matter and we took every advantage of opportunities to give publicity to the conditions which prevail in the so called open shop. The work done by the committee has caused a revival of interest in label agitation by the various trade unionists and a reorganization of the Hamilton Label League. Long hours, low wages, bad shop conditions are reflects of our inactivities as trade unionists and if we as members allow ourselves to become indifferent we are assisting in maintaining these conditions mentioned. Jan. 18 to 29 I took up label work at St. Catharines and Niagara Falls; addressed the following meetings: Bricklayers, Plumbers, Laborers, Trade Council Delegates, Carpenters, Moulders, Machinists. Distributed advertising matter around city and at labor hall. At St. Catharines and other places visited I received many complaints from dealers concerning cigars sent out from union factories without the Blue Label.

At Niagara Falls I consulted with Vice President S. W. Kennedy on local matters, distributed advertising matter, called on cigar dealers in the interests of the label. In company with Mr. Kennedy we addressed the following meetings: Bricklayers, Railway Trainmen, Brotherhood Railway Carmen and Carpenters.

At London I consulted with officers of Union 278 on local situation, arranged to attend regular meeting and will assist Union 278 in campaign to be started there. There are no changes in local conditions since my last visit here.

At St. Thomas I addressed meetings of Trade Council, Electrical Workers and Carmen; distributed cards and circulars and gave general publicity to the London difficulty. Business has been very quiet; members have drifted away from the city, as shops have been closed since the summer. I will cover what meetings are on while here, also will take up local matter with secretary of Union 420.

JAS. A. SULLIVAN, Int'l Org.

New York, Feb. 4, 1922.

Since my last writing conditions in the cigar industry in New York have not shown any improvement. This condition does not apply only to the cigar trade, but seems to be a general condition. Unemployment seems to be the only thing that is thriving today and it is not surprising that stagnation in trade continues when the purchasing power of such a vast army of workers is attacked through not being able to secure work and earn an honest living. It is not amazing that crime should be flourishing when you see and hear of so many men and women that are turned away day after day from the factories and they only seeking an honest day's work. Those that are fortunate enough to be employed are attacked by their masters, who are taking every advantage of what they term readjustment, and are reducing the wages and working conditions to lower standards than what the healthy development of society can tolerate. I feel sure that the unorganized workers must wake up to the fact that organization is the only means that can make their lives brighter, happier and the opportunity for a better day. I am now circularizing the shops in New York where the unorganized are employed, placing articles in the newspapers for them to read, planning to hold shop meetings and mass meetings so that we can talk to them and tell them that the doors of the C. M. I. U. are wide open and if they will only step in it will bring some sunshine into their lives, the opportunity for better wages and conditions and the right of collective bargaining. We hope and trust that our appeal will be answered by the men and women in the trade joining the forces of the C. M. I. U.

MAURICE SIMONS, Org.

Acting under instruction, proceeded to Pennsylvania, where after a conference with Organizers McCabe and Keenen, mapped out a plan of campaign in an effort to get the unorganized cigar makers interested in our effort to bring them within the fold. The territory covering this cheap belt is a very large one. We decided to work in different sections separately. Circulars have been printed and sent into the homes. Cigar makers here are slow to attend any of the open meetings and I am sorry to say one secretary informed me that quite a number of members of the union of which he is secretary would lose their jobs if their employers knew they were union men, thereby showing if they were organized this would not be the case. In the last three months wages have been reduced at a great rate. The cigar makers are not consulted when these wholesale reductions are made. That's all due to their indifference to organization. This does not hold good in shops where they are organized.

Cigar manufacturers, that is to say, the open shops, have a very novel way of getting the cigar makers to come into their shops and take their cheap jobs, saying, "You can work as many hours as you like in our shop and thereby increase your earning power," and how those men and women do work from early morn until late at night—never lose a shove. In many instances the children of these economic slaves bring their parents a bite for dinner and repeat when supper time comes along. After a father and mother have worked these long hours for a whole week they have a fairly good sized pay envelope, but at what a terrible cost—children neglected, and our so called much vaunted American standard of living really becomes a farce—and this is what is called the American plan.

However, I am glad to say we are making some headway. The whole cigar belt is talking as a result of our literature being sent into their homes. This is usually mailed to them on Friday so as to give them time to read it on Sundays. A peculiar situation prevails in some communities. There shops are working until late at night, while in other localities the shops are and have been shut down completely. This is true of Reading and many other localities. In quite a number of the unions they have appointed sub-committees to assist in getting out the circulars. Secretaries in some of these unions have given us every possible assistance. This is very much appreciated.

No section in this cigar belt has been neglected. We attend their regular meetings in some of the homes. Suspended members attend these gatherings and to hear them bewail the fact that they allowed themselves to become suspended in some cases is very pathetic, realizing as they do now their abject helplessness, these trust manufacturers are leaving nothing undone to completely exploit their victims. Cigar makers who have never visited the Pennsylvania cheap belt can have no conception of conditions that prevail here. Until such time when the cigar maker wakes up, joins his union, will he have to bear the consequences of his indifference. The International Union, through its organizers, is trying to do its level best to show to its critics that it is and always has tried in every possible way to educate the Pennsylvania cigar maker to the point where he will join his union. Until he sees this he will continue to be the victim of his own folly. We are now sending out our second series of circulars and in the very near future begin to hold open meetings as fast as we can reach the various local unions. We sincerely hope to be able to induce our fellow cigar makers to join their various locals.

SOL. SONTHEIMER, Org.

San Juan, P. R., Feb. 8, 1922.

Reports have been received so far for some ten towns out of the twenty where the Porto Rican American Tobacco has shops to the effect that work was resumed on the third of this month but with a very great reduction in the force employed at the time of the closing on the last days of December.

The reports received so far are as follows:

Name of town..	No. previously employed.	Work resumed with.
Sabana Grande	180	80 left 100
Yauco	70	37 left 33
Puerto de Tierra	260	125 left 135
Total	1,870	928 left 942

From La Marina, Utuado, Las Piedras, Ciales and Arecibo we have not received any report so far, but we are sure that force has been reduced also in proportion. The statement above shows that in resuming work on Feb. 3 in only those ten shops 943 cigar makers have been left out without work, or that is a little more than 50 per cent of the total number employed at those factories at the time of closing such shops in December, 1921.

The information has also been received to the effect that no work at all has been resumed at the shops of Coamo, Bayamon, San Lorenzo, Penuelas and Ponce. This will show in general that in the neighborhood of 1,000 cigar makers only are employed and that, too, in conditions which are very far from good. Most of them are employed in the most inferior shapes and not allowed to produce more than two-thirds of the regular task they did in previous years of those shapes. Many complaints are heard, and discontent is spread in all the shops. The acts of tyranny, black list and persecutions which were so common up to the year 1914 and which had been done away with by the force of organization and practically unknown from 1914 to 1920, have been revived and put into practice again by the firm, managers and foremen, this having caused already serious disturbances in the shops and fatal consequences as per the information received.

This can be easily verified by the last occurrences taking place at two or three towns which the press has written about. On the very day that work was resumed at San Juan, a cigar maker by the name of Miguel Aranzamendi, assaulted and beat with his board a foreman by the name of Juan Ruiz. He in turn took out his pistol and fired on him, failing to do any harm to his opponent. Police intervened and the cigar maker was fined. The cause for this act is traced to the foreman having used insulting language in reprimanding the cigar maker for cigars he thought were not perfectly finished.

At Las Piedras, one of the towns where a new branch was established by the trust during the strike to break it something more serious has happened. According to the information published, a strike breaker, who has taken part in breaking almost all the strikes of the cigar makers taking place in Porto Rico, cigar maker by trade, and who was working at this town as such since that shop was established, killed with a knife a foreman by the name of Diego Lopez in his own home. The name of the killer is Donato Lebron. According to the press this foreman was stabbed twice by the cigar maker with a big knife and died almost at once. It is also reported that the cause for this murder was that the foreman in resuming work after the closing of the shops, refused to provide Donato Lebron with his ticket to occupy his place.

Happenings of less importance are being reported from every shop and the trust will reap, for creating such conditions, the delicious fruits and blessings of the democratic American Open Shop System imposed by them after about one year of strike.

Yours fraternally,

P. RIVERA MARTINEZ,
Organizer.

To Local Unions:

Enclosed you will find circular letter No. 2, for the second week of our educational campaign on the UNION LABEL, SHOP CARD and BUTTON.

Our campaign has now settled down to those localities that have showed, by their co-operation, their desire to participate in the campaign.

May I request that your committee endeavor to make a survey of the Union Labels, Shop Cards and Buttons in your locality, and submit a report to this office at the earliest possible time, as we wish to check up on the campaign as we go. I am herewith making some suggestions for your committee to follow in making this survey.

How many Union Labeled articles can you buy in your city?

How many stores handle the Union Labeled articles?

To what extent do the stores handle Union articles?

How many Shop Cards are used in your city?

What per cent of stores eligible to use Union Shop Cards use them?

How many different Union Buttons are used in your city?

Trust you will attend to this matter at once, and with best wishes for the success of your Label Week, I am, Fraternally yours,

T. N. TAYLOR,

President, Ind. State Federation of Labor.

By EDGAR A. PERKINS,
Former President Indiana State Federation of Labor.

In point of development and accomplishment, the most important gathering of organized labor in this country was the conference held at Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 2, 1881. No story of the union label would be complete without harking back to this conference, for out of it eventuated the machinery that made possible the systematizing of the work essential to any effective use of the label.

On Thanksgiving Day, 1869, at the home of Uriah Stevens, in Philadelphia, he and a few of his fellow workers met and formed the Knights of Labor. Instituted as an oath-bound, secret organization, the Knights eventually dispensed with the oaths and to some degree with the "secret" work, but the signs, and the password, and the grip were retained to the end. The theory underlying the Knights of Labor was the organization of all labor under one head, the different classes to be set out to themselves as occasions might warrant, but all to be under one dominance—the supremacy of the General Assembly and of the general executive board to be undisputed. In a somewhat less virulent form it had all the intentions of the present-day "one big union" idea. The Knights showed but slow growth during the first years, but toward the late seventies there was a large increase in membership and corresponding arrogant attitude was assumed by the Knights toward other occupants of the organized labor field. However, there was then, just as there is now, an element that did not believe it possible to mix all sorts and conditions of men—men with varying views and desires—with differing ideas as to means and methods of accomplishment—and secure harmonious and constructive action. These men believed that labor, like any other man-made enterprise, would best proceed on its mission where proper attention was paid to those human traits and propensities that are always the controlling influence.

Through many years men of these ideas had fostered the trade unions, and while several attempts to bring the various trade union organizations together into a workable federated movement had proved without result, the underlying thought was never abandoned. The molder, the printer, the cigar maker, the carpenter could not see the practicability of committing to the mercies of a General Assembly, made up of all kinds and classes of labor, consideration of questions which were peculiar to their own particular crafts and callings and solution of which could only be reached by those conversant with surrounding detail. Nor did the idea of surrendering to the general executive board that management and supervision of minor detail appeal to those who were committed to the theory of trade autonomy. So there was accentuated an irreconcilable difference between two distinctive lines of thought in the organized labor movement—a difference which, by the way, occasionally shows itself in our day. Certain it was that both could not continue—one or the other had to dominate the field. This was the impulse behind the Terre Haute conference.

Events have shown that the Terre Haute conference was the beginning of the end of the Knights of Labor, for that conference presaged the organization which was to supplant the Knights. The men attending this conference, nine in number—J. E. Coughlin, president National Tanners and Curriers' Union; E. Powers, general president Lake Seamen's Union; Lyman A. Brant, International Typographical Union; P. J. McGuire, St. Louis Trades and Labor Assembly; T. Thompson, Iron Molders' Union, Dayton, O.; George W. Osborn, Iron Molders' Union, of Springfield, O.; W. C. Follner, Cleveland Trades Assembly; Sam L. Leffingwell, Indianapolis Trades Assembly; J. R. Beckus, Terre Haute Amalgamated Labor Union (and which was afterward endorsed by George Clark, president of the International Typographical Union; P. F. Fitzpatrick, president Iron Molders' Union of America; and George Rodgers, president Chicago Trades Assembly)—issued a call, and on Nov. 15, 1881, at Pittsburgh, somewhat more than one hundred delegates met and organized the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada. Included among the delegates at the initial meeting was a goodly sprinkling of those bearing credentials from K. of L. assemblies, but in many instances those with these credentials were what might be termed "finers," and were found as members of the Knights largely because of this proclivity—which was somewhat prevalent during those days, and has not entirely disappeared as a human trait even to this day. The only delegate from Indiana at the Pittsburgh convention was Sam L. Leffingwell, who represented the Indianapolis Trades Assembly. Some five years later, after a growth that was not overly encouraging to its proponents, the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada, at Columbus, O., combined with the Trade Union Conference and there was formed the American Federation of Labor.

The Pittsburgh gathering found the cigar makers "on the job," in behalf of their product, as they were to be for many years, in "boosting" the union label. Unfair conditions of labor, insanitary surroundings were the things that had called the label into existence. So, it is interesting to note two resolutions that were introduced and adopted at the first meeting of the Federation. Samuel Gompers, of New York, representing the International Cigar Makers' Union, introduced the following:

"Resolved, That the manufacture of cigars in tenement houses is detrimental both to the interest of the manufacturer (except about thirty who unfairly profit by this nefarious system) and working people, and upon this ground should be prohibited.

"Resolved, That inasmuch as the manufacture of cigars in tenement houses in the city of New York is highly injurious to the health of the tenant workers and, on sanitary, economical, moral and social grounds should be prohibited, we therefore demand the abolishment of the system."

And the resolution by William Betting, of Chicago, representing Cigar Makers' Union No. 14:

"Whereas, The smoking public are imposed upon by buying cigars that are manufactured by Chinese in California, by prisoners in state prisons, and by the filthy tenement house system of manufacturing in New York and Brooklyn; and,

"Whereas, the Cigar Makers' International Union of America, the White Cigar Makers' Union of California and the Cigar Makers' Assembly of Pittsburgh have issued union labels in order to guarantee clean, honest workmanship and discourage these illegitimate systems of manufacture; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That this congress of trades and labor unions hereby recommend all smokers not to buy or smoke cigars which do not come out of boxes bearing the union label or blue seal."

Here is found the first reference to the use of the label by "organized labor" as a means of discriminating between fair and unfair products. At that time there were three separate forms of the label—and the cigar making industry claimed a monopoly of its use.

Much water has passed over the wheel since then. Labels by the millions have been used. Instead of being confined to one craft the field has been materially widened. And under the supervision of the American Federation of Labor—an organization founded on common sense.

recognizing human foibles and frailties and the determining part these play in all human affairs—system has been used in the application of the idea, and each trade, perfectly free in its own field and using its own methods of forwarding the use of its particular insignia, has co-operated with all others toward a general popularizing of all.

INDIANA STATE FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Chicago, Feb. 4, 1922.

The fiber that puts vim and energy into industrial life and makes for greater thrift and prosperity for the people of a community have been seriously lacking in this city for several months past. The building trades have been tied up and construction work almost at a standstill, owing to economic disputes caused by misguided employers dominated by the so-called "citizens' committee" of open shoppers, who have been striving to defeat the just demands of organized labor in their efforts to maintain a wage scale commensurate with the cost of living.

But the tense struggle for a long period with neither side yielding, has been slightly mitigated by the Building Trades Council agreeing to accept the awards of Judge Landis as arbiter in the wage disputes, and most of the organizations will go along with his decision. The merit or demerit of his findings it is not the purpose of this article to discuss. However, now that an agreement has lately been arrived at, it is devoutly to be wished that the same element of forces that have been concentrated by big interests and the employing class to stagnate business will now be devoted to a genuine spirit of sincere co-operation with labor's, might and main, to put the wheels of industry in motion and relieve the situation of the deplorable and unnecessary depressed industrial condition.

The local cigar business at this season of the year is now quieter than ever before in the history of the trade. Those engaged in it are feeling the pinch of dull times. The joint unions of Chicago have appointed a committee to confer with the manufacturers with a view to ascertain the real conditions and what is most needed to stimulate the industry. That committee is expected to report on the nature of its investigation and offer recommendations that may be acted on by the union to promote better business activity and instill closer co-operation in the industry.

Trust made cigars of vast quantities are finding a market here. More agitation is needed by our members to advance the products of union labor and create a greater demand for the union label on cigars. There is no reason under the sun why this city should not be one of the leading cigar centers of the world for union made cigars. Let us join forces in working to that end; boost and pull together with unselfish aim for a lasting revival of the business.

In the Official Journal of January Mr. I. Somerfeldt of Local No. 15 takes exception to the International amendment to Section No. 168, introduced by Local No. 157 of Covington, Ky. I take the liberty of answering his unjust charge.

You say, Mr. Somerfeldt, that this amendment is aimed chiefly at the co-operative factories of which there are many in this country and such is not the case. Are you demonstrating your ability as a poor guesser or is it a fact that you are not capable of understanding the English language. Pray tell us just why you are so eager to place this construction upon it without knowing the facts in the case. Local 15 thinks it an insult to ask for their support, how remarkable. Whenever the members of Local No. 15 feel insulted when asked to guard the best interests of the International Union and use you as their spokesman to misrepresent the facts they are demonstrating very little intelligence.

By no means, Mr. Somerfeldt, is this amendment centered against any co-operative factories, but it is aimed chiefly against some manufacturers and stockholders of local concerns who are using their best efforts to disrupt and destroy that which the patient labor, time and money that a former generation has builded for us, against those who are forming like a cankerous growth eating at the very hearts of the International Union, lowering the morale of our membership that we may fall easy prey to our opponents, destroying our finance that we may remain helpless in the time of strife.

One can hardly imagine our grief when it becomes an insult to ask for support against such conditions as these. We have many members who have had the pleasure of working under the jurisdiction of Local 15 who understand the conditions here but fail to grasp your meaning. This, Mr. Somerfeldt, is the real motive of the amendment and if you had used the same amount of energy to find the real cause as you did to misrepresent the facts, you would have saved yourself the error which is so common with us all. FRANK B. HAAS, Local No. 4.

Union No. 225, Sacramento, requests that the following letter be published in the Journal.

ABE SILVERSTONE, Sec'y.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 18, 1922.

Mr. Abe Silverstone:

Dear Sir: Your letter of Jan. 16, 1922. In regard to the Silver Eagle Cigar Co. we have 27 men out on a strike here. We have on the blackboard here in my office the following: El Temple Cigar Co., 210 Cowell St.; Ramona Cigar Co., 149 S. Main St.; Silver Eagle Cigar Co., 912 S. Main St., closed to union men. Any member going to work in any of these shops stand fined $50 and suspended. You have been misinformed in regard to me sending men in there. I have heard that card men were working in that shop, but they did not come to this office. We have no open shops here. Yours fraternally,

F. B. ANDREWS,

Sec'y Union 225, Los Angeles, Cal.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 16, 1922.

To Members Everywhere:

Union No. 22 wishes that all members would give due consideration to the amendment proposed to enlarge the size of the B&M Union Label and give their endorsement to same.

We are of the opinion that there are many reasons why the size of the label should be enlarged; that at the time the label was reduced in size there was the question of the cost of paper stock, and that time is past and should not be considered now.

There are many members and cigar manufacturers of this city who believe we may as well have no union label as the small one we have, that can barely be seen or read, with all the printed matter and numbering on such a small label. The time is here when we need a union label large enough to be seen and read which would be to our interest.

WM. RENTSCHLER.

Lockout of Union 12, Oneida, N. Y., since July 3, 1921, is still on. Our members have dwindled down to 46 men, with but two desertions from our ranks. The firm of Powell & Goldstein Co. is trying to open their shop in Oneida with little—and I mean little—girls; they look like school children. They say they are learning to make bunches and some are learning to roll cigars. From the appearance of the place at 7 A. M. it looks like a kindergarten. There are no female cigar makers in this town so this firm of Powell & Goldstein Co. will have to teach all of their help if they want to run that kind of a shop, for we are determined to win this fight. We have stood the hardships of a cold winter; we are glad to know our sister unions stood back of us with financial aid, which we appreciate very much. We were able to pay full benefits up to Jan. 7. With a little more assistance we will be able to pull through this winter. We only have about twenty working and they have donated to the Unit. We are encouraged by all the citizens and business men in our cause, so we feel confident of success. LOCKOUT COMMITTEE Union 12.

A Torture Instrument

INJUNCTIONS are used in the United States while they have been discarded by the rest of the world. They are, in reality, a relic of the European imperialistic, autocratic world of a by-gone age, as Mr. Baer, the famous cartoonist, so well shows. American jurisprudence has gone, scavenger-like, through the archaic junk heap of European imperialism, picking up here a shackle, there a club, to weave into the fabric of the American writ of injunction.

The injunction is, in principle, the same as the ancient army of the baron. It is a revival of the "go thou" and the "do thou" and of the "thou shalt not" and the "verboten" of ignominious recent memory.

How many Americans know that in the recent British coal strike, lasting three months, there was not an injunction and not even an arrest? It is a fact.

The injunction as used in our industrial disputes is autocratic, despotic, ancient and out of harmony with modern thought and most modern practices.

Such a thing may persist for a time in free America, but its doom is certain. No judge whose mind lives the life of today will issue an injunction in a labor dispute where no such injunction would lie where such labor dispute did not exist. No judge who is capable of understanding the theory of modern society and modern democracy will issue such an injunction. The day is coming when no judge, unless he is a crooked judge, will issue such an injunction. The time is coming when judicial usurpation and tyranny will be no more.

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President.

Monon Building, Chicago.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 318 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

I. M. ORNBURN, 286 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

D. W. KENNEDY, 73 Clifton Ave., Niagara Falls, Ont., Third Vice President.

MANUEL GONZALES, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

ALEXANDER RAMSEY, Nevada City, Calif., Sixth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Seventh Vice President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children, and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free, and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members, secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also, as per Section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request, carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal will" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if there is no such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member; if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Approved the application of 221, South Bend, Indiana, to fine Henry Bouckaert, 115163, and Joe Mentel, 68385, each $25.00 for working in a non-union shop. Vote—Affirmative, 7.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter. In the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months, a member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $3.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments, and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices), shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequently thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example—a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

Any secretary or member knowing anything about the death of Henri Herbener, a Belgian; he was a member of the union; he arrived in the U. S. in 1832 and was supposed to have worked in New York, Boston, Washington and Philadelphia. He was heard from last time in 1908; supposed to have died in that year in an asylum for the insane, the name of which was given as "Maeste Shoorer," but there is no such locality or institution in Pennsylvania. Any information concerning the above named Henri Herbener should be sent to the International Treasurer at once.

UNION NOTES

The secretary of 470, Portland, Me., would like to hear from Joseph Mathews and Dan Crane.

The secretary of Union 12, Oneida, N. Y., requests that the secretary holding the card of Dennis J. Ring, 10095, to enter on his card traveling loan of $3 granted by Union 12 on January 9, 1922.

Union 174 Joliet, Ill., would like to hear from E. C. Schultz, 67836, for favors extended him when he left.

The secretary of 238 Sacramento, California, holds the card of Wm. Tietjen, 83507. He left this card in a factory and departed without it.

Union 41, Aurora, Ill., warns traveling members to try to avoid Aurora, as half of the members there are out of work and the local fund is exhausted.

James Bybee, 23694, initiated by 163, Marysville, July 9th, 1921, came to Denver Nov. 23rd, last, and represented that he had secured a job in one of the factories, on the strength of which he secured $4 from the secretary for a meal ticket. This was the last seen of him. Some weeks later we heard from him in Pueblo and sent his card there on request of the secretary, but Mr. Bybee left there before the card arrived and it was returned to us. His card and due book showed when he was in Denver that his dues were paid for Sept. 17th, 1921. As no dues have been paid since that date he has allowed himself to become suspended. He may be traveling on the strength of his due book, which should not be recognized by secretaries for the reason that he has not acted altogether square in the past. His card has been sent to the International office. It has the endorsement of several small private loans from other unions besides the $4 due 129, Denver, Colo. He also owes a $50 fine imposed by Union 36, Topeka.

J. W. SANFORD, Sec'y-Treas.

PETER ROGERS, Sec'y.

We advance only as one helps the other. Boost the union label, card and button.

Each time you fail to patronize the union label, shop card or working button is a loss to organized labor.

Spend your union-earned money where you will receive the benefit therefrom—ask for the union label, card and button.

The union label is a "home industry" builder and should receive your patronage.

Organization has proven its worth and has established itself as the foundation upon which is builded the monument of labor's hopes and aims. The necessity for a more complete unification of the workers into trades unions is today greater than at any time in the past and of more vital importance. The foundation upon which we build must be further strengthened and more firmly reinforced. Whatever weak places there may be in the chain which binds us together should now be made stronger and secure by the complete organization of the various parts that make up the whole.

The worker today who refuses to become a part of organized labor, or the worker who deserts his union at this time is doing himself a grave injustice. He is, furthermore, making the future of his children and the unborn generations to follow so much the harder to endure. He is robbing posterity of any contribution on his part toward the betterment of mankind.

Organized labor has through a constant, bitter struggle during the years gone by gained much in the way of higher wages, shorter hours and more decent working conditions. It has raised the standard of living from the bestial serfdom of the Oriental to a plane of greater independence. Through its power we have forced recognition of the thought that labor is more than a mere commodity, subject only to the lowest market price that would insure life alone. By its power we have rightly taken our place in the sun and are now recognized as a component part of the nation's being and possessing full and equal rights as citizens.

All of these triumphs, and more, are dedicated to the one cause—organization. The powers of reactionary thought, the non-union employer and the autocratic snob know this, better perhaps than some do who have made our successes possible. In their minds is born the determination to destroy. This determination finds being in many ways and is visualized in the many schemes directed toward the destruction of our foundation. None so far tried is more insidious or more far-reaching in its pernicious ambition to destroy than the present so-called "American Plan" of the labor-hating, non-union open-shoppers. Their propaganda has had its bad effect, too, and while they have been and will continue to be unable to accomplish their brutal purpose all labor has felt the effect of their edict to crush the workers into subservient submission, to lower wages and to lengthen the hours of the worker's day. This concentrated move to break the power of organization and through this break the spirit of the great mass of workers in general has failed. Labor unorganized is today in the mire, hopeless and helpless.

This fact is obvious and should be the final evidence necessary to stimulate the minds of the unorganized into action that will lead to a betterment of their condition. It should cause them to at once seek membership in the organization of their respective crafts. Organization is the one star of hope shining clearly and steadily to guide the worker into conditions endurable during his working years. Organize we must! DO IT NOW!

Success is usually due to a well planned program carefully executed even in its most minute details. Failure usually follows in the wake of negligence or inconsistent action no matter how elaborate and forceful the program may appear.

Organized labor in its program has given prominence to the Union Label, a symbol of unity, the trade-mark which should be demanded by all union members when purchasing goods of any description. Union labor has allowed this particular part of their program to disintegrate. We have not taken advantage of its possibilities. We now find our negligence in this regard working a hardship on us when a closer adherence to our label program as proposed in the scheme of organization would have proven one of our greatest assets. It is estimated that union labor spends not less than $5,000,000,000 annually in the purchasing of the necessities of life. Had this enormous sum been spent for label goods in the years past and were it to be spent for label goods in the years to come our position would be strengthened wonderfully. We would not be forced into wage reductions through economic pressure shaped largely by non-union labor. The purchasing power of labor would in itself force every merchant in the land to carry a complete line of union-made goods and this in turn would assure the employment of more union men and women.

Due largely to such negligence and inconsistency this part of our program is becoming less potent. On the other hand, the forces that at all times and under all circumstances combat organized labor are more consistent in the adherence to their program and they enjoy the advantages their consistent action brings them. The merchant following the program of his organization will not handle any article that is union-made if he can possibly avoid it. He never boosts and usually discourages label goods even though he may be forced to handle a few of them. He never marks up a "bargain sale" on union-made goods and he will keep shelf-worn and out-of-date articles on hand, offering them to the few who demand them irrespective of price, style or quality. In this he is adhering to his program of discouraging the sale of union-made goods and he keeps everlastingly at it despite the fact that it may be ordinarily considered poor business management.

Wake up! Use the purchasing power of your money to further your own good. Take advantage of the protection afforded by the label portion of your program. It can be done and it should be done by all who hold organization beneficial.

The courts decide that Confiscation. when a price for a public utility product, set by legislation or by a duly appointed commission, is too low that the rate is confiscatory and therefore unconstitutional. The claim is made that such protection to capital is necessary if we expect industry to live and government to function.

In production it is generally agreed, by fair minded persons, that the one form, capital, is dependent almost entirely upon the other form, labor. It therefore should rightly follow that any just claim as to confiscation should be applicable to both forms of production and any judicial decisions in the matter should be handed down with this humanely right principle in mind. This, however, is not the way the proposition is applied in the present scheme of things. The public says through regular and supposedly lawful channels: "We shall pay a five cent street car fare, eighty cents per thousand feet for gas, etc., etc." The public utility affected takes their confiscatory argument to court and the public is informed by the court's usual decision that such a rate is confiscatory and therefore unconstitutional. Under this decision the public is forced by the decree to pay more. This is the application of the law as regards capital's rights. Now let us see how the law is applied as regards labor's rights, if at all. The same street car company, gas company or any other employer of labor arbitrarily decides that wages, labor's rate, shall be so much and no more. Labor says, "We cannot live under this low rate." Does the court say the rate is confiscatory? If there is any court decision in the matter at all it is usually in the form of an injunction restraining labor from interfering in any way whatsoever with the rate arbitrarily set by the employer. Instead of the same degree of protection being afforded labor as is afforded capital as regards confiscation the machinery of the court is often set in motion to force the rate set by capital.

We received the following communication from the Federation of Cigar Makers' Unions of Cuba.

FEDERATION OF CIGARMAKERS' UNIONS FOR THE PROVINCES OF HAVANA AND PIMAR DEL RIO.

Central Office, Figuras 35 and 37,

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 28, 1922.

Mr. G. W. Perkins, Chicago.

Dear Comrade: The reason for writing this letter is to inform you of the agreement arrived at by the Central Committee on the 18th inst.

As it was considered dangerous to the Federation that cigarmakers should come in from the outside who appear to be enrolled as members of the union only a few days previously, it was agreed, in order to obviate this trouble, that all of those who come in from the outside should not be admitted to membership upon such showing except upon the provision that they should bear traveling card showing membership in the Cigarmakers' International Union of at least three months. This agreement to go into effect on the first day of April of this year.

We would ask you to give all the publicity possible to this agreement, because it is our desire that all of the fraternal members which come in from the outside shall be organized, as in this place they will find no difficulty in working on this basis.

Fraternally yours,

AMANDO SAMABRA, Sec'y.

JOSE BRAVO, President.

Some time ago an agreement was made with the Federation of Cigar Makers' Unions of Cuba and our International Union, to the effect that any cigar maker traveling to Cuba could not go to work there in a union shop unless he had a card showing membership in the Cigar Makers' International Union. The foregoing letter shows that they have amended the agreement to the effect that any cigar maker going to Cuba from this country must show a paid-up membership in the International Union of at least three months.

Losses to Wage-Earners from Industrial Accidents.

An admittedly conservative estimate of the yearly economic loss to injured wage-earners resulting from industrial accidents has been compiled by Commissioner Charles H. Verrill of the U. S. Employees' Compensation Commission. He places the number of deaths from industrial accidents at the present time as not less than 20,000 a year; the number of accidents resulting in temporary disability at not less than 2,500,000 a year; the number of permanent total disabilities at 1,627 a year and the number of permanent partial disabilities at 100,000, of which 72,000 are on account of dismemberment or the total loss of use of some member. Assuming, also conservatively, an average daily wage of $2.50 with a discount of one-third to express present values, Commissioner Verrill in the current number of the American Labor Legislation Review estimates that the yearly losses in working days and in wages are as follows:

	Working days lost.	Wages lost. $
Temporary disabilities...	37,710,000	$ 94,275,000
Permanent total disabilities	9,762,000	18,270,000
Dismemberment and total loss of use of member..	66,600,000	111,000,000
Other permanent partial disabilities	12,936,000	21,560,000
Deaths	120,000,000	200,000,000
Total	247,008,000	$443,105,000

While many reforms are necessary and must be taken up and disposed of with the aim of bettering humanity's cause, there is none more pressing at the present time than a more democratic control of the federal judiciary.

Our Supreme Court, whose body is made up of nine men appointed for life and who are amenable in no way whatsoever to any authority, is exercising more power and authority than the whole governmental machinery of any other nation in the world, even be it an absolute monarchy.

In comparison with some of the recent decisions as handed down by this powerful oligarchy the Dred Scott decision, which had its effect in precipitating the War of Rebellion, pales into insignificance.

History is replete with the strife that unlimited power concentrated in the hands of a few individuals can cause. We must therefore take note of this usurpation of our constitutional rights and endeavor to relegate the Supreme Court to its intended functions as provided for in the Constitution that gave it being.

Make such a determination a part of your political creed. Demand of your representatives in Congress that some measure of this much needed reform be given their attention in order that democracy may live in the land of its birth.

Union-hating open-shoppers have long contended that one of the chief causes of high prices was the time lost through strikes. This claim has been made by practically every large employer of labor and has been given the widest publicity by the press at all times.

A recent report of the geological survey with reference to the coal industry kicks the sawdust out of this shop-worn falsehood in the following language—not widely copied nor commented on by the predatory press:

"In the 20-year period, 1900-1919, the operators reported a total loss of 124,747,199 man-days, through strikes, but the loss attributable to other causes was 1,053,576,000 man-days, or eight and a half times as great as the strike loss.

"The statistics of strikes include time lost between the termination of one agreement and the signing of another.

"The record year in point of man-days lost on account of strikes was 1910, yet the 19,250,524 days sacrificed to strikes in that year were only 30 per cent of the total days lost, for the causes other than strikes were responsible for a loss of 44,693,242 man days."

When workers are compelled to pay 10 cents for a pound loaf of bread, Albert F. Coyle, secretary of the all-American commission, wants to know who grabs the extra profit?

"A congressional committee investigating the high cost of living in the District of Columbia found that one of the largest bakers made a profit of $315,059 in one year, not counting his own salary of $30,000. Flour then cost twice what it does now. And yet within the past week this same baker has announced an increase of a cent a loaf in his products.

"But the bakers and retailers are not the only ones who are profiteering on the people's universal need for bread. The wheat millers stand convicted by the federal trade commission, in its report on profiteering to the United States senate, of squeezing the people for an average profit of 38 per cent —profits that are indefensible; considering that an average profit of one mill for six months of the year shows as high as $2 a barrel,' as against an average profit of 13½ cents a barrel before the war.

"Next to the miller stands the jobber, through whom all but the biggest bakers buy their flour. The federal trade commission reported that jobbers who were content with an average profit of 15 cents a barrel in 1913-14, have increased their exaction to 50 cents a barrel."—A. F. of L. News Letter.

The Federation of Engineers finds that employers, managers, labor and public must combine to eliminate waste. Shoemakers spend a third of their time idle because of lack of systematic dispatching. In the clothing and shoe and building industries production is closed down for a third of the year. Faulty machine installation is a cause of waste. Labor is chiefly blamed for voluntary waste, but the engineers charge half the total responsibility for waste to unwise management and a quarter of it to labor. Fully five times more is lost through illness, averaging 3,000,000 workers every day, than through strikes and lockouts. Nearly half this illness could be prevented by simple precautions and treatment. Accidents result in the death of 23,000 annually, and in disability for at least four weeks for 575,000. In the building trades 10 per cent of the labor cost is due to accidents, of which 75 per cent could be prevented.—The Arbitrator.

The United Mine Workers.

If a strike or lockout occurs in the coal industry on April 1, the United Mine Workers places the blame clearly where it belongs—on the shoulders of the operators, as the following statement shows:

"In announcing their refusal to meet with the miners and work out a new agreement to take effect on April 1, these operators deliberately violated their written contract with the miners, which they signed in New York on March 31, 1920. In that contract was this clause:

"Resolved. That an interstate joint conference be held prior to April 1, 1922; the time and place for holding such meeting to be referred to a committee of two operators and two members from each state herein represented, together with the international officials of the United Mine Workers of America.

"That agreement was as binding as any agreement ever signed by business men. Refusal by the operators to live up to this agreement was a shock to the public conscience and an assault on business morality. It was so indefensible that President Harding denounced their action and directed Secretary of Labor Davis to call upon the operators to live up to their agreement and meet with the miners in an honest effort to work out a new agreement."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The financial bulletin issued by the Federal Reserve Board says: "Business conditions are slowly but surely improving. While the gains noted are not general, being confined to spots and localities rather than to the country as a whole, the general recovery in the prices of agricultural products is having its effect on the whole demoralized business condition. In view of past experience this country, its industries and finances, is recovering from the war depression more rapidly than ever before."

Our own trade, dependent largely on general conditions, has not as yet responded to any appreciable extent to the seeming improvement, nor will it until the general condition of business picks up still more. We are, however, no worse off as a class than many other trades, and there begins to show at least a small bit of the proverbial silver lining.

According to indications based on figures issued in a recent preliminary report of the Census Bureau, labor's share in the net wealth created by manufacturing operations increased less than one per cent in the five years between 1914 and 1919.

When this slight increase is placed along side of the admitted profits of manufacturing concerns as shown in their annual reports for these five years it shows the utter absurdity of the charge so often made that labor was a party to the mad profiteering indulged in by our super-patriots during the war period and still practiced to an extent that is not in keeping with the general demand for "readjustment."

"A government of the people, by the people and for the people cannot endure half slave and half free." The greatest power for the enforcement of freedom's cause within the province of the workers today is co-operation manifested through the regular and prescribed channels of organization.

From figures compiled by The Western Tobacco Journal, which are based on statistics secured from the regular monthly reports issued by the Internal Revenue Department, we find that there were 6,758,756,368 cigars manufactured during the calendar year 1921. When compared with the previous year a decrease of 1,208,367,967 is shown.

The greatest producing cigar center of the United States during the year 1921 was the First District of Pennsylvania, reporting from Philadelphia, amounting to 1,599,895,317. This, however, was a decrease of 223,999,800 cigars and cheroots from the calendar year of 1920.

The Fifth District of New Jersey ranks second to Pennsylvania in the production of cigars and cheroots, manufacturing a total of 435,972,267, as compared with 494,152,920, a decrease of 58,180,653 cigars and cheroots.

The third largest producing center was the State of Virginia, producing a total of 433,785,793, as compared with 466,467,920, a decrease of 32,681,122 cigars and cheroots.

In the report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics', comparing employment figures in fourteen selected industries for January, 1922, with those for identical establishments in January, 1921, it is shown that the cigar industry decreased 10 per cent. During January, 1922, there were employed 14,245 persons as compared with 15,837 in January, 1921. The amount of the payroll during January, 1922, was $251,378, as compared with $305,060 in the same period last year, a decrease of 17.6 per cent. When comparing January, 1921, with December, 1921, there is a decrease of 13.6 per cent shown in the number of persons employed and a decrease of 15.6 per cent in the amount of the payroll.

An increase of 6.6 per cent was given to 2.9 per cent of the employees in one factory. A 10 per cent decrease in rates of wages was made to 66 per cent of the employees in another factory. The entire force of two establishments had respective wage reductions of 8 per cent and 7½ per cent. The per capita earnings showed a decrease of 2.5 per cent when January and December payrolls were compared. Forces of several establishments were reduced, owing to dull business.

REFERENDUM VOTE ON AMENDMENT OF 187, COVINGTON, KY., TO SECTION 166.

This amendment which proposed that no member interested financially or holding stock or bonds in any cigar company should be permitted to hold any office in the International or local union, was defeated by a vote of 1,648 for and 5,213 against.

Production vs. Distribution.

Chicago, Ill.

In the nation's frenzied attempts aimed to further readjustment many speeches have been made and many barrels of printer's ink have been spread most all of which has been directed toward the producing end of the business game. Practically all action so far taken has been predicated on some plan of lessening production's cost. Little has been said and far less has been done to regulate or modify the cost of distribution, by far the greater menace to a justly right readjustment of the nation's business affairs.

The problems of production and productive cost have been solved by the application of modern machinery to the tasks of the farm and the factory. With our modern equipment and our specialized workmen we can and do produce more goods and at less production cost than any country in the world. Production, therefore, is not the part of the system that most needs readjustment.

A noted economic and business writer recently traced ten billions of dollars worth of goods from the producer to the consumer. He found that "it cost three billions to haul the goods, this amount being distributed to railroads, truckmen, commission merchants, etc. Wholesale jobbers took a toll of two billions and the retailers grabbed five billions more. The public paid twenty billions of dollars for goods that cost only ten billions to produce."

While it cannot be said that all of these ten billions represented profiteering, it is safe to say that profits were added to profits, each unit that handled the product taking a portion, which is usually "all the traffic will bear." To these multiplied and amplified profits can be added bad management and absolute waste, which is clearly manifest in our whole scheme of distribution.

Distribution, then, becomes the meat of the nut that we are in duty bound to crack. Serious thought and applied reason to this end of the game will do more to shape our course into the path of normalcy than all the tirades against the cost of production that have been or may be launched.

The Volstead law has celebrated its second birthday and from all accounts it was an exceedingly "wet" birthday party. We have had two years of constitutional prohibition, in so far as the law is concerned, and it has been two years of flagrant disregard of the law and irreparable damage to health and morals has been done by moonshine and home brew.

The millennium, as prophesied by the proponents of national prohibition, has failed to materialize. We have lost the saloon, something that could have been and was usually regulated at least to the extent of its paying for its own regulation, and have in its place blind tigers, speak-easies and wet cabarets where it is only a matter of having the price as to the amount and quality of liquor served to those who care to indulge. Crime has not decreased, even arrests for drunkenness are in many places reported greater than before the enactment of the law.

Prohibition is not prohibiting, despite the ever increasing cost of trying to make the law effective. The utter disrespect shown this seemingly unpopular law, the graft that has everywhere fastened itself upon its would-be enforcers, is causing a disrespect for all laws and is actually weakening the force of constituted authority. It is not only corrupting our morals by making us a nation of law breakers, it is at the same time seriously injuring the health of thousands due to the fact that we are drinking, especially among the working classes where the exorbitant price demanded for real liquor makes it impossible to get, any vile concoction offered that is supposed to possess "a kick."

The virtues of morality, chastity and decency do not come from legislation; they come from education, right thinking and good example and in none of these is constitutional prohibition furthering a better day.

This is no brief for "hard liquor," which may or may not be a menace and a poison, but it is a call for honest contemplation of state and national affairs that is a stigma on decent, law-abiding citizenship.

Just because prohibition has been written into the Constitution is no reason for its being a subject that we cannot and should not discuss. Through dispassionate discussion and a fair exposure of the truth we can provide legislation that will meet the demands of our citizenship and at the same time properly safeguard them against the evils that may have in the past been associated with the liquor traffic. Honest legislation that will allow the manufacture and sale of light wines and wholesome beer, the abuse of which is practically impossible, will go far toward solving the problem of temperance, which is after all the only thing that should be considered in dealing with the personal habits of the nation.

Fellow Workers:

The union cigar makers throughout Canada are engaged in a desperate struggle with unscrupulous manufacturers who are seeking to impose upon us the vicious "open shop" plan.

We need the active co-operation of every trade unionist to successfully withstand the campaign of the union-busting manufacturers.

Don't allow the retailer to sell you a scab cigar and "ring up" your union earned dime or quarter—that is why open shops prosper and union men suffer.

Always demand the union Blue Label when buying a cigar. That style of co-operation will be a real service to our members and highly creditable to your unionism.

Demand the blue union label and help us win our battle for human justice.

Thanking you in advance for your co-operation and wishing your organization a most prosperous year, I remain,

D. W. KENNEDY, Sec'y-Treas.
J. A. B. of Canada.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 6, 1922.

Our purpose has been accomplished, that of giving our members the privilege of expressing their views upon amendment to Section No. 16 of the International Constitution, which has been adopted by this Local Union. We are in no way interested in the popular vote of the other locals, as the grievance here is purely a local one. This action was necessary through the fact that a well oiled and regulated machine deprived this membership of the open forum and freedom of speech, which is one of the cardinal principles of the C. M. I. U. of A. Those who have fed and nourished this thing, but who now realize it was more than they bargained for, have brought down upon themselves a swift vengeance—the rights of minorities, self determination, to hell with the Constitution, are phrases of present use of these fanatics and Rose-water revolutionists.

A labor union is just what its members want to make it and there is a responsibility that rests upon each and every one of us who are interested in its future welfare and success. We find it our duty, regardless of how painful it sometimes may be, to take drastic action to combat the evil influence that hovers over us like a giant vulture ready to devour the shattered remains of selfishness and greed.

This action taken, Mr. President, was absolutely necessary. The only possible way we could see to save our industry from total destruction. Realizing the need, we used every honorable means to have this amendment seconded, as we were sure you were not in possession of the true facts in this particular case.

The union's business is every member's business and we who have been tireless in our efforts to make this a better organization, to go forward, to progress and overcome the obstacles placed in our way by a few Utopian dreamers, who are not at peace with one another. The issue is very clear and we who have the most to lose can not do else but throw our united strength against this menace to the International Union.

So at last the chains of dictatorship have been broken, and the voices of our members have been able to penetrate the evil influence which their agents and communications have flooded your office.

You say in your article of Official Journal, January issue, that Local No. 4 was opposed to this amendment, which was a very sad mistake, because they never was and never will be opposed to anything that is beneficial to the International Union as long as they can openly express their opinion.

Again I wish to say, Mr. President, that my intentions were of the best and if I have erred in any way I sincerely hope that I will be the only one injured by it. I stand for the best interests of the Cigar Makers' International Union first, last and all the time.

Yours fraternally,
FRANK B. HAAS.

Lancaster, Pa.

Have the cigar makers in Lancaster and vicinity received anything like their share of the profits of their production when compared with other localities where men and women get fair treatment and a decent wage, this I believe every cigar maker can say with truthfulness, No. For many years we have worked for an underpaid price and under an unfair condition while the employers whom we worked for enjoyed the standard prices for cigars. During the war period we got some little consideration by getting small voluntary increases, but not in keeping with the increased profits made by the manufacturers from increased prices obtained from the dealer and the consuming public. Shortly after the war the manufacturers started to take away from us the increases given until now they have it all back, and this was done because we had no organization to protest. But they, the manufacturers, organized their forces to keep up the wholesale and retail prices of their product and have been somewhat successful. They joined every organization that they thought would help them along these lines, and every organization they joined did its part to assist them, they issued journals in which was set forth means how to keep up prices, and reasons why the consuming public could not expect any reductions as a consumer but should expect a reduction as a worker. Now if organizations were the thing to protect the manufacturer and a journal necessary to voice their sentiments along these lines, is it not necessary for the cigar makers to organize and have a journal to present their side of the case so they too may secure justice and have the public know if they are getting their share of the profits, as producers you should at least read regularly the paper in which this is printed. Long hours and poor pay has made us some times think that we were not in the land of the free and the home of the brave, but that we were in a territory outside of the United States. Yes, the United States, that great country that gave democracy to the world by the bravery and determination of our sons and fathers and our friends on the battlefields of France.

If nations should have self determination in a political sense how much more should the workers have self determination in the economic world, and, my friends, this can only be secured by us having an organization of our craft to speak for us and voice our wants in the various industries in which we give the best part of our lives as producers. Workers, let us take on a new resolve now during this reconstruction time; let us determine we will employ the same means that nations and the employers are using, namely, organization, that we will organize and educate ourselves so that we can have our representatives sit around the conference table and show the general public why we are entitled to a share of the things that make life worth living, shorter hours, better pay and our share of the profits of the things we produce.

W. A. M., a Cigar Maker.

The following approximate figures are compiled by James Lord, Pres. N. Y. Dist., A. F. of L., showing days worked and wages received by coal miners:

	Average days worked for 1921.	Average annual earnings.
Pittsburgh district	123	$762.00
Ohio district	118	550.00
Indiana district	148
Illinois district	159
Western Kentucky district	*$90.00
West Virginia district	80	500.00

*Per month.

In Tennessee, approximately one-third of the miners worked one-third time, averaging $105.00 a month per man for the time they worked.

REPORT OF ORGANIZERS

Portland, Ore., Mar. 1.

The cigarmakers of Union 202, of Portland, are very active in their efforts to advance the sale of Union Label cigars. They have one proposition on in which they are directly interested and are assisting in many others. This one project is well worthy of mention, and is about as follows: The labor movement of Portland have just about finished one of the largest and best Labor Temples in the United States, most all of the Temple stock is held by labor unions and the individual members of labor unions. The cigar makers took their allotted share of stock, then placed the bonds in the hands of Secretary T. J. Estabrook, who used them to borrow money on. This money to be used to establish a cigar stand on the assembly floor of the Labor Temple and to handle nothing but union made cigars, tobacco and cigarettes, and every dollar made to be used for label agitation work. I am informed by the manager, that in the three months that the stand is in operation they have cleared over and above all expenses the sum of twelve hundred dollars, or an average of four hundred dollars per month. This is now being used to pay off indebtedness, after which Union 202 will have a fine income for label work if this profit continues.

Some of the cigarmakers of Union 202 have been helpful in bringing about the following contract: The Grand Marca Cigar Co., a Portland Union Label Cigar Factory, has contracted with the Mason Ehrman Company, wholesale grocers and cigar jobbers, to distribute a minimum of one million Grand Marca cigars annually, cigars to be Portland made and bearing the Union Label, sixty per cent of which is to be two for twenty-five cent goods, from the above we are compelled to say that the future looks very good for Portland and the cigar-makers union.

Since my last letter have addressed the following labor unions: Int. Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Cooks and Waiters Union No. 220, Hodcarriers and Building Laborers' Union, Plasterers' Union No. 6, Barbers' Union No. 431, Carpenters Union No. 1040, Maintenance of Way and Railroad Employees, and the Musicians' Union, all of above in Eureka, Calif. The Trades and Labor Council, Plumbers' Union, Machinists' Union, Meat Cutters' Union, Cooks and Assistants' Union, Electrical Workers' Union No. 125, Laundry Workers' Union No. 79, Tailors' Union No. 74, Boilermakers' Union No. 689, Barbers' Union No. 75, Street Carmen's Union No. 757, Plasterers' Union No. 82, Brewery Workers' Union, Railway Carmen's Union, Millmen's Union No. 1120, Sheet Metal Workers' Union 628, and the Building Laborers' Union of Portland, Oregon. Visited the city of Astoria, Oregon, and addressed special meeting of Cigarmakers' Union No. 425 and the Trades and Labor Council of Astoria. Am leaving tomorrow for Tacoma, Wash.

J. E. FARRELL,
General Organizer.

London, Canada, March 6.

Feb. 6 to 16: I worked in St. Thomas, carrying on label agitation. Was supported in this work by delegates from the central body. While here I assisted secretary of Union 420 in the closing of the affairs of said local, as this was found necessary owing to the severe industrial depression, as members have left city and there are not sufficient members to carry on the business. Former members, not working at the trade at present, look for a revival in the cigar industry and with it the re-establishment of the local. I addressed meetings of railway men, blacksmiths, machinists, Bro. Carmen, Bro. Trainmen.

I then went to Brantford at the request of the central body, who have taken an interest in our cause, and will keep us informed with their efforts to secure a union cigar factory by agitating among cigar makers in the city. While here I explained conditions which exist in local factory; also addressed mass meeting of men and women and urged for the formation of a purchasing league.

Feb. 12 to date at London: Carrying on label campaign. I addressed regular meeting of 278. Committee of five have taken up the work of label agitation, and I am giving what assistance I can to make it a success. I addressed the following meetings to date: Trade Council, who are co-operating with committee; campaign was opened on the 16th of February by Union 278 at entertainment and dance. Vice-President D. W. Kennedy gave interesting talk on label matters on the local situation; blacksmiths, brewery and soft drinks workers, bricklayers, painters, machinists, carpenters, moulders, inside wood workers, bookbinders' committee, plumbers, metal polishers and all regular and executive meetings of Union 278. Distributed cards and circulars, visited cigar dealers.

In an effort to counteract the activities of the non-union manufacturers the J. A. B. is sending out circular letters and cards giving the names of union manufacturers with the brands and prices of union made cigars.

Union 55 of Hamilton is carrying on a window display campaign during the buy at home week. Dealers give their window space free for the week and display only blue label cigars. Suitable prizes are given for the best display. Our sister unions should adopt this method. They would find it a good business proposition and advance the sales of blue label cigars.

Yours fraternally,

JAS. A. SULLIVAN,
Int'l Org.

McSherrystown, Pa., March 9, 1922.

During my stay at Elmira during the first part of February, I assisted the committee and officers of Union 52 in adjusting a difficulty with the largest manufacturer under their jurisdiction. After several conferences an agreement was reached and adopted by a vote of the union. I proceeded from Elmira, N. Y., to Jamestown, N. Y., where a labor forward movement was in progress under the supervision of an organizer of the A. F. of L. Remained at Jamestown several days and visited several local unions, speaking on the use of the union label. Also addressed meeting of secretaries of all local unions and spoke at meeting of Central Labor Union. On my way back to again take up the campaign of organization in Pennsylvania I stopped at Warren, Pa., where I found they had made an application for a reduction which had been disapproved. The majority of the members of Union 122 desired to call a special meeting of union and have me take some part in the committee visiting the manufacturers. This I refused to do. They called a special meeting to protest against the action of the minority who had sent out protests against the application when submitted and some of the members called upon me to express an opinion. This I refused to do, holding it was a matter for the members of Union 122 to decide—leaving the matter to be dealt with by the members of Union 122, I proceeded to York, Pa., and conferred with the officers of Union 242. Spoke at meeting of York Central Labor Union, then proceeded to McSherrystown, Pa.

Fraternally yours,
WM. A. McCABE, Organizer.

New York, March 6, 1922.

We are pleased to report at this time that the drive in our campaign to organize the unorganized workers in our trade is creating such a fine spirit that it inspires us with more confidence each day, and we are looking forward for the unorganized workers to respond to our call so that we will be better fortified to create higher standards and human rights for the workers in our industry.

Each day we are distributing circulars to the workers as they come out of the unorganized shops. The circulars are accepted in a good spirit and read with favorable reports, that lead us to believe that the workers realize that only through organization will they secure better wages and better working conditions.

We are receiving wonderful co-operation from the men and women who are interested in the advancement of the workers.

The Women's Trade Union League are giving us their services, as many as six or seven women in one night, distributing circulars and talking to the girls and women as they leave the factories, and the willing spirit to do some good deserves the highest appreciation.

The union is placing one or two men, according to the size of the shop, to assist these women, and the work is splendidly performed.

The officers of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, who have so successfully built up one of the grandest organizations for their workers, is bending every effort, with the fullest co-operation that they can give, to convince the cigar workers that they must organize if they wish to secure wages and conditions the same as the workers have secured in other industries which are organized.

We are also getting the finest co-operation from the press that is always standing by the side of labor. The labor editors of the Jewish Daily Forward and the New York Call, who are men of knowledge and understanding, and who know the real life and need of the workers, are appealing to the cigar workers to join their trade organization.

We are going to hold a mass meeting on Sunday, March 26, at the Central Opera House, New York. Some of the most honored and representative men of labor and the labor press have consented to address the workers at that meeting. With this urgent appeal to the cigar workers to organize coming from the men and women who are recognized as the real friends of the workers we fail to understand why there can be any more excuses offered by the cigar workers why they should remain outside of the C. M. I. U. Trusting that our appeal will be answered by the cigar workers for a better day,

I am

Yours fraternally,

MAURICE SIMONS,

Dunkirk, N. Y., Feb. 4, 1922.

Since my last report I have visited many localities throughout the eastern part of Pennsylvania. The conditions in the cigar industry is very bad to say the least. The big non-union firms are on the job curtailing production. It is very evident to me the purpose being to further reduce the wages of the cigar and tobacco workers.

In concluding my last report I stated I was working in Easton, Pa., where the Cigarmakers Union 466 was resisting a reduction. Early in December, 1921, or late in November, the proprietor, John Workheiser, of the Menline Cigar Company, an establishment of some 40 years standing, and for the last 21 years operating as a strict union label shop and with the best advertised brands of any in this locality, saw fit to demand a reduction in the bill of prices of Union 466 from three to four dollars per M., reducing the income of the cigar makers from six to eight dollars per week, with a threat that if it was not granted he would close the shop and have his cigars made in another jurisdiction, and if he could not accomplish this he would have them made under the open shop conditions. The consequence was after negotiations for a settlement were closed, Union 466 made application to strike which was approved by the International Executive Board and on Dec. 30, 1921, the strike was on.

While in Easton I visited all the local trade union meetings available, relating the controversy between the Menline Cigar Co. and Union 466.

Jan. 8th I attended a large labor demonstration held in the Lyric Theater in Allentown in behalf of the Lady Garment Workers under the auspices of the Central Trades and Labor Council.

Jan. 9, 10 and 11 I continued my efforts in behalf of Union 466 of Easton against the Menline Cigar Co.

Jan. 12 Went to Ephrata, Pa., and found the brand "Havana Tag Cigar," owned by an Easton manufacturer, was being made under the Ephrata bill which is lower than the Easton bill, and succeeded in having this violation discontinued.

Jan. 13th I went to Lancaster, Pa. While there was asked to attend a meeting of the Machinists' Union. Our campaign for organizing the cigarmakers was up for consideration, and they again pledged their support in our behalf.

Jan. 18, 19 and 20 visited Quakertown, Perkasie and Sellersville, all of these organizations to assist in the distribution of circulars to the cigar and tobacco workers for organization purposes, although many are out of employment, others working short time and on a limit.

Jan. 21 went to Lancaster and on Jan. 22 attended a meeting of Local Union 257, the matter of again circularizing the cigar and tobacco workers was considered, but due to the fact that there was so many out of work it was advisable to hold off for a later date.

From Jan. 24 to Feb. 5 at Easton, visited the following meetings of unions in behalf of Union 466 and their strike and gave label talks: Plumbers, Molders, Hotel and Restaurant Employees, Brewery Workers, Textile Workers and Twisters Unions, Electrical Workers, Railroad Unions, Steam and Electric, Federation of Musicians, Brick Layers, Central Labor Union, Printers.

Feb. 6 returned to Lancaster, attended meeting of Union 257, at which a request for a reduction of their bill was made by one of the manufacturers.

Feb. 7 attended meeting of C. I. U. with delegates from Cigarmakers' Union 257.

Feb. 8 accompanied the committee from our Local 257 to await upon the firm requesting the reduction. Succeeded in having an answer postponed for four weeks while the men continued working.

Feb. 10 went to Lebanon. No activity in any union. Conditions of cigar makers deplorable. Tried too impress their minds how essential it is at this time to be up and doing.

Feb. 12 and 13, Allentown, Pa. Attended meeting of Union 91 called in my behalf, secured the co-operation of the union, and expense allowance to distribute circulars to the non-union cigar and tobacco workers from a list of names I had previously compiled amounting to several hundred.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction among the workers the way these big firms are treating them. A circular accompanying the regular circular explaining why they should now prepare for the time as they put it, "We are going to get back the money that was taken away on reductions."

A lot of unemployment exists in this and surrounding towns due to the depression in the steel industry.

Feb. 14 and 15 in Pottsville. Conditions here are not unlike any other part of the country, is very bad, especially with the cigar makers.

Feb. 16, 17 and 18 in Lancaster. It has developed that the firm who on Feb. 6 requested a reduction of the bill of Union 257 was told by a jobber that the same cigars could be bought at $28 per M., with the label on. In another jurisdiction has been proven false, and it is not likely that this firm will press further for a reduction of the bill. It again demonstrates that unfair means is being used by these men by pitting one organization of manufacturers against another in order to reduce the bills of prices of unions whose bills are already low enough.

February 27 went to Ephrata, Pa., and attended meeting of Local Union 126. The distribution of circulars some weeks ago are having some effect, as they have aroused cigarmakers to talk. The trade is very dull at present, but just as soon as trade warrants another distribution of circulars will be made.

February 28 attended meeting of Lancaster union. Organization work is to be taken up with renewed vigor, and especially the request of the cigarmakers.

March 1 went to Akron, Pa. Only about one-half the cigarmakers in town are employed.

March 3 came to Dunkirk, N. Y., on instructions from International office.

OFFICIAL

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President.
Monon Building, Chicago.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 318 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

L. M. ORNBURN, 286 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

D. W. KENNEDY, 73 Clifton Ave., Niagara Falls, Ont., Third Vice President.

MANUEL GONZALES, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

ALEXANDER RAMSEY, Nevada City, Calif., Sixth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Seventh Vice President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children, and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free, and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks, the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members, secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also, as per Section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request, carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal will" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if there is no such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member; if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

DECISIONS OF EXECUTIVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., March 10, 1922.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by Morris Elowitz, Union No. 90, New York, N. Y., against the decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Ornburn, Kennedy, Gonzales, Hall, Ramsey, Stevens, Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was, the member applied for a strike benefit, claiming he was employed in a factory in which a strike was authorized.

The member claims that while he was not working at the factory at the time the strike was declared, he was an employee thereof but was sick. Upon being able to resume work he applied for strike benefit but it was refused on the basis that he was not an employee of that factory.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That the evidence shows that the factory in question had been closed for an indefinite period; that accordingly the member was not an employee thereof at the time the strike was called; that the member became sick fully two months after the factory was closed and was on the sick list and drawing sick benefits. He remained on that list until the union made application for a strike in this case; that since the member was not an employee of the factory at the time the strike was approved he is not eligible to strike benefits.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally,

SAM'L GOMPERS
First Vice-President.

Washington, D. C., March 10, 1922.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by Union No. 17 of Cleveland, Ohio, against the decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Ornburn, Kennedy, Gonzales, Hall, Ramsey, Stevens, Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was, the union made application for lockout benefits, as they claim, in conformity with Section 80 of the constitution.

The International President gave a decision that this was not a lockout under the constitution, but was a strike. The union claims that the members were locked out; that Sections 79 and 87 should not apply in that case. The union claims that the members were entitled to lockout benefits from June 27 to July 12, the date of settlement.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That this is really an appeal against the constitution; that there was no lockout, but a strike against the reduction of bill of prices. That Section 79 of the constitution says: "The International Union guarantees its moral and pecuniary support to all of its members in difficulties which may arise between them and their employers, and benefits shall commence on the date when the difficulty is approved by the authorities of the International Union." Accordingly the application to resist the reduction of wages was approved on July 11, and the union notified that the benefits commenced on that date; that the decision of the International President was in strict conformity with the constitution.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally,

SAM'L GOMPERS
First Vice-President.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and international assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter. In the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months, a member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrears of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments, and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices), shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequently thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example—a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the re-aining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 22, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

UNION NOTES

By Union 97, Boston: Boston Central Labor Union is to undertake agitation and organization meetings in various sections of the city.—Boston is deeply interested in the strikes in the textile industry. — High school teachers are agitating for equal pay for equal work.—Trustees of public library ask that members of organized labor patronize the central and branch libraries.—What benefit has the consumer received from wage reductions, and where has it resulted in an increase of employees?—The label is our only weapon; boom it, and don't do it spasmodically but do it fifty-two weeks in the year; again, don't forget the other fellow's label or window card or button; be consistent. Do as you wish to be done by.—Why cannot every friend of organized labor, be he conservative or radical, stand shoulder to shoulder while organized capital is endeavoring to destroy the labor movement.—Demand the union label.—Let federation, not consolidation, be our motto.—Do you read the Journal? Do you read it all?—We are not going back to serfdom or the feudal system.—Better times are coming. Don't give up the ship.—You can't lick the trust by smoking trust-made cigarettes.—"This is the hour that tries men's souls."—Raise school age to 16.—Massachusetts will get a free state university. Do you know what this means to your boy and girl?

The name of Gustave Beisler is needed on a real estate deed. And it is necessary to find out whether he is living or dead. The secretary holding his card is requested to notify this office.

"As the money magnates with their affiliated banks have made practically all the profits out of the war, they should be made to pay the bonus to the soldiers who won the war," said Senator Ladd, in discussing methods to raise money for the soldiers' bonus.

The North Dakota lawmaker declared that the banking interests, through the American Banking Association, is lining up the United States Chamber of Commerce and the industrial trusts "to defeat the soldiers' bonus or to put it upon the taxpayers who can least afford to pay it.

"If a real investigation were made," said Senator Ladd, "it would show that the investment bankers of the financial centers of this country have made more than $20,000,000,000 out of this war, as shown by their increase in assets, capital stock, surplus, dividends and other profits, which should be taxed back into the treasury.

"There is no question as to the banks having made unheard of profits during the war and they should be made to disgorge."—American Federation of Labor News Letter.

The widespread propaganda that a standard wage be fixed and that this standard be adjusted to meet the Standard Wage. bare cost of living is wrong in principle and unjust in spirit.

Labor demands, and is entitled to, an advancing standard of life based on a wage in keeping with the progress of living conditions as a whole. A "living wage" provides nothing beyond the minimum of food, shelter and clothing. Food and shelter are furnished the beasts of the field and nature wisely provides them clothing, thus a standard of living for human beings fixed on a living wage is beastly, pernicious and intolerable.

Labor is entitled to and will ultimately secure enough of the wealth it produces to provide for itself not only a decent living insofar as food, clothing and shelter is concerned, but a proportionate part of the luxuries and playtime pleasures that is now denied it from the fact that present wages are too near the dead level of just enough to sustain life and productivity.

If civilization is to live and progress its foundation cannot rest upon a mass of workers whose lot in life is on a par with beasts of burden and whose toil brings them no more than a mere existence in a world filled with marvelous achievements of joy and comfort wrought by labor's own hands.

Necessities, luxuries, all that we have, represents labor and is measured in labor cost. Waste of labor, the worst waste of all, means that we have less of necessities, less of luxuries and less of all desirable things.

For the past two years there has been on an average of 5,000,000,000 idle workers. Multiply this by 600, the average working days in the two years, and you have the enormous total of three thousand million days' labor wasted through the idleness of these workers.

This appalling loss is in no way chargeable to labor. It can, and should be, charged directly to capital and to management's wasteful system of production and distribution. Idle workers, idleness in the main, is the fault of the employer who of course as an individual is only a creature of the whole employing, producing and distributing system. Workers as a general rule are not only willing to work steadily but are insistent that steady work be provided them. In fact steady employment is necessary to maintain a decent progressively advancing standard of living.

In the face of the facts and the figures our government is quite calm, even indifferent about it. Despite this seeming indifference on the part of government and government officials this waste through unemployment, idleness, is one of our greatest problems. It will, unless remedied, soon become our greatest menace. Are our representatives in governmental affairs going to continue to assume no more than the position of the careless onlooker at a raging conflagration?

The federal trade commission has had the Pittsburgh plus price of steel under consideration since 1918, but Pittsburgh Plus. as yet no decision has been given on its merit or demerit, nor has anything been done to stop it.

This pernicious system of banditry is adding a heavy toll to the already excessive cost of building material and is thus robbing the worker whether he is a home owner or a renter.

Theoretical freight rates on commodities that have never been in a car are added to the cost of the article and so taken from the pockets of the consumer, are worse than highway robbery.

The middle west, the west and the south are no longer dependent on Pittsburgh for steel and they should not be denied a price for it that is in keeping with the cost of production at the various plants in their own immediate territory, plants situated in many cases in proximity to rich iron and coal deposits.

Steel manufacturers demand that wages be cut to the lowest possible level under which workers can exist and produce yet demand for themselves a price for the finished product to which has been added something that has in no way entered into the cost of production, viz., the freight rate from Pittsburgh to the place where the steel is fabricated even be it Pueblo, Colo.

Labor unions are indicted and injunctions are granted against them when a claim is made that they are doing or might do something in "Restraint of trade," but the steel trust is seemingly immune. Page the Attorney General.

Despite the failure of "Can't strike," class legislation in England, its collapse in Australia, and in the face of today's bitter dissension in Kansas and Colorado, proponents of this vicious creed are continuously on the job clamoring for the enactment of such unjust legislation in some form or other.

Dress it as they may, these emissaries of profit cannot conceal the blood raw, inhuman viciousness of their one-sided proposal. With the enactment of such legislation, modified as it may be, equality before the law becomes a dead letter. It tears apart the very foundation of our government that is dedicated to freedom. It puts workers apart and separate from other groups and forces them to work against their will. It is class legislation of the worst sort and revives the long discarded theory of master and slave.

Bear this in mind, under the various proposals the workers are the only ones compelled to give service. They alone are forced to accept the edict of the machinery of state. None but they who toil are denied the right to set their own standard of living and none but they who produce the nation's wealth are called upon to give "Service to the public."

Many arguments both verbal and editorial that are put forth in affirmation of proposed legislation of this kind lay great stress on this sophism, "Service to the public." What does it amount to on the part of others aside from the workers? What corporation, monopolist or private employer ever pays any attention to "Service to the public?" Yet it becomes a creed in the mouths of these individualists to gain a measure of public opinion in support of their retroactive desires.

It is our duty to oppose such laws before they are enacted and not to recognize them if they should be enacted. It should be our pleasure to sink without a trace in the deep sea of political oblivion any legislator who favors such laws by either voice or by vote.

Five years ago this month the United States entered the war against Germany. Marching soldiers, anxious mothers and flag-waving profiteers were everywhere in evidence. Bond drives, Red Cross drives and various other "sinews of war" propaganda were the order of the day. The marching soldiers, hailed on every hand as popular heroes, were being promised everything and we declared ourselves in the war to the finish to "Make the World Safe for Democracy."

On exactly the same date five years later we read that eight thousand miners, peacefully parading in Pennsylvania, were charged by mounted State Troopers and thirty of the miners were injured. Among those marching miners were many who had "done their bit" to forever crush Autocracy abroad. We now find Autocracy raising its bedeviled head in American industrial life, firm in its determination to crush organized labor. The day of Autocracy enthroned, be it in governmental or industrial life, is fast waning and the power of might over right cannot endure.

The following is an extract from a speech of the Honorable George Huddleston, Alabama, in the House of Representatives, Dec. 6, 1921. It is so fundamentally true and so tersely put that no comment is necessary:

"I hold no brief for organized labor. I am interested more in organized than unorganized labor merely because organized labor is the fighting force of all labor. It is like the army that goes to the front and into the trenches to defend the women and children back home. Never was a battle fought by organized labor that the humblest unorganized toiler did not receive some benefit from it. Never was a sacrifice made by labor organizations that was not made on behalf of unorganized men as much as for themselves. And for the same reason it is true that never was there a labor hater who wanted to grind down men who toil, who regarded them as belonging to an inferior social order, who wanted to oppress all laborers, who did not fight labor organizations fully conscious that when once he had destroyed the organizations unorganized labor would fall an easy victim. And so every employer who wants cheap labor, who wants to oppress labor, who wants to make an unjust profit out of labor, every man who believes in differences in social orders, every man who belongs to the employing class and recognizes his duty to his class and strength of the solidarity of his class takes off his coat and goes down to do battle with organized labor."

A reason for a "Farm Bloc" in Congress may be found in an experience of a western farmer. This farmer and stockman found himself in need of ready money and marketed lambs for 75c each through his local bank in order to satisfy a pressing claim. He then went to New York to try to borrow a larger sum of money on his extensive landed interests, his local bank not being able to float the larger loan. On his arrival in the eastern metropolis he was charged 90c for ONE lamb chop in a restaurant.

It is this vast difference between the price paid the producer and the price charged the consumer that makes not only a Farm Bloc necessary but a Labor Bloc as well, the two co-operating for the best interests of the greatest number, the workers. Fifteen cents more for a single lamb chop on the plate of the producer than he had just received for a whole lamb in his local market made this farmer realize that something is wrong. When the great mass of farmers and the great mass of industrial workers unite with the determination to remedy this ever increasing evil by co-operation and unity of action, we hope to successfully curb the middle man who is usually a profiteer.

TRADE NOTES.

According to reports of the Internal Revenue Department the total stock of leaf tobacco suitable for wrappers and fillers held in bonded warehouses on January 31, 1922, amounted to 63,828,078 pounds. This amount is a decrease of 12,423,578 pounds when compared with the same date of last year.

The following table gives in detail the amount of tobacco, both wrappers and fillers, remaining in bonded warehouses of this country on January 31, 1922 and 1921:

	Pounds.	Pounds.
Leaf, suitable for wrappers.	3,637,701	7,750,133

The world has a roseate hue for stockholders of the American tobacco company, which announces that record profits were made last year. These profits total $18,117,236, as against $14,277,250 the previous year. The immensity of these profits can be appreciated when it is recalled that they are exclusive of all charges, and do not include even interest on bonds or magnificent salaries that "insiders" vote to themselves.

Contractors Exploit Public While Blaming "High Wages."

The excessive cost of labor in building construction was placed on contractors by Samuel Untermeyer, counsel for the Lockwood committee, in a letter to Walter Strabler.

The latter is a life insurance official and head of a self-constituted "public" group which is "fussing around" in an effort to prove that labor is responsible for high building costs.

Attorney Untermeyer gives Strabler something to think about—and to act on, also, by reminding him of testimony developed last year by the Lockwood committee, and which is ignored by those who blame labor for high building costs.

This testimony shows that contractors charge the public 60 and 70 per cent more than they actually pay their workers, and in some instances charge two and three times more than they pay them. The contractors, of course, assure the customer, that "the union is responsible" for the high rates he is forced to pay.

"About the worst case of exploitation," said Mr. Untermeyer, "is that practiced by the architectural iron association, which charged $144 a week for the services of finishers and helpers, whose total wage was $47. The customer was charged $72 a week for a blaster, but the wage for that work was $45. A marble setter and helper jointly received $16 a day, but the customer paid $25.75. A marble polisher was paid $8.50 a day, but this work cost the customer $13.75 a day.

Electrical contractors charged $17.60 a day for foremen who actually receive $10 a day. The customer is charged $14.40 a day for electrical journeymen, who are paid $9 a day.

Heating and piping contractors charge $22 a day for a steamfitter and helper, whose combined wage rate is $12 a day.

Tile layers and helpers who together received $14 a day were charged for at the rate of $3 per hour or $24 a day.

The ornamental bronze and iron association charged at the rate of $3.50 an hour or about $147 a week for draftsmen who are paid $60 a week. Foundry molders who were paid 90 cents an hour were charged for at the rate of $3 an hour. Helpers, receiving 52½ cents an hour, were charged for at $2.25 an hour.

"These are illustrative cases," concluded Attorney Untermeyer. "I think that demonstrates clearly where the chief responsibility lies for the excessive item of labor in building construction."

Liberty Must Stand.

All workers will be interested in the cartoon, which Artist Baer has drawn this month, because it tells the story of liberty's stand against those who would tear her down. Working people always have been the defenders of liberty. There is but little liberty in the world that was not won by the sacrifice and the blood of the working people.

Those who do not work; those who throughout the world's history have been the owners and the masters, have not had to fight for liberty because they have had all the liberty they wanted. They have had liberty for themselves, while imposing slavery upon the toiling masses.

Every measure of liberty gained by working people has had to be held by them against continuous assault by those from whom it was forced. Assaults on liberty take different forms as time and conditions change.

It is not necessary in this age to hold human beings as chattels in order to infringe upon liberty. It is necessary only to make conditions under which the free exercise of lawful rights is impossible.

The latest device for the destruction of liberty is the so-called industrial court, such as that existing in Kansas. Strange as it seems, in this advanced age, it is unlawful for men in certain industries in Kansas to cease work. They must either disobey the law or forego their constitutional right. They must disobey the law in order to preserve their liberty. That is what the name "Allen" will mean in American history.

The Allen plan of destroying liberty is beloved of all reactionary employers, because liberty sometimes endangers great profits.

But history will record also that the working people have refused to give up liberty. They have prized liberty above all things.

So valiant has been their fight that it has been impossible to bring about in any other state the passage of bills like that enacted into law in Kansas.

Notable among the states where the followers of Allen have failed are New York, New Jersey and Rhode Island. You will note in Mr. Baer's excellent picture that several of the pigmy figures that are trying to shackle liberty are falling into the sea. These are the failures among the would be tyrants. Allen is among them, for his baleful scheme is failing everywhere, most of all in Kansas.

The picture should hearten all who love liberty. It should strengthen their resolve and make clearer the great issue involved.

Liberty must stand, to enlighten the lives of workers everywhere, to light the way to the great future, which will be worth while only as it is dominated more and more by the spirit of liberty.

And, with the united support of the workers, liberty will stand secure against all the assaults of greed and tyranny!—American Federationist.

CORRESPONDENCE

In order to make prohibition an absolute fact instead of a legal fiction, as it is at the present time, it becomes necessary that prohibition shall cease to attempt to prohibit the use of beverages that are non-intoxicating.

The Volstead law which prohibits the manufacture, sale, etc., of intoxicating liquors and defines such intoxicating liquors as those which contain one-half of one per cent alcohol by volume is faulty because it defines something as intoxicating that is not so.

Drunkenness is vicious, debasing and intolerable, but the removal of the ban on beverages that are non-intoxicating will go far to prevent drunkenness and promote temperance, which is after all the better thing to encourage and strive for. The iron-clad law that we now have, and that we so generally disregard, has only served to further the manufacture and the sale of beverages not only highly intoxicating but largely poisonous as well. The law undertakes to do the unnecessary and the impossible thing and in so doing fails utterly to do any good at all.

These days of excessive prohibition laws that do not prohibit, causing as they do an ever increasing stream of moonshine, hooch and homebrew to flow freely to the detriment of all concerned, must rightfully give way to a day of wiser and more sensible restrictive measure. Light wine and beer will lessen rather than increase drunkenness and the efforts of fair-minded, unprejudiced men and women should be turned toward the solution of a problem that is now intolerable.

R. E. VAN HORN.

Peoria, Ill., April 5, 1922.

The F. P. Lewis Cigar Co., better known as The Lewis Single Binder Cigar Co., is still on the W. D. P. list both by the State Federation of Labor of Illinois and the Trades Assembly of Peoria, Ill. After F. P. Lewis died, a company of shareholders took the business over and ran it on a down-grade for some time. They reduced wages twice. The second reduction the cigarmakers struck the shop and appealed to 118 to help them, which we did. They agreed to hold out for what they had been getting under Lewis. After we had everything ready to put up a finished fight, which cost us about $500, the men weakened and went back to work, leaving us to hold the bag. True, many of them took out cards and left town; some few got work in union shops in town. The new company succeeded with our help in reducing their force from 125 cigarmakers to 35.

They unloaded their dead horse on the present owner, an ex-leaf tobacco man by the name of Miller, who had a rich father-in-law who accommodately died just as son-in-law needed the money. This man Miller at once went to the cheapest of cheap labor bosses, put in bunch machines and got girls and women to learn the trade. He happened in on the war trade and should have made some money, as he employed about 100 making cigars for a while paying $7.00 per thousand and selling for $55.00 per thousand, but when the war was over his cheap labor began to tell in the sale of his goods. His Lewis single binder was shot.

He then conceived the idea of putting his 10 cent cigar over the top. He put his best ready to wear cigarmakers to work on the Emmerson, a 10 cent cigar, leaving the rest to go to. When he was all ready he flooded the country and Peoria in particular with fine window displays, advertising what a good mild smoke his Emmerson ten cent cigar was. At the same time the Association of Commerce issued a boycott on all union label goods, demanding that all dealers refuse to handle union label goods. Said demand carried a threat that action would be taken against them if they persisted in handling union label goods. The Emmerson ten cent cigar went by the board the same as his Lewis Single Binder eight cent cigar. Now he is trying to come back with the Single Binder as a five cent cigar. We also have with us a strike shop from Milwaukee, the Milola, but it does but little business in or around Peoria. The Milola is on the W. D. P. list by the Trades Assembly of Peoria.

A non-union shop at Ottumwa, Iowa, started a branch shop here, but they did not seem to like our city, for they rolled up their wrapper clothes and slipped away.

There have been many small cigar shops come to Peoria on the strength of the Association of Commerce advertising that this town is a haven of rest for all cheap labor concerns, but they either go broke or quietly leave town. The latest arrival hails from Mt. Vernon. They came in with a splurge and I expect they will go out with a splash. They claimed they were going to employ sixty people. The latest, up to date, they have one man and two girls working. They pay 20 cents a hundred for breaking bunches and 40 cents for rolling. Some of the girls at the Lewis Single Binder shop get as low as 16 cents for breaking bunches, to show how well the enemies of labor are organized. The Trades Assembly, by request of the Carpenters' Union, placed the Hokias & Sons' Cigar Box Factory on the W. D. P. list.

The Lewis Single Binder Co. had been using union made boxes, either because they got the union made boxes cheaper or to fool the smoker. We understand that the Association of Commerce notified Miller to give his entire trade to Hokias & Sons. We naturally suppose he will obey as he belongs to nearly all the trade union busting organizations in the city and depends on those organizations to boost him along.

They, the open shoppers, seem to down the union label, but it won't stay down and it won't stay down as long as union men and women demand and insist on having the union label on the articles they buy.

REPORT OF ORGANIZERS

New York, April 4, 1932.

Wish to inform you that the drive made in New York for the campaign for organization has created a most wonderful spirit among the workers in our trade and we are not going to let up until the cigar trade is organized in New York. We intend to continue our campaign with greater confidence and vigor until the cigar workers realize that the only hope for better wages and conditions must come through their trade organization. The Cigar Makers' Int. Union has its doors wide open to receive them and the sooner they enter the sooner will they fortify themselves with a strong organization that will have strength enough to demand of the manufacturers that they pay back to them the wages and conditions which they struggled and sacrificed for and as human beings have their just rights restored to them, so that they will be allowed to have a free pursuit of happiness, freedom, justice and humanity.

On Sunday, March 26, we held a mass meeting in New York which was attended by about 3,000 men and women of our trade. It was one of the most successful meetings of its kind ever held in New York. The following representative men addressed the meeting: Geo. W. Perkins, Int. President, C. M. I. U.; Samuel Gompers, 1st Vice-president C. M. I. U.; president A. F. of L.; Benjamin Schlesinger, Int. president Ladies Garment Workers' Union; Wm. Kehoe, secretary Central Trades and Labor Council of New York; Max Pine, secretary of Hebrew Trades; Luigi Antonini, general secretary Local 89, Italian Waist Makers' Union; Chas. W. Ervin, editor of New York Call; Harry Lang, labor editor Jewish Daily Forward; John Sullivan, chairman of meeting, president Central Trades and Labor Council of Greater New York. The representative men of other trades as well as the men who represented the labor press spoke to the cigar workers and urged upon them to join the C. M. I. U. and pledged the support of their organizations in the interests of the men and women in the cigar trade.

The result of this meeting has been that the men and women who have been discouraged, who have lost hope, who have lost confidence in themselves, have been awakened by the call of the C. M. I. U., their trade organization, that has ignited the spark that has awakened and revived the spirit, the intellect, the human force, and with a ringing appeal to them for solidarity that will free them from the chains that bind them to those miserable unorganized conditions. A great many who have been disheartened by the unjust advantages imposed upon them by the manufacturers have been convinced that as individuals they have no power to resist, nor any power to create better conditions for themselves and have no voice and can expect no help from the employers, and that the solidarity of the workers in a strong organization is the only means that can resist the onslaught of capital and protect the interests of the workers.

The Cigar Makers' International Union is going on in its work. We are going to continue the work; we will allow nothing to halt us; we are going to organize. We say it can be done! MAURICE SIMONS, Org., New York.

Philadelphia, April, 1932.

Acting under instructions, proceeded to Philadelphia, to carry out the plan of campaign as mapped out by the International president, in conjunction with the International executive board at its meeting held in the City of New York last September.

The idea was to launch a campaign drive, to create sentiment amongst the unorganized cigarmakers, both men and women, to affiliate themselves with the International Union.

On my arrival here I found a condition of apathy and indifference on the part of our own members that was most astounding.

In order to overcome this situation, it became necessary to get their good will and hearty co-operation. This I am pleased to say has been to a very large extent accomplished. The officials and numerous members, as well as the Local executive board, are working in complete accord with the three organizers assigned here to carry on this drive for new members.

The Local executive board, Union No. 165, at its meeting held here this week took up the question of devising ways and means how to finance, at least to a certain extent, the work of the organizers.

While the International Union has furnished literature, couched in the English and Jewish languages, yet we must have a contingent fund to meet some expenses that cannot be anticipated, as such instances do arise.

However, am pleased to say the Local executive board will make recommendations of some kind to the members at their regular meeting to be held this week, to see what can be done to assist us.

The Jewish newspaper, the Forwards, has promised to furnish us with all the publicity we may need in our campaign drive. After giving the editor, Mr. Planowitz, an interview, he wrote an editorial for the Forwards, setting forth the objects of our campaign.

The management of the Forwards have promised all the space we may need to spread our propaganda.

There are five Cloakmakers' unions here. They held a joint mass meeting last week and upon invitation of their business agent and their executive board the three organizers, including Mr. Hernfeld, made their appearance at their meeting.

Mr. Max Amdur made the introductory speech and must say he showed a wonderful familiarity with the deplorable conditions that prevail in the cigar industry here in this city.

Then Mr. Hernfeld followed with a splendid appeal to these workers engaged in the needle industry to give us their moral support, to use their influence with their friends engaged in the cigar industry to affiliate themselves with our union.

The Women's Trade Union League, through the efforts of Miss Pauline Newman, have interested themselves in our behalf, some of these workers going with us to the different unorganized shops, aiding us in the distribution of the leaflets, all of which is very much appreciated. This work of distributing these leaflets has been done by these members of the garment workers' unions without any compensation, refusing to take anything but car fare.

Progress along the lines of organization will of course be somewhat slow, many of the workers here in our industry not having the faintest idea of trades unions and their objects.

Many are working with automatic cigar machines; others are using suction tables. Nothing is left undone by the bosses in these trust shops and factories to poison the minds of these women and girls against anything that savors of trades unionism. These trust manufacturers fully realize that if ever these workers absorb some idea of what a benefit the union would mean to them, the frequent reductions they have had to accept recently, would not be accomplished without some show of resistance on part of these workers.

SOL SONTHEIMER.

Seattle, Wash., April 1, 1932.

The conditions of the cigar trade here could not be much worse in a city in which the leaders of the labor unions boast of having over thirty thousand organized workers. That cigarmakers have at this writing so few journeymen cigarmakers at work, is proof sufficient that the members of labor unions of Seattle do not smoke union cigars. Many excuses and apologies are made for the failure of the workers to smoke home-made union made cigars. I am told, however, that in some sections of the city Manila (Philippine Islands) cigars sold three for ten cents and are finding a good market, and those sections are the stronghold of many of the organizations of labor. Much blame must be attached to the members of Union 188 for the above conditions, on account of their failing to do one thing that will encourage the sale of union-made cigars. We are represented at the Trades and Labor Council by one of the small manufacturers because no members can be found who will serve as delegates. We have no delegates who attend the Union Label section. In fact, Union 188 are almost outside of the labor movement. If as much time and energy were spent in doing good as is spent in finding fault with the International Union and its officers, some good would be accomplished. Secretary Ed Coenen is willing to do everything that it is possible for a man to do, and a few other quite active members are also willing to do their part, but they are prevented on account of a majority of the members who can see no good in anything and who spend their time finding fault. I believe that our conditions in the coming year are going to be measured by what we do for ourselves, so make up your mind that you are going to do your part for the sale of union cigars. You owe it to yourself, your family and your organization.

Since my last letter, in company with local committees of several unions we have visited and addressed the following labor unions in the interest and sale of union made cigars: The cigarmakers and agitation committee of Union 113, Tacoma, Wash.; Bakers' Union No. 126 of Tacoma, Wash.; Bakery Salesmen's Union of Tacoma; Painters' Union No. 64 of Tacoma; Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' Union No. 313 of Tacoma; Journeymen Tailors No. 68; Longshoremen No. 88; Iron Molders No. 180; Pile Drivers No. 2-24; Boilermakers No. 586; Bricklayers of Tacoma; Garment Workers No. 201; Plasterers' Union No. 71; Trades and Labor Council of Tacoma; Carpenters No. 470; Laundry Workers' Union No. 42, Tacoma; Glaziers and Glass Workers' Union of Tacoma; Auto Machinists, No. 297; Musicians' Association No. 117; Special meeting Union 188, Cigarmakers of Seattle, Wash.; regular meeting of the Seattle Trades and Labor Council; Building Laborers' Union No. 242; Lathers' Union No. 104; Retail Clerks (Grocery); Walters' Union No. 240; Pile Drivers' Union of Seattle; Steel Workers' Union of Seattle; Typographical Union No. 202; Sheet Metal Workers' Union No. 90; Railway Machinists' Union No. 431; Hoisting Engineers' Union No. 302; Carpenters' Union No. 131; Meat Cutters' Union No. 81; Laundry Wagon Drivers' Union No. 566; Auto Mechanics' Union No. 284; Steam Shovelmen's Union No. 43; Laundry Workers' No. 24; Cooks and Assistants No. 33; Shipyard Laborers, Riggers and Fasters No. 38; Iron Molders' Union No. 158; Letter Carriers' Union No. 79.

Philadelphia, April 6, 1932.

On my arrival in McSherrystown I found that one shop that formerly employed members of the union and used the label was on strike for to maintain an organized shop. The committee had waited upon the proprietor and was unable to induce him to recede from his position, he stating that he was going to run an open shop and pay what he pleased.

I suggested to the committee that they endeavor to arrange another conference with this manufacturer if possible to see if we could find some way to reach a ground for settlement.

The committee tried to arrange a meeting with this manufacturer, but he refused to meet with any more committees. On investigation we found this firm had secured another building in a nearby town and was preparing to start a shop in said town by April 1 at reduced prices.

During my stay in McSherrystown I visited Hanover and spoke at a meeting of the Textile Workers and the Carpenters' union. These organizations, with some others of the town, promised to assist in forming a central body whenever the cigarmakers of McSherrystown get ready to proceed with the formation of same.

Under instructions I proceeded to Philadelphia to assist in organization work in this city, which is in a deplorable condition. Shop after shop has cut prices until now the cigarmakers are making cigars for any old price, no matter what size or shape.

Unless they take on some spirit of organization, no one can tell where the reductions will stop or what prices the manufacturers will pay for making cigars. They will not only get back to pre-war prices, but may ask a premium of the makers for the opportunity to work in the shops.

Union No. 119, San Juan, P. R.

The books and accounts of this union are in good condition. Trade is very bad since the beginning of last year, this causing this local not to observe Section 73. Benefit cards, vouchers for all expenses, bills for death benefits and for anything bought by the local all on file properly kept in rotation as the expense occurs. Stamp and cash account corrected by me. The change in the secretaryship has brought some difficulties to this union, such difficulties having been the main reason for this examination. The new secretary, although willing to do the work, is not very familiar with books and accounts, this being the reason why the books for the last three months have been so poorly kept. Ledger posted to date and most of the members in arrears on account of lack of work.

P. RIVERA MARTINEZ,

Statement by Phil E. Ziegler.

By International Labor News Service.

Newport, Ky., Feb. 10.—Kentucky state troops who for the second time were ordered by Governor Morrow to the scene of the strike of employees of the Newport Rolling Mill and the Andrews Steel Co., twin corporations owned by the same interests, put on a fine demonstration of militarism to let the people of Newport know that they were in complete charge of the situation.

Newport citizens are outraged at the conduct of the state troops, who, led by Colonel Benhart, paraded through the business streets of the city blocks away from the strike zone Saturday afternoon ordering people off the street and attacking those who did not promptly obey their orders.

This was a fitting climax to the role the troopers played Thursday night after the homes in the strike zone had been shot up by the paid gunmen employed by Mr. Andrews. After a night made terrible by machine gun fire from the mills the citizens in the strike zone crawled out of their cellars and from behind improvised barricades where they had sought refuge from the deadly machine gun bombardment from the scab infested mill, peered out through their bullet scarred homes to find the positions in the mills that were occupied the night before by the company gunmen now occupied by state troopers; to find rifles, machine guns and tanks that only a little while ago were used to make the world safe for democracy pointed not in the direction of the mill, but in the direction of the very homes that had literally been shot to pieces the night before.

Representatives of the men on strike declare that the demonstration Thursday night, Feb. 2, was wholly unprovoked and was deliberately staged by the mill owners to terrorize the citizens in the hope that a demand would be made for the return of the state troops.

The company was finding it pretty expensive to pay their thugs and gunmen $7 a day, and the scabs unable to stand the jeers of women and children as they went to and from their work were deserting the mill. The troops had to be brought back at any cost, even to the shooting up of the homes of people who had no connection with the strike. The strikers' statement that the bombardment was unprovoked is borne out by Sheriff Tieman of Campbell county, who told me that he was in the strike zone all of Thursday night and did not see a shot fired by strikers or their sympathizers.

The homes in Brighton street immediately in front of the mill are literally shot to pieces. It is miraculous that a score or more of people were not killed.

Public opinion has been on the side of the strikers since in the very beginning of the trouble in July of last year, when the mill owners suddenly broke off negotiations with Local 17 of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

The employees of the Newport Rolling Mill and the Andrews Steel Co. are represented by four locals of the Amalgamated, namely, No. 5, which takes in the hot mill men; 15 and 16, which take in all mechanical crafts of the rolling mill; and 17, which takes in the entire force of the steel plant.

The company had recognized No. 5 for 27 years. When the working agreements with Locals 15, 16 and 17, which had been recognized during the war, expired on June 30th last, the company negotiated a contract with No. 15. No. 17 was called in next and it was while the new contract with No. 17 was being negotiated that the company suddenly and without explanation broke off negotiations and declared for the open shop.

Two hundred men laid down their tools when the strike was called and not a single man has deserted in the seven months the strike has been in progress. It is one of the gamiest fights against the open shop that is being waged anywhere in the country. And the people of Newport, organized and unorganized workers, business and professional men, are with the strikers.

Union Label Week—April 17, 1922.

Fellow Unionists:

In our previous letter we called attention to the fact that the unemployment condition in our country endangers our wage scales and even the existence of our unions. We barely hinted at the possibilities that would follow a concerted demand for union products—products bearing the union label—should the union men and women practice unionism when they spent their wages.

Merchants are in business to make money. They cater to public demand. If the public is indifferent as to the kind of goods they buy, the merchant cannot be blamed. When you buy a union-made article, you are employing a union workman. You are supporting in a practical, substantial way, the principles of collective bargaining. The employer and the employee in that particular industry feel encouraged by this kind of support. It is the only kind of support that counts in business.

Just think! If the 4,000,000 union men in this country were to buy one union-made collar a month what it would mean to that industry. In place of one poor lonely union collar factory, how many others do you suppose would get in line with the union?

We pay dues into our Local and International to establish the principle of collective bargaining. When we get outside of the union meeting, do we forget what our money was paid into the union for? Ah, there is our great weakness. We are not consistent. If we were, wage scales would not be tumbling down the way they are while the prices of the things we need to live on remain high. If we were as consistent spenders as we are due payers, don't you believe there would be less industrial strife in this world of ours? Think it over. ACT on it.

OFFICIAL

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President.

508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 318 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

I. M. ORNBURN, 286 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

D. W. KENNEDY, 73 Clifton Ave., Niagara Falls, Ont., Third Vice President.

MANUEL GONZALES, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

ALEXANDER RAMSEY, Nevada City, Calif., Sixth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Seventh Vice President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also, as per Section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if is such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member. If there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect March 27, 1922, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after March 27 are exempt from payment of the March assessment. Class B members don't have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members don't have to pay the special strike fund assessment.

The headquarters of the Cigar Makers' International Union have been moved. The new address is Room 620, 508 S. Dearborn Street.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $3.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter. In the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months, a member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrears of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments, and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequently thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example—a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

Notes from H. Abrahams: In a similar crisis to the one we are now passing through our Int'l Union saved the labor movement.—There is no room for dual organizations. Mass meeting in New York City was more in the right direction.—Now for label agitation, not spasmodic, but continuous every month, every week, every day.—Remember your employer watches you and he knows the effect of label agitation if you don't.—Boston has assessed itself 10 per cent for the unemployed. This is fraternity.—In times of stress president calls joint meeting of executive board and label committee.—Do you realize that an increase of the tariff bodes us no good? Write to your senators.—The coinage affects our industry.—We are coming back and coming back strong. Remember, the pioneers in the labor movement were persecuted.

We can forget all about our enemies if we will always demand the union label, card and button ourselves.

Constant demand for the union label, card and button means ultimate success for our movement.

SUPPRESSED NEWS!

No. 1.

Editor's Note: Because of suppression of vital news, the International Labor News is going to furnish each week for eight weeks one story suppressed by the daily press. This newspaper will publish one of these suppressed stories each month in an effort to compel attention for vital information hitherto kept from the people. Readers are urged to clip these stories and pass them on to others.

Three Million Dollars on Dummy Loan Charge in Open Senate Session.

Washington, D. C., May 00.—In open Senate, where newspapermen constantly are on watch, Senator Thomas Heflin made the sensational charge that a debtor bank in the federal reserve system made a dummy loan of $3,000,000 to a director of the New York Federal Reserve Bank and that the total loans to this man amounted to $5,000,000.

Not a word was printed about this astounding charge. A decade ago such a charge would have made the press ring with headlines.

Twenty-two years ago the press exposed the fact that the State Trust Company of New York had made a much smaller dummy loan in the name of an office boy. Following exposure of the scandal the State Trust Company was liquidated.

Though Senator Heflin made his amazing charge in open Senate, not a word has been published.

In his statement in the Senate, Heflin named a man of great prominence, banker, politician, magnate, guiding star in the councils of his party, treasurer of the Republican campaign committee.

Said Senator Heflin:

"It looks as if this director, who was accumulating $5,000,000, and who was the treasurer of the Republican campaign committee, thought that his position was a private snap, not a public trust, at that time."

Continuing his arraignment and while alluding to a statement made by the governor of the Federal Reserve Board, Senator Heflin made the flat charge which once would have shaken the country, but which now passes in silence. Here are Senator Heflin's words:

"That was before he journeyed, not to Jericho, but to Marion, Ohio, in the fall of 1920, and that was before William Boyce Thompson, the treasurer of the Republican campaign committee, borrowed partly under a dummy note $5,000,000 through a member of the Federal Reserve Bank in New York."

Senator Heflin poured his startling charges into an abyss of silence so far as the press was concerned. Was it fear, fortune or favor that caused the silence?

No more suppression of unimportant gossip here! Absolute silence about a direct charge of the gravest character involving a man of national reputation, then a director of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, treasurer of the Republican campaign committee, prominent figure in many enterprises, former representative of the Red Cross in Russia with Raymond Robins, apologist for Bolshevism, and millionaire in his own right!

The "Open Shop" movement is much more than a dispute between employer and employee. It is a matter of vital public concern meriting the sober thought and the intelligent attention of the entire nation. On the result of the present clash depends largely the prosperity of our country as a whole and on a fair solution of the problem hinges the standard of life for the vast majority of our people. In fact the near future of our progress is in the balance, forward or backward as the final result will determine.

Those who are not members of labor unions or those who think they have nothing in common with the question of wages, hours and working conditions are apt to think that they have no interest in the matter and if swayed at all are likely to side with the employer, basing their inclinations on the untruths broadcasted by a subsidized press which is generally opposed to organized labor.

If the open shoppers, non-unionists is the better word, for they do not believe in nor tolerate the open shop in their contracts with labor, are successful in their efforts to cripple the power of organization it inevitably means lower wages, longer hours and poorer working conditions. Lower wages means less for the grocer, the butcher, and all tradespeople in general. Longer hours and poorer working conditions means a devitalized working class with the attendant misery oft times relieved only through public charities. The prosperity and comfort of the country is impaired, a money shortage becomes inevitable and a money shortage strikes the doctor, the dentist, the lawyer and the whole so-called professional class as well as it does the merchant. The unorganized worker, for whom the open-shopper has so much sympathy in words, is seriously injured from the fact that his prosperity is but a stolen sweet from the organized worker who pays the toll and sets the standard wage. So we find that, after all, the vast majority of the people are dependent on organized labor and its program of progress for their general welfare and its sympathies intelligently directed should be with labor in the present struggle.

For many years the people demanded some system of taxation that would in a measure at least fall the Tax Schemes. more heavily upon those best able to pay it. Those best able to bear the burden of taxation under any scheme are those whose incomes or profits are sufficient to provide all the necessities and comforts of life and after these things are provided for leaving a surplus or gain.

After long and wearisome delays the present laws providing a tax, graduated, on incomes of more than two thousand dollars for married persons and a tax on excess profits, also graduated, were passed. Crude as they may be, they have proven a boon to the great masses who under their provisions have been relieved from carrying, directly at least, the brunt of the load. These laws, unpopular with the rich and the near rich, are now seemingly slated for the discard, and in their place we may expect to see some form of sales tax. A sales tax means that there are no exemptions, neither is there graduation. We will pay on every particle of food and on every shred of wearing apparel. The rich will be taxed only on what they spend and nothing on what they save. The poor will be taxed on what they spend, which means they will be taxed on all, for they must spend all to exist.

Millions of dollars are being spent by proponents of the sales tax scheme, millions that can well be afforded by the rich as a matter of business, for if the sales tax is substituted for the excess profits tax or any increase in the income tax it will mean more to them than any legislation so far passed by a Congress that is seemingly very partial to the desires of the so-called "business interests."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Smashing attack upon Communists as a whole, but with particular reference to those "working for the capitalists" while with the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, featured yesterday's session of the annual convention of the Garment Workers. The attack was made by Abraham Cahan, editor of the Jewish Daily Forward.—N. Y. World, May 4.

Lack of faith in the union is not the kind of stuff that makes unions strong and prosperous. Faith, courage, devotion to principle, justice, and honesty are helpful guide posts on the road to success, for the union or any other enterprise.

Statements as they apply to the union or any of its activities should always be predicated upon carefully thought out facts.

The long period of industrial stagnation caused a slump in the membership of many of the unions. It also encouraged the open shoppers to redouble their efforts to destroy the unions.

The open shoppers in their determined, unscrupulous attempt to destroy the union have been unsuccessful. Some of the open shoppers don't know this and are still busily engaged in their foolish effort to rid themselves of the "pesky" unions. Labor knows that the union stands between the starvation wages of the unscrupulous non-union manufacturer and decent living wages, and is not going to surrender.

The open shoppers in their efforts to destroy the union are receiving help from unexpected sources. They are aided and abetted by the unfortunate, short-sighted workers, by paid spies and hirelings, and by hollow-pated alleged union men who are always denouncing the union, its officers and members. Some of the statements written and spoken by the dues-paying alleged union men are at once taken up by non-union manufacturers and used to the best advantage as propaganda to keep their short-sighted workers from joining the union.

Victory or defeat is not determined at the moment of crisis, but during the long, unspectacular period of preparation.—Exchange.

During the world war and for some time thereafter people were prone to blame everything that happened to the war. It is true the war ended some time ago, but for the last year and a half or two years we have had a severe period of unemployment during which time there have been from four to six million people unable to find employment. We are not yet out of the depression. The world's war has ended. The war of the open-shoppers has not ended. Unemployment is still with us.

There is always some fundamental reason why certain trades at certain times don't make the progress in organization so ardently desired and so necessary for the protection and advancement of the interests of working men and women. These reasons are known to thoughtful, well-informed members.

Wherever those of a given trade have developed a state of mind that permits them to think they can combat improved methods and means of production a period of stagnation sets in. Those in our own trade who complain ought to know the fundamental causes of periodical gains and slumps in membership before they start assigning causes. If they know the cause and assign some other reason they are destructionists instead of helpful builders. They are tricksters and hypocrites.

Action without intelligent discussion and mature thinking is like shooting without aiming.

Always look before you jump.

Be sure you are right, then go ahead.

TRADE NOTES.

The following comparative data of tax-paid cigars as indicated by the monthly sales of revenue stamps shows the number of cigars manufactured in March, 1922, as compared with the corresponding month of last year:

	March, 1921.	March, 1922.
Cigars (large).
Class A	155,633,318	199,090,745
Class B	168,066,457	125,900,180
Class C	217,194,600	192,458,826
Class D	17,527,302	8,406,207
Class E	2,922,022	3,306,424

Total 561,343,699 529,162,382
Analysis of the above report shows a total loss of 32,181,317, which is distributed over all classifications except Classes A and E, which show gains of 43,457,427 and 384,401 respectively.

The following table shows the number of cigars, by classification, manufactured during the month of March, as compared with the previous month:

	March, 1922.	February, 1922.
Class A	199,090,745	156,126,422
Class B	125,900,180	112,451,275
Class C	192,458,826	169,148,260
Class D	8,406,207	7,343,422
Class E	3,306,424	2,181,401

Total 529,162,382 447,225,986

We find a total gain for the month of 81,936,396. Comparing classifications we find Class A shows a gain of 42,964,317, Class B a gain of 13,418,905, Class C a gain of 23,315,566, Class D a gain of 1,062,585 and Class E a gain of 1,175,023.

As indicated by the foregoing figures the manufacture of cigars is slowly but surely increasing. While the pick up is slow, as it naturally will be considering the general depression of all business from which we are just beginning to recover, our business will revive from the present depression as it has from many previous ones. A good indication is shown in the gain in all classifications for the month of March. While there was a gain in Class A in the previous month of February all other classifications showed a loss which totaled 49,398,496.

Huge Tobacco Profits.

New York, April 13.—The world has a roseate hue for stockholders of the American Tobacco Company, which announces that record profits were made last year. These profits total $18,117,236, as against $14,277,250 the previous year. The immensity of these profits can be appreciated when it is recalled that they are exclusive of all charges, and do not include even interest on bonds or magnificent salaries that "insiders" vote to themselves.—Exchange.

Trade Notes.

Present indications point toward a very fine crop of Havana tobacco this year with an unusually high percentage of wrappers. Rumors, unconfirmed, are that the burn may not be up to the standard, but this fault, if it exists, may be eliminated to some extent in the curing of the crop.

Revenue reports show Tampa's cigar output for March, 1922, totaled 28,201,080. This is better than a million a day for the 27 working days of the month. An extraordinary revival of the nickel trade and a marked improvement in Class B were the most prominent factors of the increased output.

The total stock of leaf tobacco for cigar wrappers and fillers, held in the bonded warehouses of the United States on February 28, 1922, was 65,073,721 pounds, as compared with 78,286,306 in the same period last year, a decline of 13,212,585 pounds.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, Department of Labor, has compiled figures showing the employment and wages paid in 52 cigar factories during the months of March, 1921, and March, 1922. According to the Bureau's figures, there were 15,163 persons employed in these 52 cigar factories in March, 1921, as compared with 15,225 employed in March, 1922, which is an increase of 0.4 per cent. The pay rolls in these factories amounted to $291,517 in March, 1921, as compared with $264,696 in March, 1922, which is a decrease of 9.2 per cent.

The Bureau also shows a comparison between the employment and wages paid in 56 cigar factories in the months of February and March of this year. In February 15,506 persons were employed, increasing slightly in March to 15,837, an increase of 2.1 per cent. The pay rolls in February amounted to $258,450 in these 56 factories, as compared with $275,667 paid in March, showing an increase of 6.7 per cent.

The Bureau has the following to say in connection with changes in wage rates and per capita earnings in the cigar industry during the period from February 15 to March 15, 1922:

"A decrease of 14 per cent in wage rates, affecting 55 per cent of the employees, was reported by one establishment. Two-thirds of the employees in two factories had respective decreases of 10 per cent and 5½ per cent. An increase in per capita earnings of 4.4 per cent was shown when February and March figures were compared.

The following table gives in detail the amount of tobacco both wrappers and fillers, remaining in bonded warehouses of this country on February 28, 1922 and 1921:

	1922. Pounds.	1921. Pounds.
Leaf, suitable for wrappers.	3,591,084	7,047,380
All others	61,482,637	71,238,926
Total	65,073,721	78,286,306

Workers strike primarily because they do not like to be bossed and they dislike to be bossed

"because experience has shown that no man is wise enough to have autocratic power over another man." So said Edward A. Filene, director of the International Chamber of Commerce and Boston department store owner, addressing the Economic Club of New York.

"Men strike," said Mr. Filene, "because they are injured by real mistakes or because they believe themselves to be injured by the terms of their employment. In such strikes they are often unsuccessful and the grievances remain. For these reasons they sometimes dwell upon the objectionable features of their employment until they become tense and bitter. There grows up in consequence a distrust or hate of the whole present system. Irresponsible leaders who voice and trade on this discontent easily get a following. There is also a reaction towards socialism or communism which are presented as panaceas for the ills that are complained of.

"I am forced to the conclusion that as men are constituted at present socialism and communism are not practical remedies.

"I am just as firmly convinced that the present wage system is not infallible or final, but is only a step on the road from serfdom and slavery to improved forms of just and effective co-operation that the experience and wisdom of men will evolve from generation to generation."

Extracts from Mr. Filene's address follow:

Four Fundamental Principles.

My study of industrial relations has convinced me of four things:

1. That in a political democracy such as ours the autocratic control of industry by employers is a fruitful breeder of strikes and is in the long run impractical;
2. That we often pay counterfeit wages when we intend to pay real wages, thus causing discontent, conflict and strikes;
3. That the present so-called capitalistic system has accumulated and is still using, outgrown ideas and customs that are needlessly offensive to our employees, and that it needs to be brought up to date;
4. That the basic remedy for the evils of industrialism and hence for strikes lies in making business a profession—that is, in realizing, in act as well as in thought, that a business has no right to make a profit except as it serves the community.

It all comes to this, that autocratic control whether by employer or employee, is bad—the one almost as objectionable as the other; and that men are striking today as a protest against autocratic control by capital, and as the most effective way of expressing their demand for an adequate voice in the conditions under which they work. They are vitally interested. They will continue to strike until provision is made for giving them adequate representation in boards of directors or in those shop committees, by whatever name they may be called, in which employers and employees work hand in hand to advance both the business and the legitimate interests of the human being who put their lives into it and get their livelihood from it. This is largely recognised by employers now and the growth of these joint committees has for some years been marked.

Counterfeit wages is a term that I have invented—whether good or bad you must judge—to characterize this inadequate wage that comes about from some of the many causes that reduce the purchasing power of money. Counterfeit wages are any wages however large they may be in dollars that will not buy the necessities of life and enough luxuries to make working for necessities a desirable thing and also to enable the recipient to make modest but adequate provision for sickness and old age. Counterfeit money has no value. Counterfeit wages have too little value when measured against the purposes which wages must serve. It is not a question of how much a man receives but of what he can buy for what he gets. Wages may double, but if prices are more than double then wages are counterfeit to the extent that prices have outrun the increased wages.

The return for paying genuine wages rather than counterfeit more than makes up to the employer and to society for the extra money expenditure. The genuine wage tends to provide happy, healthy, contented and loyal employees.

If their wages are adequate to provide the necessities of life for their families and allow also for recreation and provision for illness and old age, they are increasingly freed from worry and are thereby made more efficient employees. If their wages enable them to buy freely, the value of the American market is maintained, to the profit alike of the manufacturer, the farmer and of the workman who makes and the merchant who sells the product of the factory, mine and the farm. Best of all, it will remove one of the most fertile causes of strikes.

An important part of the responsibility for the adequacy of wages must be assumed by us employers. We are sometimes little schooled in theories of social welfare, have little imagination outside of our own immediate field of business management and are prone to think of our duties in terms of money, success or failure to the exclusion of terms of human welfare. It is most often members of our own employer class, also, who turn real wages into counterfeit. This being the case we cannot easily justify ourselves in taking a position of irresponsibility in the premises. The responsibility for reducing the excessive costs of retail distribution belongs to me and to my fellow-retail merchants. We employers should fight all excessive capitalization whose fixed charges help to turn into counterfeit the otherwise adequate wages we pay our employees. Our men of finance should see that the English law is adopted and enforced that requires a statement to be made to every purchaser of stock showing the promoter's profit and the real assets and liabilities of the company. It is up to us to help provide credit unions or other safe and democratic means of saving and investing earnings.

Certain Agreed-Upon Goals.

I do not have time at my disposal in which to discuss at length a social program. I may be indulged, however, in pointing out certain as yet partially achieved goals which a consensus of informed opinion, both among employers and employees, recognizes as practical and just. This moderate program, if achieved, would go far to do away with strikes.

The right of employees to a voice in determining the conditions under which they shall work and to a stable and living wage have already been dealt with. Other goals that are now generally recognized as right and just, include

- (1) the right of employees to unite for purposes of collective bargaining;
- (2) a gradual and reasonable reduction in hours of labor;
- (3) compensation for industrial accidents as a just charge on industry;
- (4) the right of labor to be safeguarded in all matters pertaining to health, steady employment and good working conditions.

Men and women fit for American citizenship, the working hours of whose lives must be spent in stores and factories, in mines and on farms and railroads must and will demand just solutions of such problems as are presented by these statements of principle. It is to the advantage of us employers to lead in finding these solutions. It is to the advantage of the consumer and of society that we shall do so. If the elimination of outgrown ideas and the righting of old wrongs is left to labor alone, wage conflicts and strikes will continue on an increasing scale. The strike is their principal weapon. If they are forced to fight for their rights they must and will use it.

The Basic Remedy for Strikes.

Important for the establishment of good industrial relations as are the three matters of which I have spoken, there is in my judgment a fourth reason of a still more fundamental nature—namely, that business shall more and more become a profession and be carried on in a spirit of service to the community.

The motive with which the employer directs his business and with which the employee works will in the last analysis determine whether there will be industrial war or industrial peace.

A Code of Business Ethics.

Asked recently by the editor of The Annals to prepare an article on A Simple Code of Business Ethics as one of a series of studies on the ethics of the several business and professional groups, I ventured to base it on these two brief formulas—

- (1) that a business, in order to have the right to succeed, must be of real service to the community;
- (2) that real service in business consists in making or selling merchandise of reliable quality for the lowest practicably possible price, provided that merchandise is made and sold under just conditions.

Philanthropy becomes a sin and an offense, when it uses for charity the earnings of industry that should be used for justice to employees and the public.

The First Lien on Large Profits.

The first legitimate use of large profits, and the main use, is to reduce prices. These lower prices will, in turn, cause increased demand, increased production and increased total profit, at which point prices can again be reduced. It is worse than useless to merely increase production. Prices must at the same time be reduced enough to bring in the greatly increased number of purchasers needed to absorb this greater output. Employers are wrong when they endeavor to obtain mass production through lowering wages to a degree that lessens the number of possible consumers for their product. Employees are wrong when they try to get higher real wages or more work through limiting output. Both will find it far more profitable in the long run to join hands in efforts to furnish reliable and essential merchandise to the public at prices lower than it has been sold before. In this way they will greatly increase the number of consumers and increase the demand for workmen. They will at the same time increase wages, and the purchasing power of those wages.

Despite the fact that innumerable committees in the various conventions of the American Federation of Labor have studied the question of adopting a universal label, a label of one design to appear on all union made goods, analyzing the proposition from every angle but always coming to the same conclusion, that such a label would be impracticable, and its functioning practically impossible, we still find those who hold the proposition up as a cure all for the ills of labor and a panacea for the always perplexing question of label agitation.

The Universal Label.

Cigar-makers occasionally make the assertion and are firm in their belief that such a universal label would further the sale of union-made cigars. Would it? In the first place the ownership of such a label would necessarily rest in the American Federation of Labor and all crafts affiliated would have equal say as to its use. It would further mean that every step in the manufacture of any article entitled to bear the label must be fully organized. Thus we see that every step in the manufacture of cigars from the field to the finished package must be taken under union conditions. Cigar-makers, packers, strippers, banders and box-makers might be organized but the teamster who hauled the lumber to the box-maker might not be a member of the union and as a result the teamsters' union could very rightfully say that the label could not go on the box of cigars. The same illustration holds good for everything manufactured that now bears the union label of its respective craft and a universal label would soon die from lack of opportunity. It would be a rarity instead of the generally well known thing it can be made under the present system of individual ownership and control.

The better thing to do is to direct our energies to making our individual labels so well known through intensive and persistent label agitation that all union men of other crafts will recognize and respect them.

Justice—For Whom?

"While the law is enforced, justice waits. The possibilities of delay and of forcing a compromise to avoid expense and annoyance induce litigation by those who wish to escape the faithful performance of their contracts. The calendars are crowded with such cases. In such a game the poor stand little chance against the rich, or the honest against the unscrupulous.—(Elihu Root, Addresses on Government and Citizenship (1916), page 493; and see Ending the Scandal of the Law's Delay, Ibid., page 177.)

"Of all the questions which are before the American people, I regard no one as more important than the improvement of the administration of justice. We must make it so that the poor man will have as nearly as possible an equal opportunity in litigating as the rich man, and under present conditions, ashamed as we may be of it, this is not the fact."—(Ex-President Taft in an address before the Virginia Bar Association.)

"If there is one sad anomaly that should stand out in our present days of conscientious self-searching, it is the harsh fact that, with all our prating about justice, we deliberately withhold it from the thousands who are too poor to pay for it."—(American Judicature Society, Bulletin VIII (1915), page 24.)

"The sources from which industrial unrest springs are . . . 3. Denial of justice in the creation, in the adjudication and in the administration of law."—Report of the U. S. Commission on Industrial Relations (1915).

"This evil of delay is established and the injustice which it causes is universally recognized. It works to defeat justice in two ways: First, by making the time required to reduce a case to final judgment so long that persons, unable to wait, do not start the case at all but give it up; and, second, by forcing unfair settlements and compromises on persons so situated either before suit is brought or in discount of a verdict after trial in exchange for a waiver of appeal. In a wage claim speed is the essence of justice, for the suit is brought to obtain the means of livelihood. A judgment years or even months later is little better than no judgment. In negotiations between counsel for the settlement of personal injury cases it is customary to deduct something from the amount agreed on as fair damages on the theory that less is better now than more three years hence in the due course of law.

How Much Am I Offered?

The evil tends to aggravate itself by encouraging parties without meritorious defenses to make a sham contest so that they may avail themselves of delay and perhaps beat down the claim against them. The natural delay of the system is thus decreased by this artificial burden; it is like throwing sand in unoiled gears."—"Justice and the Poor," by Reginald Heber Smith, of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.)

"The courts must stand at all times as the representatives of capital, of captains of industry."—(Supreme Court Justice James C. Van Sictlen, of Brooklyn.)

Tuberculosis is caused by a bacillus or germ which is so small that it can only be seen under the microscope. Sunshine will cause these germs to curl up and die, and this explains why the disease thrives in houses where fresh air and sunlight are not welcomed, and it also explains why tuberculosis is not contracted out of doors. When exposed to infection people who are in good physical condition are safe enough because nature provides defenses which destroy the bacilli. It is when the body is weakened by sickness or improper living that the germs can gain a foothold.

When the disease has once started there is a little war going on in your body between the invading tubercle bacilli and the defenses which nature has provided. This is your own private war and the outcome means more to you than to anyone else. It is your business to strengthen your defenses by rest, fresh air, proper food and medical care. A short period of rest and proper treatment at the outset may save months or years of suffering.

The only answer is this, "If you even suspect that you have any trouble of this kind, consult your family doctor at once and follow his advice." Above all, don't say, "I'm not going to quit work—I'll beat this game my own way." The hospitals have any number of hopeless cases who waited too long, who thought that they "could beat the game their own way" and who "knew more than their family doctors."

The encouraging part of it all is that the tuberculosis death rate is decreasing—yearly more disease is being prevented and more lives are being saved. Most cases can be cured provided the patient seeks medical care before too much of his lung tissue has been destroyed. Even in advanced cases the disease may often be stopped and many a man with only one lung is leading a useful life and supporting his family.

Neither breaking a leg nor being operated on for appendicitis is a joke, nor is it a joke to have tuberculosis—but the fact that any of these misfortunes come to you is no excuse for your being discouraged and quitting. In any case you must rest while your broken leg heals, while the wound from your operation heals, and while your diseased lung heals. Under proper conditions you will recover from any of the three. Thousands of patients with tuberculosis have recovered. If you should get it—just keep your nerve, remember that the disease is curable, do what your doctor says—and add one more "cure" to the list.

CORRESPONDENCE

Chicago, May 8, 1922.

The Volstead law, besides depriving the Government of millions of dollars in revenue, proves itself to be a dead horse with a constant and ever-increasing feed bill. It is estimated that the year 1922 will cost us in our ineffectual attempts at enforcement of the blunder not less than $10,000,000. Appropriations of $5,000,000, $7,500,000 and $9,500,000 have been made and each was found to be insufficient to meet the expense of even the degree of enforcement that was tried.

While the cost of attempting to enforce the law is steadily increasing, so too is bootlegging, moonshining and drinking steadily climbing. The more the Government spends to stop the flow of liquor the freer it seems to flow. There was a time directly after the law went into effect when it was something of an effort to get a drink of "hard liquor." It is now as easy to get as is ice cream, and there is no doubt about its being "hard."

Before Prohibition (?) it was the cry of the reformer that the main cause of crime was liquor, and when liquor was abolished the police, criminal lawyers, etc., would all have to get themselves new jobs, as they would have absolutely nothing more arduous to do than direct a happy and carefree traffic across the street. It is proven that the law has in no way diminished crime. Even arrests for drunkenness are on the increase in many places. A report of the police department of New York City for 1921 shows 8,169 arrests for drunkenness against 7,804 in 1920 and 7,028 in 1919. Some of the most atrocious crimes of the past century have been recorded within the past two years, and in practically every case recorded the blame has been placed squarely up to moonshine.

The Volstead law has had a fair test; millions of dollars have been spent in an attempt to enforce it; yet we find violations steadily increasing, drunkenness more of a menace and the health of the nation being undermined by the use of virulent poisons sold as liquor. It has made crooks of honest men and millionaires of rum-runners. It is plain that the people generally will never obey the law either in spirit or letter; therefore, REPEAL IT.

Demand of your Congressman a statement as to where he stands on the question, and if he is not willing to wipe out the present disgrace and substitute a reasonable and amicable law in its stead, elect someone who will listen to reason rather than to the high-pitched tenor voice of the paid reformer whose only ambition in life is to regulate the personal liberty of his fellow man.

R. E. VAN HORN.

Louisville, Ky., May 10, 1922.

Mr. G. W. Perkins, Int'l Pres.

Dear Sir and Bro.: Received your circular letter of April 24 and cards to be filled out by members, in regards to getting necessary data to determine what the International is able to do in way of arranging with an insurance company to carry the present death benefit of the union, etc. Wish to state we are short about six cards, for all of our members, a few were only printed on one side. Also as these cards are wanted without delay, the end of May, and we have 66 40c members and about 30 shops, and would have to reach most of these 40c members and many shops by mail, and from present experience the members do not understand the card without the letter to secretary in regards to same, consider it would be advisable if we had about 90 of the circular letter explaining same to mail to 40c members and to shops, so members can understand same, otherwise some members wont sign same without fully understanding same. It seems these circular letters would be necessary unless the local here would have them printed, as it is impossible to write all these members the full information that is in the letter. Please answer in regards to same otherwise instead of the end of May it may be many months before I can get these cards signed up, if at all. Especially as some members have read the letter and card and refuse to sign it, claiming they dont understand it, and I cannot explain it any more than is printed. Yours fraternally,

WM. RENTSCHLER, Sec'y.
Chicago, May 10, 1922.

To Whom It May Concern:

At the Baltimore Convention, 1912, and again at the Cleveland Convention, 1920, the question of the payment of death benefit and the cost were among the paramount issues discussed. At the Cleveland Convention the proposition was made which embodied an optional clause, that is to allow members to come in under the death benefit provision or to come in as members without the death benefit feature. This proposition was, however defeated.

There was considerable discussion at both conventions as to whether we could turn over or sell to some responsible insurance company our insurance obligations. In the debate at Cleveland it was suggested that the International President obtain information and a proposition from any reputable insurance company. This suggestion was also taken up by the International Executive Board, who requested the President to obtain what statistics were available on this important question.

I took the matter up with several insurance concerns along substantially the following lines—They to take over our death benefit feature by taking in every member of the International Union now entitled to death benefit, placing him in precisely the same standing, all to be accepted without a physical examination, and regardless of age.

Our present membership would be cared for under an arrangement contemplated with at least the amount of insurance they now have, at the lowest possible cost. This would be a pure death benefit up to $500.00, and without medical examination for the present members for this amount of benefit.

No insurance company will quote rates until the cards we are sending under separate cover have been filled out and returned to this office.

The International Union will have the choice of two plans for the reinsurance of its present benefit members without medical examination: The whole life plan to the amount of $500.00 and a one year renewable term or current cost plan at all present amounts, but not in any case exceeding $500.00.

There is nothing binding in the matter one way or the other. I deem it advisable, however, that we get this information which you are requested to supply on the cards mailed you, in order that the firm may make a definite proposition, the cost, etc., and the full information be placed before the next convention. The cards I am sending you are not of my own creation. They are the ones the insurance company want filled out.

The filling out of the cards referred to does not commit the member to any change or to any new plan of insurance or of the death benefit feature. If an insurance company should take over the death benefit feature it would be absolutely optional on the part of the present members and prospective members as to whether they would go into the new insurance or not. The International President is in no wise committed to any plan or to any change, and no change will be made, if at all, until the matter has been passed upon by a convention and the membership at large have had a vote thereon. No member need hesitate to fill out the card. These cards will be treated as confidential by this office and by any actuary or insurance representative who may handle them.

The time for filling out the cards has been extended to June 30.

Yours fraternally,

G. W. PERKINS,
International President.

Oneida, N. Y., May 6, 1922.

The amendment to Sec. 56, as proposed by Union 12, in the May Journal, is an object lesson in the labor movement. In view of the enormous amount of high salaries paid to our organizers and label agitators, our ranks are becoming depleted, but our expenses do not deplete in proportion. Let us take a bird's-eye view of conditions that confront us in our trade. Beginning about the year 1909, when the International Union could boast of 50,322 members (with about 111,000 persons engaged in the cigar industry), and then take the years and figures following down to the year 1921—a period of 12 years—and the figures show a loss in membership of 19,182, 60-cent and 40-cent members alone (April Journal, 1922), and this enormous loss in our membership has occurred with our nine organizers and label agitators drawing a salary of $250 and $350 each per month. Just think of it? Take the least figures, for instance, $250 per month. In nine years past, since the Baltimore convention, for nine organizers at $250 each per month, will aggregate about $243,000, and we do not know what our loss of the union label has been during this period. This amendment is our recommendation. Now, what is yours? A continuous loss in membership all along the line. With high dues (which means suspensions), high salaried organizers that don't organize, high salaried label agitators that don't agitate the label, while we, those that are left, pay high dues to support "autocratic regimes," or, shall we relapse until such time as our membership warrants and our funds warrant additional organizers and agitators, also when the fellow who works and pays can earn a living wage. Of course the general excuse for present conditions is the "war." War is hell. But h—, there is no "war" now. Forget that gag and remember our trade union.

PETER ROGERS,
For Committee of Union.

Note.—The foregoing letter is such an exaggerated misstatement of conditions that it should not pass without notice. The writer for the committee speaks of the enormous cost of high salaries paid to our organizers and then says: "Let us take a bird's-eye view of conditions." He then says: "Organizers, drawing high salaries of from $250 to $350 per month, have drawn since the Baltimore convention in 1912, $243,000." The committee grossly misstated the real condition. They speak of high salaries and cite the amounts the organizers draw per month.

The facts are that the organizers must pay railroad expenses, which everybody aside from the committee, knows have been extremely high for the last six or seven years, and they must pay hotel expenses and eat in restaurants. In the amounts cited, $250 to $350 per month, are included railroad expense, hotel expense and restaurants, as well as the salaries, and does not represent their wages.

The real facts, taken from the official record and the Journal, show that organizers and sub-organizers were paid from 1913 to 1921, inclusive, $154,468 (not $243,000, as stated by the committee, who only made a misstatement of about $100,000), which includes, aside from salaries, hotel, restaurant and railroad fare. The average membership during that period was 26,750. The average cost per member for nine years was $4.10. The average cost per member per year was 45¼ cents, and the average cost per member per week was a fraction less than 1 cent, which includes wages, hotel, restaurant and railroad expenses.

The last convention fixed the salaries of organizers at $30.00 per week and allowed them $3.50 per day for hotel, restaurant and other expenses and railroad fare. This amount was overwhelmingly endorsed by popular vote.

Some people want good wages for themselves, but when paid to others they refer to them as high salaries. Union 12, Oneida, refused to amend its wartime bill long after the war was ended and the biggest shop in the town, employing 96 men, closed up the shop and moved. The union then reduced its bill, but the big shop had gone and never did come back.

We received the following communication from a well known manufacturer of union label ready made clothing, of New York, which we print without the manufacturer's name:

We have been manufacturing Union Label Clothes for the past number of years and it seems at this time that the demand for Label clothing is becoming smaller instead of larger. So we have concluded to address a few lines to you, asking that you kindly take this matter up with your subsidiary unions by addressing a letter to them throughout your various branches, requesting the secretaries of these locals to address a few words to his members, to urge them to wear UNION LABEL CLOTHES.

The members can be assured that they can purchase just as good clothes with the Union Label as any that do not bear the Label. We, for one, stand behind every garment that we produce, and sell goods to the retailers as cheap as any manufacturer who sells his product without the label, so we trust that you will give this matter your prompt attention and address a letter to the various locals in behalf of UNION LABEL CLOTHES.

Our affiliations with the United Garment Workers who are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, have been most friendly and we are desirous of increasing our output so that we can put more of their members to work and assist them in expanding the organization.

Your consideration in this matter will be greatly appreciated, and we hope it will do some good.

Fellow Members:

I notice by the April Journal that Union 384, St. Augustine, proposes by an amendment to assess the 60-cent membership 25 cents for one week and the Class B and 15-cent membership 10 cents for one week to liquidate the Tampa deficiency of $7,527.89, and that whatever balance there remains is to be turned over to the special strike fund.

When the darkey was asked for the core of his apple he said, "There ain't goin' to be no core." So it is in this case even if all paid. "There ain't goin' to be no balance." According to the annual financial statement, such an assessment levied upon the membership given would amount to $6,663.20, or just about $1,000 less than the deficiency.

Some years ago an assessment was levied to assist a member who had lost the use of his hand. Immediately thereafter any number of unions were persuaded to offer amendments to assist some brother in distress. All of these amendments with one exception were defeated. This caused resentment and ill feeling on the part of those whose appeals for assistance were not adopted. The same thing only worse will occur if this amendment is adopted. Other unions that have deficiencies will want the same treatment.

Now I notice in the financial statement a large number of unions whose deficiency per capita is much larger than the per capita deficiency of the Tampa unions. Now, if we pass this amendment can we afford in common decency to turn down other amendments to wipe out deficiencies? Will not such a levy tend to increase the tendency to violate the constitutional checks to extravagance in expenditures by the alluring prospects that the unions who respect and observe the provisions of the constitution can be relied upon to make up the deficiency oft made by our folly. Judging by the membership given for the Tampa unions in the April Journal the deficiency is less than $2.00 per member. There are any number of unions whose deficiency per capita runs over $2.00 and one as high as $127.18. Why this discrimination? Why start something that simply opens the way to greater laxity in the enforcement of our laws and is a direct invitation for more and more assessments.

JAS. L. DONALLY.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 29, 1922.

While performing my duties as Business Agent yesterday I came across a new condition being worked by the United Cigar Stores.

There are a number of proper cigar stands that have been made sales agent for the output of the big chain. It is claimed a contract is signed in which the little fellow agrees to handle only U. S. Cigar Stores output in the show case. He may buy and sell anything else he pleases, but under the terms of his alleged contract he must keep all other cigars out of sight. I discovered this condition by asking for a Buffalo cigar. He dug it out of a cabinet and when I suggested that he put it in his case so it could be seen, he gave me the astonishing information noted above.

I told him that he was committing business suicide and that in a short time he would be working for the trust.

I wonder if this alleged contract is not a violation of either the Interstate Commerce, or the Anti-Trust Law. There are Pennsylvania cigars in the case, they must be shipped here. According to the alleged contract Buffalo's goods are barred, from the show case.

It seems to me that if this form of alleged contract could be made public it might be the means of creating a sentiment against this concern, a sentiment that no doubt would be of immense value to this organization. It could be used when addressing meetings.

This is a very serious question and means much to us.

Fraternally yours,
J. HADIDA.

Cleveland, O., May 10, 1922.

I have been requested to send the following to you for publication in Journal, if possible:

Union 17, Cleveland, claims to have the youngest old member in point of years of continual membership and also claims he is the only member that has his original due book, issued Nov. 14, 1879. Said book is in as good condition as the day issued.

WM. D. DAWSON.

Buffalo, N. Y., Apr. 29, 1922.

As an evidence that Union 2 is in accord with the advice issued from your office that fines against members might be removed, the following is offered for publication in the Journal:

George O. Ellwood (86416), fined $25.00 at a February meeting, was released from payment at the March meeting, and at the same time a motion prevailed that the entire matter be expunged from the minutes.

Since the International Executive Board approved, and the International President published a report of said action in the Journal, this union requests that the remission of the fine against this member be given space in the next issue of the Journal.

Fraternally yours,

J. HADIDA.

REPORT OF ORGANIZERS

Memphis, Tenn., May 4, 1922.

The Indiana State Federation of Labor, inaugurated a Union Label campaign, and the drive to stimulate a greater interest in the purchase of "label" commodities by members of organized labor, and the general public, was staged April 17-23. The work was state-wide in scope, and was participated in by all Central Organizations, Local Unions and several International Unions sent representatives to assist in the propaganda work.

Union 54, Evansville, made a request that some one be sent in from the cigar makers, and I was detailed by the International President to lend aid in the crying need in that capacity of furthering the agitation for "Greater organization and a more wholesome demand for Union Label products." My time was devoted exclusively to the work in Evansville, where the committee through the Central Labor Body had arranged for an active speech making campaign to be carried on during the week among the several Local Unions, who provided for open meetings; and then as a finishing touch to the program a large mass meeting was held where the public were invited to hear the gospel of unionism expounded.

A great deal of interest was displayed on the part of labor to make each feature of the meetings a success, and there is no disputing the fact that much good will be derived from their efforts expended in that direction. Several able speakers were engaged in the field, and union men and women, as well as the public, were advised and enlightened as to the benefits and necessity of creating a greater demand for Union Label goods. Also, the protective features accruing to society; and the prosperity added thereto, which is multiplied three fold out of the ranks of labor where labor is organized in any community, and justly compensated for its task performed.

Louisville was next visited. The local cigar industry is very quiet there. Trade in home goods has taken a considerable slump in that city. The ravages of cheaper goods are being felt, the non-union cigars are flooding that district. Several of our members in the trade have been out of work for a few weeks past. Labor seems to be fairly well organized there, and the number of the active members of Local 32 are making conscientious effort to keep the agitation alive in behalf of the label. But there is a "fly in the gravy" some how, and until it is strained out there seems no immediate prospects of improvement. I made several local unions, and the Central Council while there, and spoke in the interest of union made cigars.

The Tennessee State Federation of Labor held its 26th annual convention May 1-3 in this city and I addressed the delegates on labor problems and made appeal for a more consistent recognition and demand for products made by union labor. I then visited the Arkansas S. F. of L. which was in session at Pine Bluff and represented the Union Label Trades Department at that convention, where the best efforts in the interest of our cause were again repeated. The cigar trade is holding up very creditably in Memphis under the existing depression. Some very active members are on the job boosting and a revival in business in the near future seems favorable.

Lima, Ohio, April 4, 1922.

The Deisel-Wemmer Co., operating a chain of some fifteen cigar factories in as many different Ohio towns, in characteristic "open shop" fashion; after a protracted lay off during the holidays in their plants, on resuming work about Jan. 16th, without previous intimation or notification to their employees, the firm proceeded to make a slaughter in wage scales, reducing the bunch breakers on the El Verso cigars from 70 cents per hundred to 47 cents and on the San Felice cigars from 40 cents per hundred, down to 27 cents, which brings the wage scale in their factories below the pre-war prices paid in 1913. At the same time of the reduction, and with the same abject disregard for the welfare of the workers, the "team system" was changed causing an increased expenditure of vitality, with reduced earning capacity, under the guise of "Speed Up System" to produce greater volume at the least possible cost of production.

Smarting under the strain of long oppression, as the recent reduction is but one of a series that has become effective since 1920, the cigar makers in several of their factories, revolted and came out on strike, unorganized as they were, and without finances to assist them, or the aid of Trade Union discipline to guide their every course, they decided to engage in the unequal struggle as individuals to make protest against the unbearable wage reductions. The workers were in fair way to succeed in adjusting the wage cut by their strike, as nearly a complete tie-up was effected in several of the shops with almost 100 per cent involved in the walk-out.

Then followed the usual course on the part of the low wage "non-union shop" employer, to circulate false propaganda to divide the workers by disintegration through prejudice, suspicion and fear, and to inject intimidation into the ranks by innuendo, warning and threats not to join the cigar makers union, as such affiliation would spell the end of their job. There was also current through the agency of the firm, or by the self-inflicted false teachings of the ever ready disruptionists in such crisis, to advise against organization in the cigar makers' union; but instead to organize a "social or welfare club," "that's open shop tactics with a trained perspective" and it plays right into the bosses "Mfit." as the employer well knows that there is nothing to be feared along economic betterment to the workers from such weak props as social clubs, and no chance for collective bargaining to reduce hours, improve conditions, or increase wages.

The Cigar Makers' International Union came to the rescue in the fight to offer aid and succor to those people in distress, to welcome them into the fold under the banner of the Union, to give lasting protection, and to insure undisputed benefits to members of its organization. Many have accepted the invitation and the work of organization is being successfully carried on; notwithstanding the terrific opposition that is being hurled out by the opposing clans, two of the shops are now closed as a weapon of coercion used by the company to force involuntary servitude against the will of those now resisting, and chloroform with fear those who are still at the task. The public is incensed at the unwarranted wage reductions. Union labor is rendering valuable assistance in the cause of justice. All combined are strengthening the hand against usurious profits siphoned from defenseless workers by those who "toll not, neither do they spin." Demand the Union Label. Fraternally.

Vancouver, B. C., May 3, 1922.

The industrial loan commission of British Columbia have taken over the Stettler Cigar Co. to satisfy their claim against this firm. This company, locked out members of Union 357 about a year ago, after receiving a loan of $25,000 from the Government loan board. They attempted to run an open shop with girls working suction tables, and failed, hence the action by the board. Since coming here I have worked with local committee of 357 in effort to have this shop open under union conditions by the commissioners. I understand that the factory will be sold by seal tenders and we have taken this question up with local business men in effort to interest them in the proposition. If the factory is sold and is operated under recent conditions, then every effort will be made to organize the shop, as this was the largest cigar factory in western Canada. Union 357 realizes what it will mean to them to keep it here under union conditions. Since April 6th to date. I have devoted my time in publicity and label campaign, distributing advertising matter, visited cigar stores and jobbers, worked with local committee re Stettler situation. In order to hold label cigar trade in Vancouver, the unfair manufacturers of the east are sending cigars here with label dated 1919-1920. Our local should take some action to stop this practice. I have attended the following union meetings and gave talks on local situation and in the interest of the label.

Electrical Workers, 213; Carpenters, 452; Machinists, 692; open meeting of Steam and Operating Engineers; Barbers; Bricklayers; Window Cleaners; Railway Shop Machinist; Teamsters; Bakers Salesmen and Drivers; Sheet Metal workers; Civic Employees; Milk Drivers and Dairy Employees; Boiler-makers; Ship Builders and Helpers; Building Trade Com.; Railway Employees; Bro. Carmen; Am.-Carpenters; Lithographers; Brewery Workers; Painters; Book Binders; Granite Cutters; Moulders; Police Federation; City Hall Employees; Hotel and Restaurant Employees; Plumbers; Trade Council, and Typographical, 226; all meetings of Local 357.

OFFICIAL

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President.

508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 218 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

I. M. ORNBURN, 236 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

D. W. KENNEDY, 73 Clifton Ave., Niagara Falls, Ont., Third Vice President.

MANUEL GONZALES, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

ALEXANDER RAMSEY, Nevada City, Calif., Sixth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Seventh Vice President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Grats St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member. If he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also, as per section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 144c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member; if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect March 27, 1923, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after March 27 are exempt from payment of the March assessment. Class B members don't have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members don't have to pay the special strike fund assessment.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

J. J. Cohen appealed against Union 17, Cleveland, for permitting a vote on revision of the bill of prices taken contrary to the law, which provides that all voting involving strikes or lockouts must be taken by secret ballot. The appeal is sustained.

A. N. Thomas appealed against the Joint Advisory Board, Chicago, for refusing to permit him to take a 40-cent retiring card. The appeal is sustained.

Ella E. McVey appealed against Union 126, Ephrata, for suspending her for non-payment of dues. The evidence of Mrs. McVey shows that while she was still in good standing she gave the money to her daughter to pay her dues; that the daughter forgot all about it, and they were not paid until the eleventh week. This evidence is not disputed by the union. In view of this the appeal is sustained and the member restored to membership and placed on the ninety-day list.

E. J. Miller appealed against Union 205, Battle Creek, for placing him on the ninety-day list. The appeal is not sustained.

C. R. Edris appealed against Union 122, Warren, for failing to excuse him for non-attendance at meeting. Appellant shows he is secretary of a fraternal organization that meets the same night. The appeal is sustained.

R. Thelling appealed against Union 228, San Francisco, for recognizing the vote of four jurisdiction members that had been regularly sent in by mail on the question of revising their bill of prices. The appeal is not sustained.

Walter Russel appealed against Union 405, Birmingham, for suspending him and fining him $25 for the alleged offense of working under the bill of prices. The secretary stated that he owed a year's dues. The appeal against suspension is not sustained. The appellant claims that he did not work under the bill. The appeal reference the fine is sustained.

Wm. Bettinger, O. F. Doyle and H. Wittenberg appealed against Union 285, Fort Worth, for compelling them to pay assessments to make up a deficiency. The appeal is not sustained.

Daniel O'Brien appealed against the secretary of Union 16, Binghamton, for suspending him for non-payment of dues. Mr. O'Brien appealed to the union, who recommended his reinstatement, and appointed a committee of three, one of whom was the secretary, to present the facts here. The secretary refused to sign the report of the committee recommending Mr. O'Brien's reinstatement, and he, the secretary, protests against Mr. O'Brien's being placed back on the list in violation of the constitution. The appeal of Secretary Ellis is sustained.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

Union 12, Oneida, N. Y., proposes the following amendment to Sec. 56 of the International Constitution, as follows:

After the word "least," on line 2, strike out the word "six," and insert the word "three" instead; also add "and no additional label agitators or organizers shall be elected or appointed subject to the expense of the Cigar-makers' locals or of the Cigarmakers' International Union until the membership of the Cigarmakers' International Union reaches fifty thousand (50,000), not including Class A or Class B members." Balance of Sec. 56 to remain unchanged.

Sec. 56, as so amended, to read:

"The President shall appoint, subject to the confirmation of the Executive Board, at least three (3) members to be known as the label agitators and organizers, and no additional label agitators or organizers shall be appointed, subject to the expense of the local unions, or to the International Union, until such time as the membership of the International Union reaches the number of fifty thousand (50,000) members, not including Class A or Class B members, whose duty shall be to organize unions, agitate for the use of the union label, deliver free lectures, and instruct local unions in the discharge of their duties. They shall visit such towns and cities as the International President may direct. The organizers appointed shall be located in such places as in the judgment of the International President it would be considered practical, provided also, that the funds of the International Union would permit of the execution of these provisions. That the International President shall have the power to transfer one or more organizers to assist another organizer."

To become effective upon adoption.

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed.

The label shall be light blue color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $3.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter. In the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months, a member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments, and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequently thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example—a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

Notes by H. Abrahams.

So trial by jury is denied a citizen in Porto Rico. An article in our Journal from Iglesias on the situation there would be interesting reading.

It seems the attacks on the trade union has spent its force. We are still doing business at the same old stand. Other forms of organization have come and gone. We have justified our existence.

All trade organizations who have held their organization during the present crisis will come back stronger than ever.

The insurance of our members in an old line reliable insurance company is a move in the right direction. I know, for I was a member of a fraternal association that did it.

Building trades and textile industry will boom this summer. This will improve their purchasing power.

A public spirited citizen, an employer, stated where prices of commodities increases one hundred and fifty per cent and wages one hundred per cent, that is counterfeit wages.

Don't forget the unemployed.

Never was their greater need of label agitation than now. It is your only weapon.

We don't want any Cossacks in America.

37 did not forget the textile workers.

Dark the hour before the dawn.

When you buy a straw hat see that it bears a label.

If you are class conscious you will see that all commodities you buy have a Union Label, for the other fellow is a worker as well as you and I.

We will weather the storm, if we only stick together.

Huge Tobacco Profits.

New York.—The world has a roseate hue for stockholders of the American tobacco company, which announces that record profits were made last year. These profits total $18,117,236, as against $14,277,250 the previous year. The immensity of these profits can be appreciated when it is recalled that they are exclusive of all charges, and do not include even interest on bonds or magnificent salaries that "insiders" vote to themselves.

*Made to order.

Deflation, familiar word to financiers, has a menacing sound to the cigar makers. In the depression beginning in 1930 and still evident, 15,000 employees in local factories have been reduced from a fair wage to the bare subsistence level by the slump in their industry.

Five or six wage reductions have been experienced in the "open" or trust shops as well as the smaller establishments in this period, and no effective resistance has been possible owing to the dissension in the ranks of the organized workers, M. Simons, organizer for the Cigar Makers' International Union in this district, reports.

"Only last week the workers in the trust factories were reduced another $1.50 a 1,000," he said, "which brings them down to an average weekly earning of $15 and $20 unless they work with heart-breaking speed. They are virtually slaves, due to their unorganized and hopeless condition."

For this reason, Simons said, the International Union, in conformity with decision of the general executive board which met in this city last fall, has decided upon an organization campaign in this district.

There are 10,000 cigar makers now employed here, of whom about 3,000 are members of long standing in the International. A plea is made to all those employed in the local industry to realize their helpless condition, and to join the union, which has struggled for 56 years to improve the condition of the workers in this industry.

This condition can be improved by organizing all branches of the industry for the I. C. U. in theory as well as in practice in an industrial union, it was pointed out, that can function effectively only if the vigorous young element in the factories takes part in the organizing campaign.

Millions of dollars have been expended by the International in strike benefits to obtain and retain reasonable wage standards for the workers which will be nullified and the work of two generations lost unless there is a revival of interest, it was pointed out. Much of this is due to the break in the morale of the cigar workers. It was pointed out, in contrast to the militant spirit shown by the workers in other industries.

An object of the local campaign is to bind together all the language groups so that a semblance of stability can be restored.

Simons asserts that had sagacious counsel been followed in the 1919 strike when the local industry responded with splendid vigor to the strike call, conditions could have been regulated in New York City. Since then 33 factories have moved from this center to Philadelphia and smaller cities where more docile workers were found. As a result there is chronic unemployment in this city in the trade. There is an indication now of a revival.

The drive to organize the New York cigar workers is being supported by the labor movement at large. It is hoped by spring that enough interest will be revived so that the union can command a decent wage for its members in local factories.—Exchange.

Don't wait for others to boost the union label card and button. Do this yourself.

Vol. XLVI. JUNE 15, 1922. No. 6.

Subscription price, $1.00 per year.

Entered as second class matter, Nov. 23, 1894, at the Post Office at Chicago, Ill., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The newly hatched Trade Union Educational League has launched an attack against the principles and the officials of the American Federation of Labor. Of course it is for such purposes the League was formed, but the self-appointed dictator who is engineering the attack has also outlined a plan to not only destroy the A. F. of L., but the American Republic as well. Some job!

For the A. F. of L. a scheme smacking of the One Big Union idea of "Industrial Unionism" is planned as a substitute, and for the present free government the Soviet Dictatorship of Red Russia is to be foisted upon us as a cure-all for our ills both real and imaginary.

These schemes are unfolded through the mouthpiece of the League, the Labor Herald, the first copy of which appeared in March of this year. It becomes a matter of some curiosity as to where the necessary financial backing comes from to put a magazine of this kind on the market as it shows its costly make up even to the uninitiated. However, the backer of the whole scheme was lately basking in the sunshine of Russian prosperity (?), having only recently returned to this downtrodden country. Perchance the coffers of Lenin and Trotzky were opened that a part of Russia's affluence might be used in an effort to educate the American people up to the standard of comfort now enjoyed by the working men and women of Soviet Russia.

This latest plan of disruption is even more replete with "amalgamations" and "alliances" than was one of its predecessors, the now defunct I. W. W., in which the present dictator-in-chief of the Trade Union Educational League was once a shining light. The usual false statements, made for purely propaganda purposes, are brought out for the benefit of those willing to swallow their line of bunk. They lay great stress upon, and in fact give it as one reason for their existence, the old, old falsehood that the A. F. of L. is opposed to any form of industrial organization. The fact is that within the A. F. of L., and formed with its assistance and with the whole-hearted support of its officers, we find the largest industrial union in the world, the United Mine Workers of America. Despite this well known fact, however, these emissaries of disruption are always willing to play this old lie for all they can get out of it.

There is no chance for an avowed disciple of Sovietism to build an organization, avowedly autocratic, on the foundation so far outlined that will seriously injure the American labor movement let alone making even a start toward overthrowing our present Republic. All such attacks directed at the A. F. of L. will of course receive the whole-hearted support of every reactionary employer in the land. They hail with joy any scheme that will weaken the labor movement and are willing to pay real money to so-called union men who will direct an attack from the inside.

This is no time for any additional burdens to be piled upon the backs of an already sorely tried working class. What we need now is a solid front and unity of purpose. Not only do we need, and if successful must have, the leadership of sane, conservative officials, but we must have as well the whole-hearted support of every man and woman whose destinies are in any way touched by the need for organized labor, and that means the support of all who work with hand or brain. With this sense of obligation and with this desire for unity of purpose, it becomes the duty of every red-blooded worker to hit the slimy head of this serpent of disruption, no matter in what guise it may appear, every time it shows itself in our union meetings.

A late ruling of the Supreme Court declaring unconstitutional that portion of the Child Labor Law which imposed an excise tax of 10 per cent on the net annual profits of manufacturers employing child labor coupled with a previous ruling declaring unconstitutional the part of the law that directly prohibited the products of child labor entering interstate commerce throws wide open the doors of unscrupulous employers to a stream of little boys and girls whose lives will be run through the mill that profit and dividends may be garnered by the employer.

The entire humanitarian program of child welfare is now thrown back upon the individual states, some of which make an attempt at decency in the matter, while others offer no protection whatsoever to the coming generation.

The fallacy of such procedure is plain. It has been tried for years and found wanting. The childhood of the nation is of national importance and should by all rightful reason be under federal supervision. State boundary lines mean less than nothing in free America. Our people do not have to secure passports to go from one state to another, our goods do not have to bear a tariff in transition; hence the products of child labor are neither confined nor restricted by state boundary lines. The keen competition in the commercial field puts the manufacturer of a state with decent child labor laws at a serious disadvantage in this competitive market as against the manufacturer of a state in which the laws are lax or where little or no attention is paid to the enforcement of such protective measures as they may have. This disadvantage does one of two things: It causes the manufacturer to become a law breaker or it forces him to operate in a state in which there is no law to stop him when he opens his doors to child labor.

It is a national question and must be dealt with by national legislation. If there be no constitutional way in which remedial national legislation may be enacted that will serve to forever abolish this blot from our industrial life, the Constitution must be amended. In fact, a Constitution drafted in 1791, long before the present factory system was even dreamed of, is obviously inadequate to serve the necessities of a nation industrialized as we are today.

Our own trade is vitally concerned in this question of child labor. Many of the widely advertised brands of cigars are made wholly or in part by little children. These cigars are quite generally consumed by smokers who if they were aware that they were virtually burning up a part of some child's life when they smoked cigars of this kind would shun them as they would the plague. Union made cigars are never the product of child labor, and it is our duty to so thoroughly educate the smoker to this fact that the product of child labor will not be charged to our industry in any particular. This can be done only through a constant and persistent campaign of label agitation. Inaugurate such a campaign now. Keep everlastingly at it until the facts are generally known. At the same time lend your aid to any ends that may further the enactment of national remedial laws. Humanity demands it and labor unions are formed to do such work as a part of their obligations.

There can be no fast and just and set system of production and distribution until a more practicable, concise system has been devised and put into operation. The unscientific, haphazard, planless system now in vogue must be supplanted by a system which eliminates the frightful, almost criminal waste in industry.

Chief among these are the waste in management, seasonal periods in occupations, the turnover system, and the control of the credit system by the privileged few.

The remedies for these ills are now at hand. It is a crime if they are not put into force.

Some of the frightful and inexcusable defects of the present system are set forth in the book entitled "Waste in Industry," got out by a committee of the Federated American Engineering Societies, appointed by Herbert Hoover. This committee investigated several basic industries, and reported that low production was due to faulty material control; to lack of standardization in production; to faulty production control; to lack of cost control; to lack of research; to faulty labor control; to lack of opportunity for training of proficient workmen; and to faulty sales policies.

It also found that lost production was largely attributable to ill health of the workers, at least 42 per cent of which was preventable by proper management. It likewise discovered that lost production was due to industrial accidents, 75 per cent of which could be avoided by adequate safety measures.

The committee estimated that time lost through preventable illness totaled 350,000,000 days and that time lost through industrial accidents amounted to 296,000,000 days. In other words, of the 42,000,000 men and women gainfully employed, on an average of 15 to 16 days were lost to each of them annually because of faulty management.

In addition, the committee revealed the astounding fact that of the 500,000 workers that die annually, probably the death of one-half could be postponed and that of the 23,000 fatal accidents at least 18,000 could be avoided by efficient management. It is difficult to conceive a more hideous criminal indictment.

This committee likewise investigated the much-heralded restrictions of trade unions upon production. While the committee did not venture an opinion upon the advisability or necessity for these restrictions, it did find that the economic waste occasioned by these restrictive measures amounted to less than 25 per cent, while management was held to be responsible for over 50 per cent of all industrial and economic waste. It was found that in the printing industry management was responsible for approximately 60 per cent.

Thus it is evident, from reliable data scientifically ascertained, that the charge made against the trade unions for the curtailment of production is true only to a limited degree. It is equally evident this degree of lost production is incomparable with the economic waste and destruction of human life that may rightfully be charged against employers and management.

If the public condemn industry for its inefficiency, they in the light of the investigation and report of the committee should place the blame not upon labor, but upon the employers.

The non-union cigar makers who received slight increases in wages during the war and just thereafter, which were given under the pressure of necessity caused by a lack of help during that period, and who placed their trust in the generosity of the non-union manufacturer, are now thoroughly being jarred loose from their illusions. These innocent victims of misplaced confidence in the employer, who failed to come into the union for protection, or lost it by dropping out, have had their wages reduced to pre-war levels, and a wail of remorse, caused by discontent over their treatment and starvation wages received, permeates the air.

These victims in their unorganized condition are unable to resist and as long as they remain in an unorganized condition their case is hopeless.

Through underground and grapevine methods appeals for help are seeping out, all of which indicates that these unfortunates realize their position and are commencing to think. A good sign. It also shows that they are reaching the limit of endurance in their suffering and are about ripe for organization.

Our organizers have been instructed to redouble their efforts in their organization work and our members are all requested to join in the effort to bring these unfortunates into the union and under its protecting fold.

The Supreme Court has again shown its contempt for justice, its contempt for precedent, and of course its contempt for organized labor. The recent Contempt of Court ruling declaring that labor unions may be sued as a trust under the Sherman Law, even though they be unincorporated, is but one of the many decisions recently handed down that shows a contempt for almost anything except the interests of big business. Among other recent reactionary decisions of this judicial oligarchy is the decision declaring unconstitutional the child labor law, the ruling which nullified all laws that might tend to interfere with gambling in foodstuffs, and a decision which prevented a city from regulating the price of gas.

The Supreme Court may be sincere in their opinions—ultra conservatives and reactionaries usually are—but their sincerity is not going to make their decisions any more popular with a thinking citizenry. It is only a matter of time until we will find a way to cause this supreme power to function as was intended by their creators. We must not be wholly governed by any set of men whom we have neither the opportunity to select nor the right to recall.

We publish herewith partial report of the Federal Trade Commission, with their findings as to the facts and conclusions in the case brought by the Joint Advisory Board of Tampa, Florida, against the Manufacturers' Association of that city for conspiracy and restraint of interstate commerce.

Briefly we may say before quoting from the report that during the great strike in 1920 and 1921 when practically all cigar makers in Tampa were locked out, the Manufacturers' Association entered into binding agreements, with large forfeitures for non-compliance, for the purpose of preventing any manufacturer of cigars in Tampa from making terms with the union. Several methods were employed for this purpose. A manufacturer who would not fight the union and desired to make terms with the union or to conduct a union factory found it impossible to get credit to buy raw material and to get other necessary things for the successful conduct of a cigar factory, and particularly did the manufacturers of Tampa subsidize all cigar box factories and under agreements made it impossible for a manufacturer who wanted to be fair with the union to obtain boxes in which to pack his cigars.

On this particular point the Joint Advisory Board of Tampa went into court and finally brought the matter before the Federal Trade Commission. There were about seventy manufacturers involved, and about six or seven thousand cigar makers, who with the other employes made a total of around twelve thousand people.

The Federal Trade Commission went deeply into the question and their report covers twenty closely written large letter size pages. For lack of space we quote only the more vital parts of the full report.

Each member of respondent, Cigar Manufacturers' Association, was obliged to file a bond with respondent association with sureties in an amount not less than $500.00 nor more than $10,000.00, which bond was conditioned that said member will comply with the articles of association, the by-laws, rules, resolutions and acts of the association, and pay all dues and assessments, on penalty of forfeiting the amount named in said bond. The executive authority of said respondent, Cigar Manufacturers' Association, was vested in a President, a Vice President, a Treasurer, a Secretary and a Board of Directors, and the duties of said several officers were prescribed and defined by said articles of association, and its by-laws.

Each member of the Association shall submit to the Directors any new size of cigars not in the existing "Cartabon" that such member proposes to manufacture, and the Board of Directors shall appraise such new size, so as to make the scale of wages to be paid therefor conform as nearly as practicable to existing agreements between the members of the Association and their employes with respect to sizes and prices, and such new sizes shall be presented to the Board of Directors before being submitted to the "Niveiation" committee.

Cigars are marketed in boxes of wood, in tin containers and in paper packages, but the metal and paper packages are not used to any considerable extent. The wooden box is the standard method of packing for market, and an adequate and continuous supply of wooden boxes is absolutely essential to the manufacture and sale of cigars. There were but three manufacturers of cigar boxes operating in Tampa, Florida, prior to June or July, 1920, who made all the cigar boxes produced in that city or its immediate vicinity and upon whose product all the manufacturers of cigars in and around Tampa were then practically dependent. They are the respondents Tampa Box Company, a Florida corporation; D. N. Holway, J. W. Young and J. Van Roe, co-partners, trading together under the name of D. N. Holway and Company; and George F. Weidman, F. D. Fisher and J. A. B. Anderson, co-partners, trading under the name of Weidman, Fisher and Company. Each of these respondents is engaged in interstate commerce in the sale and shipment of cigar boxes in and to other states of the United States than the state of Florida. And prior to March 16, 1920, each of said cigar box manufacturers was in competition with the others and with other manufacturers of cigar boxes elsewhere in the United States.

For some years prior to September, 1920, there was a cigar box factory in Key West, Florida, and there were cigar box factories in Baltimore, New York, and other cities at a distance from Tampa, Florida, but the extra cost of securing boxes from such outside factories, including the cost of freight or express charges and the difficulties incident to dealing with cigar box manufacturers at a distance from Tampa, Florida, made it impracticable for Tampa cigar manufacturers, especially small manufacturers, to depend upon a supply of cigar boxes from such sources. Subsequent to June, 1920, two cigar box manufacturers of small capacities were in operation in Tampa, Florida, and one small factory in Brunswick, Georgia, but the boxes made by these factories were not considered by the cigar manufacturers in Tampa and in the neighborhood thereof as desirable as the boxes made by the three respondent box manufacturers. That tin cans or boxes have been used to a limited extent in which to pack cigars for shipment and sale in interstate commerce by cigar manufacturers in Tampa, Florida, and the neighborhood thereof, when especially ordered for certain dealers, but they have not been generally looked upon with favor by the trade, nor generally used unless especially ordered. No tin cans or tin boxes were made in Tampa for that purpose in the year 1919 and but few in the year 1920.

To provide boxes for the 417,995,788 cigars manufactured in Tampa, Florida, and the neighborhood thereof in 1919 required about 8,340,000 boxes, on an estimated average of 50 cigars to the box. The output of respondent cigar box manufacturers in 1919 amounted in the aggregate to 9,349,955 cigar boxes and there was a surplus in excess of the needs of the cigar manufacturers in Tampa, Florida, and the neighborhood thereof of about 1,000,000 cigar boxes manufactured by respondent cigar box manufacturers in 1919. This does not take into account a few million cigars made in Tampa and the neighborhood thereof which were packed in tin boxes or cans.

Sometime prior to March 16, 1920, the respondents or some of them conceived the purpose of controlling the labor situation and forcing manufacturers to refuse to adopt the closed shop policy or to abandon it if previously adopted, by concentrating in respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association the monopoly of sale and distribution of all cigar boxes then capable of being produced in Tampa and vicinity and having obtained such monopoly the respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association should cut off the supply of boxes and so cripple the business of any competitor who refused to adopt and abide by the Association's open shop policy. Accordingly, there was a meeting held in the Elks' Club house at Tampa, Florida, on March 16, 1920, which was attended by the officers and directors of the respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association and by the officers or partners of each of the three respondent cigar box manufacturers, or the sufficient representative thereof, at which meeting it was agreed that the respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association should control the disposition of all the cigar boxes manufactured in Tampa, or vicinity, at a basing price then and there fixed for all boxes produced and sold by the box manufacturers either at the direction of respondent association to its members, or by its consent, to non-members. This basing price was fixed at 16 cents per box which was an increase from the previously existing price of 13½ cents per box. This agreement was evidenced by the execution of three written instruments by and between the respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association and each of the respondent cigar box manufacturers, each of whom knew and intended at the time of the execution of said agreement, that each several agreement was collateral to the execution of a similar agreement by the other cigar box manufacturers and formed a part of a complete arrangement by which complete control of all cigar boxes produced in Tampa became vested in respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association and the price of all cigar boxes produced in Tampa was increased and stabilized at a uniform level, during the period covered by said agreements.

Each of the three agreements is in the following form except as to the name and style and address of the cigar box manufacturer:

"THIS AGREEMENT, made and entered into this 16th day of March, A. D. 1920, by and between the CIGAR MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION of Tampa, Florida, a voluntary association the membership of which is composed of manufacturers of cigars at Tampa, Florida, and immediate vicinity, party of the first part, and TAMPA BOX COMPANY, a corporation, of Tampa, Florida, party of the second part.

"WHEREAS the various members of the party of the first part require in the conduct of their business large quantities of cigar boxes, manufactured according to special labels and designs, and the party of the second part is engaged in business in the city of Tampa as a manufacturer of such cigar boxes, and

"WHEREAS the available supply of cigar boxes manufactured at Tampa and vicinity is barely sufficient to supply the requirements of the members of the party of the first part and it desires to make such agreement as will insure its members securing for the period herein provided for an adequate supply of such boxes at reasonable prices.

"NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the premises, as well as the sum of one ($1.00) dollar by the said parties mutually paid to each other, the said parties do hereby agree:

"FIRST. The party of the first part will furnish orders for cigar boxes to the party of the second part to the full capacity of the plant of the party of the second part, and the party of the second part will make, sell and deliver to the party of the first part cigar boxes manufactured by the party of the second part, in accordance with such orders, up to the full capacity of its plant, in the City of Tampa, Florida, beginning with the date hereof and to the thirty-first day of December, A. D. 1920."

Respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association having acquired through the co-operation of respondent cigar box manufacturers, control of the sale and distribution of all the cigar boxes manufactured in Tampa, was in a position to assure to its members a competitive advantage over non-members in the conduct of their business so long as said members conformed to the open shop policy of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association. And the respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association was likewise in position to place at a serious competitive disadvantage all manufacturers of cigars at Tampa, competitors of its members, who declined to conform to the open shop policy, by cutting off their supply of cigar boxes from the manufacturers in that city. This position of advantage to respondent association and its members was known to respondent cigar box manufacturers when they executed their several agreements hereinbefore set out and was a result intended by each of them.

Respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association employs and has employed its control of such supply of cigar boxes to deny to and withhold their necessary supply of boxes from non-members who are competing cigar manufacturers and who refuse to conduct their business in the manner prescribed and directed by said respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association and the members thereof. In accordance with their agreements respondent cigar box manufacturers after the signing of said agreement, refused to cigar manufacturers not members of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association the supply of cigar boxes needed in the business of said cigar manufacturers and informed them that to secure such a supply they must join respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, or must see A. A. Martinez, secretary of said respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, and sold cigar boxes only to such purchasers as were approved by respondent association.

Several cigar manufacturers in Tampa, Florida, and the vicinity thereof, were forced to join respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association in order to secure a supply of boxes necessary in the conduct of their businesses. Jose Garcia, a cigar manufacturer in Tampa, Florida, engaged in selling and shipping cigars among the several states of the United States, was told by the secretary of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association, after having been refused boxes from respondent Tampa Box Company, that before he could obtain any boxes he would have to join said Cigar Manufacturers' Association, that Jose Garcia did join such Cigar Manufacturers' Association, and was furnished boxes from the Tampa Box Company, but he refused to "lockout" or close his shop after the strike in April, thereby violating one of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association's rules and was expelled from said Association and thereafter was refused boxes from respondent cigar box manufacturers and respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association. Garcia and Brothers; Lopez, Alvarez and Company; W. M. Lamb; Otto Reiner; S. Bruno and Company, and D. Minutell also joined the association because it was necessary to do so to obtain a supply of boxes. Their supply was cut off by the respondents but upon becoming members of the Association, their supply was restored.

Some manufacturers whose supply of boxes was cut off by respondents were compelled to close their plants for varying periods. Such were A. C. Jones, cigar manufacturer at Lakeland, Florida; Jose Garcia, Tampa; Jose Hilgers, Tampa; Armando Gonzales, Tampa; Manuel Rodriguez, Tampa; Tierra del Lago Cigar Company. They declined to join the respondent Association and as non-members were deprived of their box supply.

On or about April 14, 1920, a strike of employees occurred in some of the plants of respondent cigar manufacturers, affecting about 25 of the members of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association. A week later practically all other members of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association locked out their employees engaged directly in manufacturing cigars, except some few who were engaged in packing for shipment the cigars theretofore manufactured. Thereafter and while non-member manufacturers in Tampa and vicinity were deprived of the supply of boxes which they needed in the conduct of their business, respondent cigar box manufacturers and respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, were soliciting business from cigar manufacturers outside Tampa, Florida, and the neighborhood thereof, and were selling and shipping cigar boxes to cigar manufacturers located in the various states of the United States and in the District of Columbia, so that in the year 1920, subsequent to the signing of said agreement dated March 16, 1920, respondent cigar box manufacturers sold and shipped to cigar manufacturers outside of Tampa, Florida, and the neighborhood thereof, a substantial percentage of the cigar boxes manufactured by respondent cigar box manufacturers in Tampa during that period—amounting probably to 40 or 50 per cent of their output. During the months immediately following said agreement dated March 16, 1920, the proportion of the output of respondent cigar box manufacturers sold and shipped to manufacturers outside of Tampa and the neighborhood thereof, was much greater than in any previous period. Some of the outside cigar manufacturers so supplied conducted portions of their shops as "closed shops" or with union working men, being the selecting and packing departments of such outside manufacturers.

Subsequent to said strike and "lockout," respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, directly and indirectly solicited for membership competing cigar manufacturers in Tampa and the neighborhood thereof, who had conducted "closed shops" or employed union workmen, as a condition precedent to getting the needed supply of boxes from respondent cigar box manufacturers. A few competing cigar manufacturers in Tampa and the neighborhood thereof, who conducted "open shops" or employed non-union workmen, were supplied with cigar boxes by respondent cigar box manufacturers with the approval of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association. One Vol Antuono, who was not a member of the respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, and who was one of the largest cigar manufacturers in Tampa, Florida, and who conducted an "open shop" or employed non-union workmen, was supplied with cigar boxes by respondent cigar box manufacturers with the approval of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association. Gonzales and Sanchez, a large cigar manufacturer in Jacksonville, Florida, who was not a member of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, conducted "open shops" or employed non-union workmen, and was supplied with cigar boxes by respondent cigar box manufacturers with the approval of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association. These exceptions were made in favor of a few strong concerns which conducted their operations on the "open shop" basis but for some reason did not desire membership in the respondent association. The manufacturers working on the "closed shop" basis were in the main small concerns, employing relatively few workmen and with limited resources.

About the middle of July, 1920, respondent members of Cigar Manufacturers' Association opened their factories and invited the former employees to return to work on the "open shop" basis. The strike was declared off in Tampa in the early part of the year 1921. Subsequent to the time that said factories were reopened, respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association refused to admit some competing cigar manufacturers of Tampa and the neighborhood thereof to membership. Such applicants were informed that respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association would admit no additional members until the pending strike was settled, nor would respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association nor respondent cigar box manufacturers supply such excluded cigar manufacturers with cigar boxes needed in their business.

Subsequent to the signing of said agreement dated March 16, 1920, respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, through one of its directors, Mr. J. A. Jones, asked George W. Hardee, Manager of Gonzales and Sanches, a cigar manufacturing corporation in Jacksonville, Florida, affiliated with Cuesta, Rey and Company, one of the members of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, to use his influence with the Brunswick Cigar Box Company, a cigar box manufacturer who had begun business in Brunswick, Georgia, in the summer of 1920, to have such box manufacturer refuse to sell cigar boxes to competing cigar manufacturers in Tampa and the neighborhood thereof known as "Buck-eyes" (which means small manufacturers in the Tampa vernacular), and said manager, George W. Hardee, did so use his influence and secured assurance that such course of action would be pursued by said Brunswick Cigar Box Company, which did not enter into competition in the sale of cigar boxes in Tampa during the term covered by said agreements and their renewal.

Subsequent to the signing of said agreement dated March 16, 1920, respondent cigar box manufacturer, Weldman, Fisher and Company, refused further to supply cigar boxes needed in his business to a customer, one Max Smith, up to that time a cigar manufacturer of Tampa then employing about 45 workmen in the manufacture of cigars, unless Max Smith would become a member of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association. Said Max Smith was at that time selling his cigars to Thompson and Company, a large mail order house in Tampa, which company caused the cigars so made by Max Smith to be sent to purchasers residing in the various states of the United States. Said Max Smith became a member of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association and for about three months following March 16, 1920, secured an adequate supply of cigar boxes from respondent manufacturer, Weldman, Fisher and Company.

Subsequently, respondent Weldman, Fisher and Company refused to supply said Max Smith with cigar boxes as theretofore and informed him that he could get no more boxes without the approval of A. A. Martinez, secretary of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, whom he was advised to see. Subsequently, said Max Smith was summoned before the officers or directors of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, and thereafter was expelled from respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, and was then cut off from the supply of cigar boxes needed in his business and rendered unable to fulfill his contracts for the manufacture and delivery of cigars.

Said Max Smith was expelled and his supply of cigar boxes cut off because he refused to comply with section 7, article 2, of the by-laws of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, in substance, requiring each member to permit a committee of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association to inspect his plant and to fix the price which he should pay his employees for the manufacture of cigars of various sizes.

Sometime after January 1, 1920, and prior to March 16, 1920, respondent members of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association and respondent cigar box manufacturers, combined, confederated and agreed with one another to unduly hinder competition in the sale of cigars in interstate commerce and as a means to that end respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association and respondent cigar box manufacturers entered into certain agreements in writing dated March 16, 1920, the intent and effect of which agreements was to give respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association full and complete control of the supply of cigar boxes practically available to the competitors of respondent cigar manufacturers doing business in Tampa and the neighborhood thereof. Said control of said cigar box supply by respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association was used by its officers and directors with the knowledge and consent of its members for the purpose of and had the effect of unduly hindering the sale of cigars in interstate commerce by making it difficult or impracticable for the competitors of members of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association to secure a supply of cigar boxes vitally necessary in the sale of cigars in interstate commerce and caused some of said competitors to curtail production of cigars, others to cease business for varying periods and still others to do business under a distinct handicap because of the extra expense and the difficulty and inconvenience of securing cigar boxes outside Tampa, Florida.

That prior to the organization of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association, and its entering into said agreement dated March 16, 1920, respondent members of respondent Cigar Manufacturers' Association were in active competition in interstate commerce with one another, and were then and are now in active competition with other cigar manufacturers throughout the United States similarly engaged.

Conclusion.

That the practices of said respondents under the condition and circumstances described in the foregoing findings are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce and constitute a violation of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties and for other purposes."

We print herewith a letter written by an old-time cigar maker, in which he gives his impression of the automatic cigar machine, which he saw in full operation on Board Walk in Atlantic City, N. J.:

Philadelphia, May 17, 1922.

The automatic cigar making machine, as I saw it in operation in a show window, on the board walk in Atlantic City, making an effort to produce Blackstone cigars, to take the place of Blackstone cigars which were formerly made by hand cigarmakers. Fortunately I met the manager, a cigarmaker. He appeared very anxious to explain every operation and every movement of the machine. I will say this automatic machine has some remarkably good points. In some respects the method employed to cut the wrappers, also the binders, is not new. The suction system is used in both of these operations; the rolling and putting on of the heads are far from being perfect work. Now comes the making of the most important part of any cigar, all practical cigarmakers, foremen and superintendents will tell you; it's the bunch upon which the cigar smoker must rely to get satisfaction from the cigar. The automatically machine-made bunch is in my opinion a failure; it is a travesty on a bunch made by a skilled mechanic; no cigarmaker would be able to hold a job anywhere if he produced a bunch similar to the bunch produced by this automatic machine. The boss or foreman would be very apt to ask him "who ever taught you how to make a bunch? Your rolling or wrapping and heads you make are very good, but you cannot make a bunch; you have no conception of flexibility, you fail to make a bunch that is corky, your bunch feels like a lead pencil—it's hard and solid; your bunch lacks a most important feature, that of being resilient." The making of this imperfect bunch by this automatic machine is its weak point, and in my opinion will lead to its failure, unless brought to greater degree of perfection. Insofar as the bunch is concerned, we cigarmakers have not much to fear from its competition; it is very far from being a perfect cigar producer.

Fraternally.

(Signed) A CIGARMAKER.

In sending out the cards required and prepared by the insurance company who have been trying to get information upon which they could make a definite statement concerning the taking over of our death benefits, we presumed that we had fully explained the matter in previous circulars.

The insurance company wants the data called for by the cards, on one side. On the other side of the card was what was intended to be general information to the members as to the probable nature of the contract that would be offered to the union by the insurance company. However many members have shown a decided reluctance to sign anything which appears to them so much like a binding agreement and for that reason I suggest members cross out the matter on the back of the card showing form of agreement with pen and ink. This will make assurance doubly sure.

These cards will then show only information demanded by the insurance company, covering the member's physical condition, age, and such other facts as show his desirability as an insurance risk, such as the company needs to know as a basis for its offer.

In order to relieve the minds of any of the members who have signed and returned the cards I have crossed out with ink the back of the card which shows for information only the basis for a form of contract.

I again repeat that the International Union is not committed nor does the signing of the card commit the member to any plan of the reinsurance of our members or to any proposition to sell to an insurance company our death benefit feature. Some of our members think that this can be done but no insurance company will make any offer in this direction until they are in possession of facts, data, etc., set forth on the cards which have been sent to all local unions and which members are requested to fill out and return to this office.

I again repeat that nothing will be done in this connection until a convention acts upon the matter and it is submitted to popular vote for approval or rejection.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If trade unionists will not employ union labor who will?

In our Union Label purchases, we employ ourselves. That is, we employ our craftsmen in other trades and they in turn employ us.

Non-union purchases, aside from being disloyal, destroy the whole chain or circle of union effort. If I hire a union painter and the union painter buys union made goods, we have swapped support much to the advantage of each.

All of which means that the use of our purchasing power shapes or mis-shapes our industrial conditions. When I ask for a union man, he is able to identify himself. Manufactured articles cannot so identify themselves and so require a union trade mark or label. The support of the union card and the union label is not only an obligated duty of every member of organized labor, but also in line with the enlightened self-interest of each and all of them.

In New York City a bakers' union in an effort to organize a non-union bake shop decided to open a union shop next door to the non-unionist, and in the competitive market teach him a lesson. The shop was opened and a cut price war followed, the bakers' union having all the best of the argument. Seeking relief from certain ruin, the proprietor of the non-union shop took his troubles to court, where it was decided that the union must close their shop, it being all wrong, unconstitutional, un-American and un-everything under the sun for a union, rich and powerful as compared with the individual baker, to use its power to financially injure the individual.

What of the individual cigar dealers, countless hundreds of them, who have been forced out of business and into bankruptcy by the rich and powerful trust? This has been and is the way the United Cigar Stores play the game. By such methods have they become well nigh impregnable.

Work and perseverance, faith and determination will finally triumph. Turn to any organization with a position of prominence; the attainment represents not alone ambition—it is supported by hard work, perseverance, call it what you will, for it all amounts to a "get-there-spirit"—gumption—which has constantly been combined with ambition and success. One hundred per cent organization of our trade is our ambition. An application of the foregoing principles will bring results.

To All International and National Unions, State Federations, and Central Bodies, and Local Unions:

The Whitehead-Hoag Company of Newark, N. J., has been declared unfair by the Essex Trades Council at their meeting on May 5th, 1922, at the request of the Machinists, Metal Polishers, Sheet Metal Workers, Electricians' Unions and Iron Trades Council.

Conferences were held, and the firm refused to recede from its position as regarded the Machinists, Tool Makers, Steel Engravers, Metal Polishers, Sheet Metal Workers and Electricians, with the result that these trades are out on strike against a reduction.

All international and national unions are requested to inform their local unions through their trade journal of the above stated facts.

The purpose of the proposed tariff revision is supposedly to stimulate American industry. Just how the proposed tariff increase on wrapper tobacco will stimulate our industry, seemingly taxed to the limit, is a question that interests both the manufacturer and the cigarmaker.

Consumers are demanding lower prices and as the proposed increase in duty will mean an additional cost of approximately $1.00 per thousand in the cost of making popular priced cigars the result will be more depressing than accelerating. The only American business this increase in duty will help, will be that of a corporation said to control to a large extent the wrapper production of this country.

There was held in the bonded warehouses of the United States, at the close of March, 1922, a total stock of 67,296,159 pounds of leaf tobacco, as compared with 75,717,210 at the close of March, 1921, a decline of 8,419,051 pounds. The value of the leaf tobacco on hand at the close of March, 1922, was $56,524,469, compared with $70,442,622, a loss of $13,918,153.

The following table gives in detail the amount of tobacco both wrappers and fillers, remaining in bonded warehouses of this country on March 31, 1922 and 1921:

	1922. Pounds.	1921. Pounds.
Leaf, suitable for wrappers .	3,427,230	6,077,587

The United States Steel Corporation is one of the most important factors in American industrial life.

Wall Street speculation is based largely upon what happens in the steel industry.

The United States Steel Corporation is the largest coal mine owner in the United States and is a powerful factor in the effort of mine owners to impose injustice upon the mine workers.

It is therefore well to know some of the important facts about the United States Steel Corporation.

It has $500,000,000 of undivided profits in its reserve fund. This money may be used for any purpose.

It has about 100,000 stockholders, less than two per cent of whom hold a majority of the stock.

Thirteen directors actually control the Corporation.

The total assets of the Corporation are listed at $2,430,000,000.

It owns 145 steel works, about 800,000 acres of coal and coke properties, 993,000,000 of railway, 1,470 locomotives and 112 steamships.

Directors of the United States Steel Corporation are also directors in other corporations having a combined capitalization of from $20,000,000,000 to $30,000,000,000.

The total net income of the United States Steel Corporation in the last 18 years amounts to $2,243,000,000, which is just a little less than enough to pay for its entire volume of listed assets.

The United States Steel Corporation has issued common stock to the amount of something over $500,000,000 all of which, when issued, was

"water"; and on this water it has paid continuous dividends amounting to more than $480,000,000 in 19 years.

Though the dividend rate has been five per cent on common stock and bonds and seven per cent on preferred stock, the actual rate of return on common and preferred stock has been about thirteen and one-half per cent.

These figures answer adequately any question the United States Steel Corporation may ask as to how it could abolish the twelve-hour day.

In spite of watered stock the United States Steel Corporation could do the things it ought to do by abandoning the idea of inordinate returns on stock and by abandoning the practice of piling up huge reserves the main purpose of which is to combat the resentment and dissatisfaction of the twelve-hour workers.

CORRESPONDENCE

Washington, D. C., May 23, 1922.

There are three fundamental principles that should have the widest publicity. They are:

"No freedom loving citizen should vote for any candidate who will not pledge himself to oppose any form of compulsory labor law.

"No justice loving citizen should vote for a candidate for any office who will not pledge himself to oppose injunctions and contempt proceedings as a substitute for trial by jury.

"No freedom loving citizen should vote for any candidate who will not pledge himself to vote for legislation abolishing child labor."

The fact that there are organizations and individuals striving in every way to secure legislation in various states that will establish compulsory labor makes it necessary to keep continually before the wage earners and their sympathizers how abhorrent such legislation would be.

The readiness with which judges are issuing injunctions restraining wage earners from performing acts which are lawful makes it imperative that attention should be called to the menace in judge-made law. Therefore, permit me to request that you print in every issue of your publication the above three principles at the head of your editorial columns at least until after the elections of 1922. This will be of great assistance to the cause of Labor.

With best wishes and assuring you of my desire to be helpful in any way within my power, I am,

Fraternally yours,

SAMUEL GOMPERS, President.
American Federation of Labor.

Newark, N. J., May 23, 1922.

Fellow Workers:

Union No. 138 of Newark, N. J., proposes amendments to the Constitution for Sections No. 61 and No. 150, which no doubt will seem radical to some of our members, but nevertheless in our opinion, these amendments should be adopted.

The amendment to Section No. 61 strikes out the optional clause of permitting the bunch making and rolling system.

If we are going to have any success in organizing the unorganized, we cannot expect them to become members of a local union and not have the same privileges and rights as any other member.

Under the present system, a bunch maker or roller can join the union where the system prevails, but he cannot take a travelling card and compel other unions to accept that card, where the system does not prevail.

The bunch making and rolling system has come to stay and is being used more and more and reference to the President's address made to the Cleveland Convention, 1920, shows that of the people engaged in making cigars in the entire country "71,194 are bunch breakers and rollers" and that there are "35,102 making the cigar complete by hand or mold," which shows that there are 36,092 more people working under the bunch breaking and roll up system than there are making the cigar complete by hand or by mold, and for this reason if for no other it is ridiculous, in our opinion, to keep that clause in the Constitution, and not alone retard the growth of our International Union, but in fact, it is the cause of our losing membership.

The other amendment proposed by Union No. 138 is to strike out from Section No. 150 the words "No union shall be allowed to furnish the label for cigars made in whole or part by machinery."

Machinery, especially bunch breaking machines and suction roll up table machines, in the cigar industry have come to stay, and it is a matter of history that any union that has attempted to buck machinery and tried to exclude it has met with disaster. The Printers, Glass Bottle Blowers, Molders and other trades have tried it, and failed, and have since recognized machinery, and control it today by having it operated by members of their union under union conditions.

In our opinion, the time has come when we must pursue the same course as these unions. If we wait any longer, we are afraid it will be too late. We may as well look the situation squarely in the face.

Members of our organization cannot get jobs in a union shop, and they are working in non-union shops where the rolling and bunch making system is being used, and also in shops where cigars are made in part by machinery. There are hundreds and thousands of members of our Union, and they are working under miserable conditions and low wages, and the result is that they cannot retain their membership, and are suspended.

If we adopt these amendments, it is our belief that some of these shops can be unionized and conditions and wages made so that men and women can make a living and will become members of our organization.

These amendments have been proposed after earnest thought and long deliberation. It has been under consideration practically for the past two years, and we hope that every member of the International Union will think seriously and intelligently, and that a sufficient number of local unions will endorse these amendments, so that they can be put to a vote of the membership at large.

Fraternally,

CIGAR MAKERS' UNION, NO. 138.

Newark, N. J.

Attest: Henry F. Hilfers, Sec'y, No. 138.

The denorable conditions existing in the industry today should really necessitate the employment of more organizers instead of the discharge of a number. How does the advocate insist upon the discharge of a number of organizers, expect to eliminate these denorable conditions, and educate the unorganized worker to the spirit of organization? These attacks leveled upon organizers are based upon a misstatement of facts. In my district, Philadelphia, the manufacturers are producing cigars by suction and automatic machine, employing twelve thousand workers seventy-five per cent of whom are girls without knowledge of organization, spending millions of dollars in advertising the brands made by the underpaid men and girl cigar-makers, distributing their product throughout the country, attempting to undermine all fair paid districts.

The manufacturers employ disorganizers in the form of lackey foremen and assistants to poison the minds of the girls so as to combat the untiring efforts of the organizers to educate them. The demand made upon the organizer is paramount, making it necessary that he work day and night, leaving not a stone unturned to educate the unorganized workers the value of the principles upheld by the Cigarmakers' International Union.

Never was there a greater need of label agitation than at present. With organized labor neglecting their duty by failing to demand the union label on all goods purchased by them necessitates added activity on the part of label agitators, to wake up the organized worker to use the one big weapon he possesses, and believe me, one (Big Bertha) when all organized workers can be drilled, by unceasing agitation to use it.

DEMAND THE UNION LABEL ALWAYS.

Discharging of organizers is what I would term giving up the fight, laying down on the job, playing into the hands of the manufacturers giving them clear sailing to beat out every spark of manhood and womanhood in us cigarmakers.

We must fight harder than ever to capture the minds of the unorganized worker.

We must fight harder than ever to teach the organized worker to patronize UNION MADE GOODS, and we need organizers and label agitators to do the trick.

Fraternally,

HARRY GIFFORD.

Niagara Falls, March 1, 1922.

To Officers and Members of Trades and Labor Councils and Local Trades Unions:

Fellow Workers:—

The Union Cigarmakers of Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, London and Vancouver have been forced into a desperate struggle with unscrupulous manufacturers who have locked out our members during the past three years, and who are now operating their factories under the vicious "Open Shop Plan," the prevailing piece-work prices being much below the pre-war scale.

The "Open Shoppers" are determined to crush our Local Unions and are employing many advertisers and travellers to force their cheap labor cigars on the Retailers and Consuming Public.

To offset this pernicious influence by the "Open Shoppers" and to more readily enable the Retailers and the Members of Organized Labor and a friendly public (as consumers) to create a demand for "Union Blue Label Cigars," we have compiled a list of Union Cigar Factories, and Union Label brands of cigars. We are herewith mailing your organization copies of said list, which we ask your members to show the Retailers and request them to stock some of the "Union Label" Brands.

This class of co-operation by your members will enable our Unions to fight the "Open Shoppers" and assist us in retaining the large number of smaller Union factories.

As many small union factories do not employ traveling salesmen, owing to the excessive cost on a limited production, we would advise some member of your organization to arrange for a Local Agency, with any of the said factories. Good commissions are earned, while you advance Union conditions.

"Co-operation" by Organized Labor will mean salvation to the workers. Co-operation, as consumers, will defeat the vicious plans of the "Open Shoppers." Help us to win. All information will be cheerfully forwarded to Unions and retail cigar dealers upon request. Have this circular letter read at consecutive meetings of your organization.

Remember that "Union Made Cigars" always display the Union Label on the box.

Accept no others. Thanking you in advance for your co-operation, we remain,

Yours very fraternally,

D. W. KENNEDY, Sec'y-Treas.

73 Clifton Ave., Niagara Falls, Ont.

Tampa, Fla., May 31, 1922.

To the Membership.

Comrades: Local Union, No. 500, in proposing the amendments to the Constitution, believes that by adopting same the International Union would accomplish a measure strongly felt, after our Out-of-Work Benefit were abolished, as you all know the condition of the trade for two years has been and is such, that it requires the adoption of these amendments if we are to remain in a position from which we can meet the present and future, so we expect your endorsements and favorable vote on the amendments.

By order of the regular meeting.

REPORT OF ORGANIZERS

Knoxville, Tenn., June 4, 1922.

Birmingham, a flourishing city of the Southland, one of the leading in number of population in these parts; a recognized industrial center, situated in a fertile mineral belt, and surrounded by nature's bounteous stores in most things she does well and seems to prosper except in the local cigar business of our trade. But few are left to represent the industry. Neglect in agitation and proper management seems to be the cause. The field is there waiting for the live operator in Union-made cigars. All efforts were put forth during a brief stay to stimulate trade. Addressed the Central Labor Union in behalf of label goods; attended the Alabama State Federation of Labor Convention at Gadsden, and appealed for consistent recognition of union-made products.

Chattanooga, business very dull. Addressed the Central Labor Council and various other local unions in agitation for union-made cigars and the necessity of greater energy in organization, with more spirit of co-operation.

Nashville is under the pall of general depression in industry. Trade very quiet there for several months. Some slight indication of improvement. A few of the members active in agitating and boosting; they refuse to be counted out. Continued effort will restore good conditions and reclaim the trade. Addressed the central body and several locals in a campaign of agitation for label goods.

Knoxville—practically the same condition prevails here as in most all other cities of the South; business generally quiet but more pronounced so in our trade than in other lines of industry. There has been a gradual falling off due to many causes, but primarily the lack of indulgence on the part of cigarmakers and manufacturers in agitation and keeping the merits of home goods keyed up to the public, with a greater demand for the label. Spoke at the central body and visited merchants.

Fraternally.

R. S. SEXTON,
General Organizer.

Newark, N. J., June 5, 1922.

After working awhile with the organizers of Philadelphia helping to distribute circulars and arranging for meetings, I proceeded to New York City and assisted in conferences held in that city with the union and representatives of the union and firms that were requesting reductions in the bill of prices. After several conferences with the firms in question and the committees of the various shops the matter was settled by the workers of the shops accepting a small reduction and all returned to work.

I then proceeded to Newark, N. J., and found the local of this city preparing for an extensive campaign of label agitation; they have circulars printed which they send to all the cigar dealers setting forth reasons why they should handle and sell union-made cigars; after this the committees of the union visit the dealers and have a talk with the proprietors giving them further reasons why they should sell label cigars.

I visited many of the local trade unions here and gave them a talk on the use of the label at which time a committee of the cigarmakers distributed blotters with an advertisement of the union label on, asking them to patronize only label goods. I am of the opinion that the work of Union 138 will have some good effect and bring about a larger consumption of union label goods.

I also visited Jersey City and spoke at the meeting of the central labor body, a meeting of Union 131, and the Joint Label Board of the Unions of Jersey City. There has been some misunderstanding between the joint unions and a manufacturer of Jersey City, but I believe that the matter will be adjusted to the satisfaction of all concerned, and there is a possibility of this shop growing to a larger shop, thus giving employment to more union men.

Fraternally yours,

WM. A. McCABE,
Organizer.

Vancouver, B. C., June 4, 1922.

From May 3rd to 7th I continued on with label agitation in Vancouver, having covered nearly all meetings, in the interest of the label, and local situation. I then went to Victoria where I found the cigar trade very dull, members having no work at the trade have drifted away; those remaining in city are working away from trade. Victoria is flooded with Eastern cigars, and it will require considerable advertising and agitation to build up label trade again. I addressed the following unions in interest of label and our cause: Electrical workers, printing pressmen, regular and special meeting of brewery workers, civic employees, carpenters, bookbinders, barbers, trade council, brotherhood carpenters, pile drivers and dock workers, clerks; also distributed cards and circulars at meetings and cigar stores. May 20 returned to Vancouver, it being the desire of members of local 357 that I remain in Vancouver and carry on negotiations with the parties who are interested in the purchasing of the Stettler Cigar Co. The Government not being desirous of operating the factory, has completed arrangements whereby eastern interests will most likely take over the concern. After several attempts I succeeded in having a conference with the prospective owner, who is here to close the deal. Secretary Wheatcroft of Union 357 was with me. We went into the situation and promised to co-operate to make it a success if an agreement could be reached to operate a union shop.

I also visited Westminster, but as it was the ending of the month there were no meetings on. I visited cigar stores and distributed cards.

Aside from the industrial depression the cigar trade has been hit again by increased taxes, of which no doubt the cigarmaker will have to stand the blunt, as they will try to give wages another cut. We need organization and co-operation if we wish to maintain our standard of living. Let us all pull together.

Yours fraternally,

JAS. A. SULLIVAN,
Int'l Organizer.

New York, June 7, 1922.

Our campaign of organization in N. Y. is having the desired effect, and that is to frame the minds of the workers in the cigar trade to the duty they owe themselves to build a large powerful organization so that they can stand up before the manufacturers with a solid front.

The activities of the Cigar Makers Int. Union have established the fact that there is no alternative for the cigar workers but to join our union if they ever expect to get better wages and conditions, and to break the chains of slavery, which the manufacturers have taken every advantage of through the workers' own lack of thought, in not joining their trade organization.

We feel sure, and it is pleasing to know, that the workers in N. Y. are realizing that they must join their trade organization if they want to gather strength to help themselves, instead of helping the boss with their weakness, as it is very plain that as individuals they have no voice or power of resistance.

We are making every effort in N. Y. and sparing neither time nor money to impress the workers in our trade that the Cigar Makers' Int. Union is the only means that can be helpful to them and as our doors are wide open to receive them they have only themselves to blame if they do not enter and create united strength.

We have called shop meetings and the bosses have challenged them, threatened and intimidated to discharge them if they even attended a meeting; the bosses even stood outside of where we called meetings to watch who would attempt to go to a meeting.

We feel certain that these tactics, to crush the thought of the workers, will only arouse the spirit that the workers possess, and that they, the workers, will become more determined to join their trade organization, and rebel against such treatment of the bosses, which is against all rules of civilization.

On June 6th we held a mass meeting and motion picture review at the Labor Temple, 14th St. and 2nd Ave., N. Y., for Italian and Spanish cigarmakers. We invited them and their families to attend. Mr. Arturo Giovannitti, Gen. Secy. of the Italian Chamber of Labor; Mr. Salvatore Nufo, 1st Vice-Pres., and Mr. Luigi Antonini, Gen. Secy. of the Int. Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, made powerful appeals to the workers to join the Int. Union.

We are going to continue these meetings in different sections of the city; we are going to call them to shop meetings in spite of the threats of the bosses until the appeals that are made for a big organization and a solid front are answered by the enrollment of the men and women in the cigar trade in the Int. Union.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR

May 1, 1922.

To All Organized Labor, Greetings:

The primaries this year will largely determine whether misrule shall hold sway for another two years or more in Congress and state legislatures or whether the people will be represented by those who believe in progress and even-handed justice.

All hope of remedial legislation of a really constructive nature by the present Congress was lost months ago. Subsidies for railroads and ship owners, relieving the well-to-do from taxation by placing the burden through a sales tax on those least able to bear it, remission of fines for food profiteers, adding to the number of judges in order to make the jobs more worth while and the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes more easy, have constituted the ruling passion of the reactionaries in Congress. At the same time reactionaries just as active have held the reins in state legislatures, some of which have attempted to pass legislation as vicious as that in which Congress has been interested.

It is therefore most imperative that the wage earners of our country awaken to the serious dangers ahead. It will require the greatest unity of action and determination to defeat those who, because of their lack of regard for the interests of the people, will have all the antagonistic, reactionary forces united in their support.

Upon the shoulders of those who control legislation must rest responsibility for the present unemployment. Through no fault of their own more than 5,000,000 wage earners are idle. They are all willing and anxious to work but they can not find work. The same influences that are striving to break down the standards of labor have also chosen as victims the farmers of our country. Not only are the wage earners crying for relief but the farmers have their backs to the wall and are just as earnestly and insistently demanding of Congress to do something to save them from bankruptcy.

The American Federation of Labor Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee therefore appeals to all organized labor and to all justice loving citizens without regard to political party affiliations to unite to defeat those who have proved false to the people, and to support those who have proved by their public acts that they will work and vote for no legislation that will injure the many in order to benefit the privileged few.

The injunction abuse with its attending contempt proceedings has become so flagrant that even a judge here and there has called attention to attending dangers. Members of the United States Senate have declared in open session that federal courts (except the U. S. Supreme Court) should be abolished as they are not only duplicating the work of the state courts, but are definitely recognized as "rich men's courts." Hon. William H. Taft, now chief justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, has declared there is "no more important question than the improvement of the administration of justice," and to accomplish that end he advised:

We must make it so the poor man will have as nearly as possible an equal opportunity in litigating as the rich man, and under the present conditions, ashamed as we may be of it, this is not a fact.

The president of the Carnegie Foundation in the introduction to a report on "Justice and the Poor," said:

The very existence of free government depends upon making the machinery of justice so effective that the citizens of a democracy shall believe in its impartiality and fairness.

The chief justice of the municipal courts of Chicago also adds this warning:

When litigation is too costly the result for most persons is a denial of justice. Such denial or partial denial of justice engenders social and commercial friction. The sense of helplessness this causes incites citizens to take the law into their own hands. It causes crimes of violence. It saps patriotism and destroys civic pride. It arouses jealousy and breeds contempt for law and government.

These warnings, however, failed to appeal to a West Virginia Federal Judge. He granted an injunction which forbade not only the lawful right of the workers to organize but evicted several thousand boycotted and nearly destitute men, women and children from their homes. Judges in the fifteenth century did not assume more arbitrary power.

Then there is the persistent demand of unfair employers that involuntary servitude should be once more established in the United States. This is to be brought about by compulsory labor laws, which would compel men and women in industry to work for whatever their employers are willing they shall have or be imprisoned. Every effort has been made to prohibit the normal activities of Labor. Such laws would make wage earners the wards of their employers and they would no longer be free men and free women.

The people are permitted no voice on the most important issues that come before Congress and the state legislatures. This was most flagrantly demonstrated in the passage of the Volstead prohibition enforcement act. Believing that this should be called to the attention of the people the Executive Council issued a statement on February 25, 1922, as follows:

To the American People:

The American Federation of Labor, as the spokesman of the unorganized as well as the organized toilers, having in mind the interest and the welfare of our people, decided by unanimous vote in its convention held in Denver, in June, 1921, that the Volstead Enforcement Act must be modified so as to promote the manufacture and sale of beer and light wines.

Before this decision was reached the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. had caused to be made an exhaustive investigation of the effects of the Volstead Act. It was shown by this investigation that there had been:

1. A general disregard of the law among all classes of people including those who made the law.
2. Creation of thousands of moonshiners among both country and city dwellers.
3. The creation of an army of bootleggers.
4. An amazing increase in the traffic in poisons and deadly concoctions and drugs.
5. An increased rate of insanity, blindness and crime among the users of these concoctions and drugs.
6. Increase in unemployment due to loss of employment by workers in forty-five industries directly or indirectly connected with the manufacture of liquors.
7. Increase in taxes to city, state and national governments amounting to approximately one thousand million dollars per year.

Having in mind these results of the extreme interpretation of the prohibition amendment contained in the Volstead Act, as well as the enormous expense of the attempt to enforce that unenforceable legislation, it is our conclusion that the act is an improper interpretation of the prohibition amendment, that it is a social and a moral failure, and that it is a dangerous breeder of discontent and of contempt for all law.

Something of the economic effect of the Volstead Law may be seen by considering the fact that in 1918, according to government statistics, $110,000,000 worth of farm products were consumed by breweries, and that the transportation of these products to the manufacturer and thence to the consumer necessitated the use of 133,686 railroad cars. In addition to this, breweries in operation in 1918 consumed 50,000 carloads of coal. It must be obvious that the total economic effect of the destruction of this industry is tremendous.

The American Federation of Labor always has been the advocate of law and order and always has endeavored to create conditions which would make possible the highest type of citizenship.

We do not protest against the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution which now is a part of the fundamental law of the land. We do not protest against the principle established by the Eighteenth Amendment. It is our contention that the Eighteenth Amendment under a reasonable and proper legislative interpretation would be beneficial to our country and would have the support of the great majority of our people.

The Eighteenth Amendment, however, under the present drastic and unreasonable legislative interpretation has a destructive and deteriorating effect and influence in every direction.

We seek no violation of the Eighteenth Amendment but, on the contrary, we declare for a reasonable interpretation of that amendment in order that the law may be enforceable and enforced, and in order that the people of our country may not suffer from an unjust and fanatical interpretation of the Constitution.

We urge, therefore, that all citizens in every walk of life demand from their representatives and senators in Washington immediate relief from the unwarranted restriction contained in the Volstead Act; and we likewise suggest to the citizenship of our country the wisdom and advisability of bearing in mind the attitude toward this issue of office-holders and aspirants to office in coming elections in order that there may be restored to the people the lawful use of wholesome beer and light wines, which, under the provisions of the Eighteenth Amendment, can and should be rightfully declared as non-intoxicating beverages.

It is to the issues hereinabove presented that the people of our country must direct their activities. If they do not replace the present members of Congress and the state legislatures who have brought on these conditions, they will have another two years of struggle and sacrifice.

Therefore, the American Federation of Labor Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee directs the attention of the wage earners and their sympathizers to two principles that should be followed in the campaign. These are:

No freedom-loving citizen should vote for a candidate who will not pledge himself to oppose any form of compulsory labor law.

No justice-loving citizen should vote for a candidate for any office who will not pledge himself to oppose injunctions and contempt proceedings as a substitute for trial by jury.

Let your slogans be:

No judge-made laws.

Abolish the injunction abuse.

Make justice blind in fact as well as in theory.

Amendments to the Constitution of the United States should guarantee rights, not take them away.

No compulsory labor laws.

No Sales Tax.

No wage earners or farmers to be enslaved.

No subsidies for the privileged few.

No remission of fines to food profiteers.

These issues, upon all of which depends the future of our republic, should be discussed with the organization of farmers.

Whatever injures labor injures the farmer.

Whatever benefits labor benefits the farmers.

Whatever is the interest of labor and the farmer is for the best interest of all the people except the privileged few. We urge you to be up and doing. The democracy of our republic must be maintained by labor and the farmers and all others who believe in good government.

By authority and direction of Executive Council of American Federation of Labor.

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President.

508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 318 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

I. M. ORNBURN, 236 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

D. W. KENNEDY, 73 Clifton Ave., Niagara Falls, Ont., Third Vice President.

MANUEL GONZALES, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

ALEXANDER RAMSEY, Nevada City, Calif., Sixth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Seventh Vice President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also, as per section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member; if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect March 27, 1922, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after March 27 are exempt from payment of the March assessment. Class B members don't have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members don't have to pay the special strike fund assessment.

UNION NOTES

Union Notes by 97, Boston.

Five-day week means steadier work,
The employment of a greater number,
Longer life for the worker,
Better health, that is all.

Do the Trusts, Syndicates and Princes of Finance have a tendency to teach the worker the value of organization.

All amendments to the Constitution should be carefully read and analyzed before voted upon.

Building trades are improving which means a like improvement in all industries.

Some of the members of our legislature want to enact a law so that the trade union can sue and be sued, which is a direct blow at organized labor. It will enable any member at the behest of his employer to tie up your funds. It will be submitted to referendum.

Members of our legislature were elected prior to the passage of the Volstead Act, otherwise some of them would not have been there.

Do you realize if all the label trades were to insist on having the Union Label on all commodities the Union Card and the Union Button what a revolution this would be? This is the weapon, why not use it.

97 never turns down an appeal. The donation may be small but we give what we can.

97 did all they could for the textile strikers.

Kansas law ought to be repealed.

I had a dream that we had a daily press which told that truth and whose editorial columns were not on sale.

Credit Unions are the people's bank. 97 has one; they kill the loan shark.

Looks like a free State University in this commonwealth. Why not in other New England states?

Education should not be a monopoly.

Once more all other forms of labor organizations have gone out of existence except the trade union.

If arrangements can be made with an insurance company to take over our death benefits it will be an achievement that will strengthen our craft. The promoters should be encouraged.

How the buckeyes grow during a depression and how they give up under normal conditions.

We did suffer some reverses but it was not a rout. We will come back, don't retard the movement.

The cheap districts must be organized.

Do you believe in solidarity? Then if you must smoke cigarettes see that the Union Label is on the box.

How much of your earnings do you spend for Union goods?

What does the label denote?

HENRY ABRAHAM.

Union 221, South Bend, Ind., would like to hear at once from E. E. Blount (119761).

Union 44, St. Louis, Mo., would like to hear from Ewald Cisenski (41996) on business for his benefit.

Any secretary holding the card of or knowing the whereabouts of George J. McDermott please notify Union 77, Minneapolis, Minn.

Union 3, Paterson, N. J., annulled the retiring card of Michael Marcus (100768) for working against the interests of the International Union.

Secretary holding card of J. B. Madeiros (32112) please enter six 60c out of work stamps received at 129, Denver, January 16 to March 4, 1922. This entry was omitted when the member drew his card.

Correction.

In March, 1903, Union 87, Brooklyn, paid $40.00 on account of death of wife of Mr. Abrams. In reporting the payment the secretary gave the number of the son instead of the father. Hence when in 1921 the wife of the son, Michael Abrams, died the $40.00 paid was declared illegal. This was due to faulty records submitted to International Office and same is corrected in accordance with evidence submitted by Mr. Michael Abrams.

INTERNATIONAL FINES

The International Executive Board approved the application of 76, Hannibal, Mo., to fine W. E. Dennis, 60656, $25 for working in the non-union shop of J. E. Dennis, Berry, Ill.

Fines of $10.00 or Less.

Union 44, St. Louis, Mo., fined Henry Hansman (44489) $10.00 for working over time.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

Union 251 of New York offers the following amendment to the International Constitution: Amend Section 193 by adding the following:

All fines imposed upon members, or non-members, that have been imposed for working in non-union shops or strike shops or for any other reasons except fines that are automatically levied by the constitution are hereby rescinded.

Union No. 16, Binghamton, N. Y., proposes the following amendment to Section 56 of the International Constitution. Strike out the word "six" in line two and insert "three." Section as amended to read:

Section 56. The President shall appoint, subject to the confirmation of the Executive Board, at least three members to be known as the Label Agitators and Organizers, whose duty shall be to organize unions, agitate for the use of the union label, deliver free lectures and instruct local unions in the discharge of their duties. They shall visit such towns and cities as the International President may direct. The organizers appointed shall be located in such places as in the judgment of the International President it would be considered practical, provided also that the funds of the International Union would permit of the execution of these provisions. That the International President shall have the power to transfer one or more organizers to assist another organizer.

Union 138, Newark, N. J., proposes the following amendment:

Amend Section 150 by striking out on lines 31, 32, 33, after the word "thousand" "no union shall be allowed to furnish the labels for cigars made in whole or in part by machinery."

Section as amended to read:

Sec. 150. Each local union shall furnish through the shop collectors or committeemen (as the case may be) to all strictly union shops, free of charge, as many of the labels as may be required from week to week for all cigars actually made by members of the union and persons holding retiring cards. All label orders shall be signed by the shop collector; the label order blanks shall be furnished by the International President at cost. No shop shall be considered a strictly union shop unless the packers of the shop are members of the International Union, and the apprentice law of the local union be complied with. Where the manufacturer deals in Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, it shall be optional with local unions to withhold the label from such firm. It shall be optional with local unions to grant the union label to any manufacturer or firm whose name or firm name appears in or about the box containing Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, or whose name or firm name appears on or about such non-union cigars. All labels issued must bear the ink stamp. It shall be optional with local unions to paste them on the boxes. But in no case shall the union label be used in a factory in the United States or Canada which pays less than $9.00 per thousand for making or less than $1.00 for packing per thousand for mold work—5 molds of 20 bunches. Nor which pays less than $10.00 per thousand for hand work, less than 4 molds of 10 bunches each with press on table, or two 20-bunch molds in shaper press, to be considered hand work. Nor shall it be allowed on any cigars sold for less than $25.00 per thousand. This shall not prevent a local union from establishing a minimum bill of prices on small cigars four inches in length or less, and weighing not more than three pounds per thousand. Subject to the approval of the International President and International Executive Board. This shall not disbar local unions from establishing a price above $25.00 per thousand. It shall be optional with local unions to grant labels to members who are not employing any journeymen if they have been members for less than one year. This shall not apply to members suspended who were, prior to their suspension, members of the International Union for one year or longer provided they be reinstated within six months after suspension. But in no event shall a manufacturer be permitted to use the label who offers presents as an inducement for the sale of his goods, but this shall not be so construed as to prevent a manufacturer from issuing coupons to the consumer which may be redeemed in presents or otherwise.

All labels must be pasted upon the boxes before the boxes leave the factory.

Union No. 138 of Newark, N. J., proposes the following amendment to Section 61 of the International Constitution:

Amend Section 61 by striking out lines 12, 13, 14, which read as follows:

"It shall be optional with local unions to permit the introduction of the roller and bunch breaking system under their respective jurisdictions, wherever this system does not exist at the present time."

Section as amended to read:

Sec. 61. All persons engaged in the cigar industry, regardless of color or nationality, except Chinese coolies and tenement-house workers, shall be eligible to membership; this shall include manufacturers who employ no journeymen cigarmakers, and foremen who have less than six members of the union working under them. Foremen that are members in accordance with the above, shall not be allowed to contract to work for a smaller weekly wage than the earnings would amount to if paid for in accordance with the bill of prices of the union under whose jurisdiction they may be at work. No one shall be considered a foreman, within the meaning of this section, that has not the power to hire and discharge help.

Any member of Cigarmakers International Union who shall become a member of any organization which is dual or rival to the Cigarmakers International Union shall forfeit membership in the C. M. I. U.

Amendment proposed by Local No. 500, Tampa.

Amend Section 117 of the constitution which should read:

Section 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year, should be granted an out-of-work stamp continually while he or she is out of work which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied, of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. Members out of employment from December 15th to January 15th of any year shall not be entitled to an out of work stamp or assessment for such period.

Section 140g provides no sick or out-of-work benefits shall be paid to members adjudged insane.

Amend Section 118 by striking out all four lines of first paragraph, second paragraph to remain the same.

Section 118 as amended to read:

Section 118. Any member having received four weeks' strike or sick benefit shall not be entitled to out-of-work stamps for four weeks thereafter; a sick member incapable of doing a day's work shall not be considered out of work.

The amendment of Union 12, Oneida, N. Y., as published in the May issue, as follows:

In Section 56, after the word "least," on line 2, strike out the word "six" and insert the word "three." Instead; also add "and no additional label agitators or organizers shall be elected or appointed subject to the expense of the Cigarmakers' locals or of the Cigarmakers' International Union until the membership of the Cigarmakers' International Union reaches fifty thousand (50,000), not including Class A or Class B members." Balance of Sec. 56 to remain unchanged.

Sec. 56, as so amended, to read:

"The President shall appoint, subject to the confirmation of the Executive Board, at least three (3) members to be known as the label agitators and organizers, and no additional label agitators or organizers shall be appointed, subject to the expense of the local unions, or to the International Union, until such time as the membership of the International Union reaches the number of fifty thousand (50,000) members, not including Class A or Class B members, whose duty shall be to organize unions, agitate for the use of the union label, deliver free lectures, and instruct local unions in the discharge of their duties. They shall visit such towns and cities as the International President may direct. No other change.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $3.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter. In the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months, a member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments, and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequently thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example—a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

Suppressed News!

Editor's Note: Because of suppression of vital news, the International Labor News is going to furnish each week for eight weeks one story suppressed by the daily press. This paper will publish one of these suppressed stories each month in an effort to compel attention for vital information hitherto kept from the people. Readers are urged to clip these stories and pass them on to others.

Orgy of Bank Crashes Breaking All Records
Gets Silence from Press.

Washington, D. C., May 00—Newspapers do not dare print this fact:

During the calendar year 1921 the doors of 528 state and private banks were closed.

Of these 163 were able to reopen, or to make satisfactory arrangements.

That left 365 failed banks.

Liabilities of these failed banks totalled approximately $96,000,000. Thus, the average per bank was $263,000.

In the southern geographical division there were 131 failures. In the western states there were 122. In the Pacific states there were 43 and in the middle states there were 60. There were but five in the eastern states and but four in New England.

The facts regarding the failures of state banks were made available to the press by a statement issued by the Comptroller of the Currency on April 7, 1922. A diligent search of the newspapers of that and succeeding days fails to reveal any use of this statement. It appeared, however, in certain confidential services to bankers.

Rotten conditions cannot be remedied when necessary information is lacking. It was this policy of suppression of vital information that delayed the organization of the Federal Reserve System.

Failure of a bank a day in 1921 reveals an appalling condition that should be remedied and that the Federal Reserve System did not remedy.

The policy of suppression would be fostered by a bill now before Congress providing for the fine and imprisonment of any individual who makes a statement that may injure the credit or reputation of any bank. This puts the Golden Calf on a higher plane than any other institution. "Thou shalt not take my name in vain" in this case would be punishable by fine and imprisonment.

The office of the Comptroller of the Currency admits that state banks throughout the United States severely criticized and objected in every conceivable manner to publication of the facts of bank failures.

Statements of the bank failures during 1922 are available but since newspapers will not print facts and dare not because of objections by the financial interests backing them, newspaper men are, of course, not interested in digging up the facts.

No decision by the United States Supreme Court has ever caused in recent years so much concern and comment as that in the case of the miners in the Arkansas Coronado coal case. The facts are that the Supreme Court's decision reversed that of the lower court, which had found against the union and all of the defendants. The decision itself could and should have been written in one paragraph of three or four lines. Chief Justice Taft, who rendered the decision for the court, took about thirty pages in which to read into the case matters and things that did not properly belong, and it is this part of the affair that has caused all the commotion. The United Mine Workers International Union was held not to be responsible. Because of this District No. 21 and all other defendants were discharged from any liability under the judgment rendered by the lower court. However, the court in its general opinion had too many ifs, buts, and ands.

It, however, nowhere in the decision proper or in the gratuitous, voluminous, thirty-page opinion says or even intimates that a member of the union who happened to own property, a little home or a few dollars in the bank could be held liable or responsible to satisfy any judgment the courts might find against the union. It in no wise indicates that an innocent member of the union could be held responsible for any act of violence or infraction of the law committed by any other member or members of the same union.

The court, however, did say in its extraordinary, unprecedented opinion that if the union had sanctioned an illegal act or violated a written statutory law, and it resulted in proven damage the funds of the local union could be seized to satisfy such judgment, and that it would not be necessary to prove that every member of the union participated in the illegal acts.

We again reassert that the decision, however, and the opinion in no wise hold that the personal property of the individual member could be seized for the purpose of satisfying any judgment in such a case.

We have no desire to and shall not minimize the decision nor shall we accentuate it and credit to it things that don't rightfully belong therein. No member need have any apprehension that any property he may have or be interested in is in any way endangered by the decision rendered and the opinion given in the notorious Coronado case.

The opinion expressed by the court if ever put into force and effect is a blow to organized labor. A trade union to be successful must have funds with which to carry forward its legitimate activities. It can not function in its full capacity if its funds may be tied up as they were in the Coronado case, to satisfy any judgment that the courts might subsequently find. The funds of a local union are just as necessary to it as food is to man or animal, as steam is to the engine, as juice is for the electric light. Take away food and water from man and he dies from starvation. Take away the funds of the union and it is stripped of its power to function.

The Supreme Court says in one part of its opinion: "It is contended on behalf of District No. 21 and the local unions that only those members of these bodies whom the evidence shows to have participated in the torts can be held civilly liable for the damages. There was evidence to connect all these individual defendants with the acts which were done, and in view of our finding that District No. 21 and the unions are suable, we can not yield to the argument that it would be necessary to show the guilt of every member of District No. 21 and of each union in order to hold the union and its strike funds to answer."

Organized labor asks for no special privileges and no rights not accorded to any other group of society. It, however, demands and must have the right to properly function and to do the things that are necessary and in keeping with and not offensive to statutory law. We don't believe in violence or the commission of any act outlawed by statutory law. We say that if the union or any member thereof commits an overt unlawful act it should be taken before the court and the guilty punished accordingly. We protest against any conceived notion on the part of the courts or anyone else that the innocent member of the union must in any way suffer for the acts of another member of the union, the commission of which the innocent member was in no wise responsible for and did not sanction or believe in.

No court has held to this so far, and it will be a sorry day for the Republic if they ever do.

The laws are created for the protection of organized society. The courts are established for the purpose of punishing the guilty and protecting the innocent.

The law predicated upon common sense and justice rightfully holds that no one shall be punished unless found guilty by a jury of his peers. Labor fully endorses this principle. It knows that society at large and the union can not succeed without laws and courts.

On the question of the court's ruling that funds of the union could be attached to pay damages a very able attorney on Lawyer's this particular matter, in the Opinion. Coronado coal case, says: "You will see that this was an attempt on the part of the attorneys for the unions to have the court hold that the union funds did not constitute separate funds of themselves, but were funds in which each member had an interest, but that the court insisted and held that when the money had been paid into the union that it belonged to the union and that it was not necessary to show a unanimous vote in order to reach these funds, but it does not say anywhere that a member who did not participate in the doing of the act complained of was liable, nor does it hold that any of his property is liable for those damages. The same language and the same argument that let out the International Union will also let out every member of the unions that did not participate—that is to say, take any part in the doing of the acts complained of."

He also said that he was "unable to find anything in the Coronado coal case opinion that should give any member of the union any uneasiness or disquietude because of the language of the opinion." He further said: "The opinion says that it is the law that you can not hold the international body of the United Mine Workers for a strike or any damages resulting from any strike in which the international body did not participate and in which the international body as such did not do any of the things complained of."

Through the aid of the obliging United States Supreme Court it seems the Congress can not pass a child labor law or Child prevent the product of child labor Labor. entering into other states of the Union. No more important question confronts the public than that of the protection of child labor. The future welfare and stability of our Republic depends largely upon the health and strength, physical and mental, of coming generations. It is a crime to permit employers to employ children in a manner that saps their vitality, their strength, and their usefulness as future citizens of our great Republic.

One law after another passed in good faith by the representatives of the people generally in the Congress assembled has been declared null and unconstitutional by the august, all-powerful Supreme Court. The Congress might try again following the old verse, "If at first you don't succeed try, try again."

Practically all children employed in most industries are employed either on machines or the product of machines. Since the Federal Government issues patents for all such machines and devices and protects the owner thereof during the life of the patent, which is seventeen years, it has the undoubted moral and legal right to specify that no minor under the age of eighteen years, seventeen years, or sixteen years shall be employed on any machine, or the product thereof, patented, and protected by the Federal Government. It is a well-established fact in law and practice that in whatever enterprises the government, state or municipal charters or licenses, it has a right to prescribe certain conditions and regulations. This is established in the case of street railways, chartered by the state or municipality, where in some instances the state or municipality exercises the undoubted right to prescribe the amount of fare that may be charged, etc., etc.

The future welfare of the Republic to a large extent rests upon the children of today. The minor in a legal sense is known as the ward of the state. The state very properly assumes the right to protect the minor child. The state undoubtedly has a right to adopt the course suggested in the foregoing to protect the employment of minors under a certain age on any machine or device or product thereof patented and protected by the government during the life of the patent.

Our laws are enacted for the purpose of protecting and safeguarding the lives and property of all individuals and Protect the all elements of society. The Innocent. courts are established for the purpose of protecting the innocent against the machinations and false charges of secret or open enemies.

The courts are also established for the purpose of punishing those guilty of any unlawful act committed against society or the individual or any violation of statutory law. There is a saying which is as old as recorded time that "It is better that ninety and nine guilty persons escape than that one innocent person should suffer." This quotation warrants us in saying that the very first and paramount duty of the court is to protect the innocent, the Supreme Court in the Coronado coal case to the contrary notwithstanding.

In 999 cases out of every 1,000 where violence in trade disputes is indulged in it is started by gunmen, thugs, and Cause of hirelings in the employ of the Violence. firm or corporation with which the dispute is taking place. Eliminate the professional strike-breaker, gunmen, and thug and nine-tenths of all resorts to violence will be swept aside. Wherever a professional strike-breaker slugs or shoots a striking union man the militia follows just as naturally as day follows night. Corporations know this and introduce professional strike-breaking gunmen as one of the surest and quickest means of getting the militia to act as pickets and bodyguards for strike-breakers.

The decision and opinion in the Coronado coal case teach the lesson that local unions should always be on guard against Lessons. being unwittingly and unawares led into a compromising position in trade disputes and strikes.

All unions of any size and importance are infested with paid spies whose purpose is to make it appear that the union sanctioned some act of violence. This can easily be accomplished. The spy, paid traitor, gets up on his hind legs and states that if somebody would buy him a gun or furnish him with one he would go out and kill a couple of scabs. Some union member carelessly and foolishly applauds him, and note is made of the whole transaction, and if by chance some hireling takes a shot at a strike-breaker then the injunction process is immediately brought into use and damage suits instituted.

Unions do not have to resort to violence to attain success. It is fatal and foolish to permit any paid hireling to preach violence in the meetings of the union. Whenever such talk is indulged in make up your mind that a spy is at work and treat him accordingly.

The means whereby labor can regulate and control its own economic affairs and conditions rests primarily and fundamentally and all the time in our Start Right. own hands. Altogether too much money, time, talk, and ink are spent and indulged in in berating somebody else, in blaming the capitalists, Congress, the state, and the courts, instead of getting right down to the real crux of the whole thing and spending more money, time, talk, energy, and ink in the building up of the constructive trade union movement. It is through that movement that many of the ills now justly complained of can be corrected.

No fault can be found with anybody who denounces the courts for arrogating to themselves powers of regulation of economic affairs in which the courts can find no warrant for their action in any organic or statutory law.

The point we desire to make and to give emphasis to is that we should devote the major portion of our strength, time and energy to the organization of the workers, marshalling them into the all-powerful, effective, constructive trade union movement.

Americanism, as understood by the most of us, means nothing more nor less than a square deal for everybody. It implies Justice. plies the greatest liberty possible to the individual that is consistent with orderly processes of government. It implies active resistance to tyranny and autocracy. It, moreover, stands for government based on the consent of the governed.

In many cases big interests are trying to submerge these ideals to sordid wealth. Especially is this true in the industrial field. In past years when industry was but an infant and our activity was largely agricultural it was possible for the worker to be an individual part of the industry he was engaged in. The few industries employed few workers, and the employer was practically one of them. He at least gave his business his personal supervision. Under such conditions a square deal was more easily gotten and labor troubles as we know them were not so serious as now. Then followed the development of industry and the formation of groups of capitalists to finance the new industrial life of the nation. These groups, stockholders, had nothing in common with the workers in their various concerns nor had they as individuals any interest in the proposition aside from the dividends it might produce. The workers came to be held as merely a part of the machine and the square deal was a thing of the long-forgotten past.

To meet the tyranny imposed by these absentee owners the trades union came into existence. Through organization and collective bargaining labor found a way to defeat, in a measure at least, the encroachments of avaricious greed. The square deal was again in the ascendancy. Now comes an autocratic oligarchy, the Supreme Court, usurping the power of all governmental bodies, having to answer to no higher power, supreme in its decisions and absolutely impregnable in its tenure of office, to hinder and hamper the trades union movement by its unfair and manifestly un-American decisions.

To meet these conditions, it becomes our duty to strive with enthusiastic determination to establish a more complete economic organization. Every one who works with hand or brain must realize that liberty, justice and democracy must be saved. It can be done through organization, education, justice and right thinking.

The constitution of a labor union is to that body what the Constitution of the United States is to our form of government. It is the foundation upon which is built the entire structure and it becomes the dynamo from which is drawn the current which when rightfully applied moves the wheels of progress.

Our International constitution is our supreme and only economic law. It is our one code of procedure. Furthermore, it is just what the majority of our members have made it; hence it is the symbol of the highest form of democratic government. We have no other course to follow than that charted by this document, and it is our duty to guide our progress accordingly.

Much dissension is caused by the chap who either does not know the law or who wilfully breaks the law, caring nothing for any form of discipline, trying to sail a course not charted. This type is to be found in almost every local and is usually first on the floor in times of crisis with loose and unconstitutional suggestions. For the benefit of those whose intentions are good, who believe in orderly and lawful procedures, in order that no mistakes be made that will eventually hurt the cause hoped to be advanced, take heed of this fellow and place him right within the law. The law as it is is your choosing. You have made it. Do not become a party to its willful violation so long as it remains there as the manifest will of the majority.

If we are to believe the income tax returns, big incomes are continuously growing less. If the same ratio of depreciation follows, within the next very few years we will have no one with an income that is considered more than moderate.

The Poverty Stricken Wealthy Class.

In 1919 there were sixty-five American citizens who returned schedules exceeding one million dollars. In 1920 the number dropped to thirty-three.

In view of the statements of earnings made by numerous corporations with which our rich men are associated in business we know that incomes of the wealthy have not grown less, nor have a greater number of them felt the pinch of gnawing poverty.

What is the answer? Simply this: Under favorable laws enacted by Congress and under favorable decisions rendered by an obliging Supreme Court, these gentlemen have been able to invest their incomes in securities on which they are not obliged to pay income tax. Many rich men have learned how easy it is to avoid paying the Government a fair and equitable tax on their incomes and they are readily taking advantage of the opportunities offered for evasion of it.

The income tax, fully and fairly paid, would provide the soldier bonus and pay a large portion of the war debt, which, by the way is largely caused by the same incomes, representing as they do war profits excessive to a degree of highway robbery. It would, too, relieve the ordinary mortal of this burden which by the evasion of the wealthy has been saddled on the backs of the workers and those in moderate circumstances.

Violence, as recently chronicled in the miner's strike at Herrin, Ill., can not help the cause of organized labor. Violence. Neither will it help those who hope to destroy organized labor.

It is a disgrace to civilization that industry is carried on upon a war basis. Such are the facts, however, and industry based upon war measures by the employers, as it undoubtedly was in this regrettable instance, must therefore bear the blame for all that has happened or may happen.

A statement made by Ed Green, one of the alleged wounded strike-breakers, goes far to prove that this particular mine was operating upon a war basis. He says: "I tried to leave the mine when I found out what we had been brought from Chicago for, but the guards wouldn't let me. And besides the guards in the pit with us shot to death two union men Wednesday before the union men surrounded us." This simple statement, amplified, is verified by state and county officials as well as by the officials of the miners' union.

Hunger, the "peace method," used by the employer to force workers to submit to working conditions not in keeping with a fair standard is not a pretty weapon either, especially when directed against women and innocent children as it always is. Hunger augmented by hired strike-breakers backed up by machine guns easily arouses the tiger in the starving masses, and we then have the mob with the tiger loosed. Bloodshed too often follows.

The sooner the employer realizes the necessity for the orderly procedure of organized collective bargaining and accepts this proven quality as a basis upon which to conduct industry the sooner we shall have such deplorable conditions as now prevail in industry eliminated from our industrial life.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A new effort arising from the current trade depression is being made in Stockholm to bring the producer closer to the consumer. A new co-operative society has been organized and a hard fight is to be made against the middlemen.—Boston Transcript, July 6.

Information has reached this office that the alleged national office of the Amalgamated Tobacco Workers has been closed up; that the organizers have been dispensed with; that they have discontinued publication of their official organ, called "The Amalgamated Tobacco Worker."

Thus the attempt to form a dual International Union is on its last legs, and will soon go the way of all previous attempts to form dual organizations.

There seems to be a natural inclination on the part of the human family to blame everyone else for things that go wrong, and an inclination to overlook our own responsibility. Many are inclined in these rather extraordinary times to look everywhere except in the right direction for fundamental causes.

A resolution introduced at the Cincinnati convention stated that millions of people were unemployed in our own country and then proceeded to imply, if not directly say, that the recognition of the communist soviet government of Russia would enable them to buy our product and thus relieve the labor market. These alleged statesmen overlook the economic fact that periods of industrial stagnation and unemployment are caused by underconsumption.

Russia in its former day never did import to any appreciable extent our products. There is nothing to prevent their doing so now and importing more than ever, except their inability to pay for what they buy. The only difference the official recognition of Russia would make would be that the United States with its army and navy would be a collective agency for the capitalists who sell their goods into Russia.

We export now and always did ten times more of our products to Mexico than we ever did to Russia. Yet this government has never officially recognized the Mexican government, and if we stopped exporting to both Russia and Mexico it would make hardly a ripple on the industrial surface of the great markets in our own country.

Instead of blaming the attitude of the government toward Russia let us get down to brass tacks and blame the real cause, and that is the artificially made periods of stagnation and the fundamental economic fact that the workers don't receive in wages a sufficient sum with which to consume the things that they produce.

If you paid $5 or more for your safety razor you will be interested in this fact:

It costs less than 19 cents each to make a $5 razor.

Here is the story of a man who offered to make them for 19 cents, but whose bid was rejected because someone else agreed to make them for less than 19 cents:

I happened a few months ago to be in the office of an acquaintance connected with a very large manufacturing concern. He had on his desk at the time the various parts of a Gillette safety razor. He said that they had been asked to figure on a large order. I asked if they had secured the order, and he replied that they had not, as some other manufacturer had submitted a lower bid. I then asked what price he had submitted, and he replied 19 cents for supplying all the material and doing all of the work necessary to make a complete razor. You doubtless know that some millions of razors are sold annually in the United States at a retail price of $5 each.—From a letter of F. E. Lonas, New York City, inserted in Congressional Record by Senator Simmons (Dem.), N. C.

Railroads Ask Government to Pass Unsafe Equipment During Shopmen's Strike.

(By International Labor News Service.)

Washington, D. C., July 8.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has received requests from railroad interests to relax enforcement of safety regulations during the strike of the railway shopmen.

The railroads want the United States government to help them win the strike at the expense of the lives of the traveling public.

Even in normal times the railroads ignore the safety provisions laid down by law to such an extent that from 3,000 to 4,000 locomotives are ordered out of service every year by the Interstate Commerce Commission. If they conformed to the regulations of the I. C. C. none would be ordered out of service.

If the striking shopmen are forced to accept the arbitrary conditions laid down by the labor board and submit to lower wages, lower standards of work, and continued manipulation of repair contracts by the banking interests which now control railway policies, it is a fact that the more highly skilled workmen will leave the railroads and seek other work.

The safety of the public will be endangered continuously as a result. Efficiency of railroad operation will suffer.

The time has passed when men can be bullied into efficiency. Skilled labor—and railway repair work is exceptionally skilled labor—must be paid decent wages to insure efficiency.

The railway shopmen are chiefly responsible for the safety of the traveling public. To impose upon them unbearable conditions and destroy their morale is to release a boomerang. Their strike is largely an effort to maintain their status as skilled workmen with responsibility for efficient service.

Representative London: Some of those who are not Socialists are anarchists, of which there are two varieties, one at the bottom, poor, helpless, despondent. Then there is another group of anarchists, dangerous to democracy, a group that does not recognize the power of the soul in human affairs. That is the group that would subordinate to cash, to money, every human consideration, and that is really the dangerous group of anarchists.—Congressional Record.

Over the top again!

The Old Guard's ranks are demoralized. Another big hole was torn in the "Stand-pat" sector. The new salient picked off was the general of the reactionary leaders. The shock was even felt at the White House, which is now the G. H. Q., or general headquarters, for the forces of reaction.

Like the victory of Brookhart in Iowa, Frazier's victory in North Dakota is a complete repudiation of the "Do-nothing" Congress and the "open-shop" administration.

Frazier, a true friend of labor as well as the farmers, won the nomination for United States Senator in the Republican primary. Frazier is a Lincoln Republican. He won against McCumber—a Newberry Republican.

While Frazier was governor of North Dakota, more progressive labor laws were placed in the statute books of the state than have been passed by any other state in the Union.

Frazier was the governor that declared "martial law" and called out the troops to protect the miners. He sent the military forces to the offices of the mine owners to see that they did not "sabotage."

When Frazier and Brookhart join La Follette, Ladd, Borah, Norris and other Progressive senators the working man will have some loyal friends in Congress. Cheer up, boys!

The fact that Frazier won means that we can regain the freedom through political action that our forefathers intended we should have.

The following cigar industry report is based on 53 shops from which reports were received. In the report of the U. S. Department of Labor, through the Bureau of Labor, it is shown that there were employed in the cigar manufacturing industry during May, 1922, 15,215 persons, as compared with 16,690, in May, 1921, a decrease of 8.8 per cent. When compared with the previous month of April, 1922, there is an increase of 3.6 per cent shown.

The amount of the payroll in May, 1922, was $271,951, in comparison with $320,477, in May, 1921, a decrease of 15.1 per cent, but an increase of 14.5 per cent over the previous month of April, 1922.

Two factories reported a 12 1/4% wage cut, affecting all the employees in one factory and 5 per cent of the employees in the other factory. A wage reduction of approximately 10 per cent affected 80 per cent of the men in one concern. However, there was an increase in per capita earnings for May over April of 10.6 per cent.

The United States Senate, having under consideration the tariff on wrapper tobacco suitable for cigar purposes, has reduced the rate from $2.35 per pound to $2.10 per pound.

Important, If True.

Henry Allen Wilson, secretary of the New England Anti-Tobacco League, said in an address in Portland:

"Carefully compiled statistics show us that for every cigar a man smokes he shortens his life three days, while with every cigarette he shortens his life a week."

At this point a prominent Portland physician rose in the rear of the hall.

"Are those statistics absolutely accurate?" he asked.

"Absolutely, sir," said Secretary Wilson.

"Why?" "Because it's rather important," explained the physician. "You see, if your statistics are accurate I've been dead over three hundred years."—Detroit Free Press.

CORRESPONDENCE

Washington, D. C., July 3, 1922.

To All Organized Labor, Greetings:

This is an appeal in behalf of three valiant organizations which are fighting a great fight in the common cause.

It is an appeal to the heart of all organized labor and for the support of all organized labor.

The United Textile Workers of America have 60,000 members on strike in the New England states. On the heels of a wage reduction of 22 1/4 per cent on December 20, 1920, the textile mill owners ordered an additional reduction of 20 per cent effective January 23, 1922. The workers unanimously decided to resist this high-handed and unwarranted procedure. Despite injunctions on every hand, the workers are standing fast, in excellent spirit, determined not to permit further destruction of their standard of living.

The membership of the Quarry Workers' International Union of North America is on strike against the anti-union shop program of the powerful organizations of employers in that industry. Violation of agreements by employers is responsible for the cessation of work. The cessation of work began in July, 1921. The agreement which the employers violated expired on April 1, 1922, at which time thirty-three branches of the quarry workers' organization ceased work, making practically the entire craft idle. The organized employers have hypocritically declared for the so-called American plan, which is anti-union, destructive of freedom and absolutely autocratic, a libel on Americanism.

The International Granite Cutters' Association has for many months been undergoing a siege, with practically the entire membership either locked out or on strike.

A portion of the membership in California has been idle since May, 1921, when the state agreement expired, the employers refusing to renew the agreement. On April 1st nearly all of the members not then locked out or on strike were forced into idleness by the arbitrary conduct of the organized employers. As early as January 1st, three months before expiration of the agreement, the employers sought to enforce a wage reduction of $2 per day. Conditions demanded by the employers would have meant virtual slavery for the granite cutters. The refusal to submit to a destruction of their standards of work and life was the only course open to freedom-loving workers.

These three organizations are fighting for a principle. With no financial means of their own, they are continuing heroically. "With a little help we can win," is their message. The American Federation of Labor convention in Cincinnati, June 12-23, authorized this appeal for support. Money contributed will be divided between the three organizations in proportion to the number of men involved. All who are able should come to the rescue. Fighters on the firing line are asking help, not alone for themselves, but for the cause, so that they may win against the common enemy, the merciless, greedy, anti-union exploiters.

Let the solidarity of labor be shown by a generous, immediate response to this appeal for merited support.

Send all contributions to Frank Morrison, Secretary, American Federation of Labor, A. F. of L. Building, Washington, D. C., who will receipt for the same.

By order of the Cincinnati convention and Executive Council, American Federation of Labor.

SAMUEL GOMPERS.
President.

New York State Blue Label League.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 30, 1922.

To the Officers and Members of Local Unions of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America, Located in the State of New York. Greeting:

The 22nd annual convention of the New York State Blue Label League will convene in the Central Labor Union Hall, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Monday, August 21st, at 10 a. m., to transact such business as may be brought properly before it.

Your organization is respectfully and urgently requested to send representatives.

The conditions that obtain in our trade make it imperative that every local union in the State be represented.

Ways and means must be devised to make our Blue Label perform the work for which it was designed. IT CAN BE DONE, IT MUST BE DONE, and IT WILL BE DONE if you will send delegates to the convention so that you may be informed by them of the plans worked out and the policy adopted.

In order that the plans may be successful it will be necessary that every member of every local get into the harness and put on their fighting clothes and do their share.

Make out credentials on your own stationery for your delegates to the convention.

Fraternally,

JOHN C. JOHNSTON,
President N. Y. S. B. L. L.

F. P. Dwyer, No. 84083, a cripple, secured $10.60 from Local 410, Centralia, and promised to redeem his card but failed to do so, hence stands suspended, and if reinstated the above amount should be charged against him.—Union 410, Centralia.

Denver, Colo., July 7, 1922.

Union No. 129, Denver, Colo., begs to acknowledge donations from the following named unions in aid of members on strike who are not entitled to benefit: 14, Chicago, $5; 224, Salt Lake, $5; 39, New Haven, $10; 168, Oshkosh, $2; 144, N. Y., $5; 25, Milwaukee, $10; 73, Alton, $1; 500, Tampa, $10; 277, Oskaloosa, $2; 384, St. Augustine, $10.65; 37, Ft. Wayne, $7; Boston, $25.

Our strike is still on but we have hopes that a settlement will be reached before long and that all of our members will again return to work at the same bill of prices that prevailed when the Solis factory closed down May 12th last.

The La Dez Cigar Co., which is a strictly non-union concern, and backed by former employees of the Solis Cigar Co. in this city, viz. M. G. Fernandez, former foreman, and Mr. R. J. Thompson, former salesman, Mr. Tom Shiel, former city salesman, and Harry F. Slusser, former bookkeeper, are the men that think they can force our organization to adopt the bunch breaking and rolling system and machine work and come down to a child labor basis, but they are going to find out that the easy sailing that they had selling a well established and advertised brand of cigars will not work out as smoothly as they anticipate for the class of goods that they are going to turn out with inexperienced labor. They boasted before opening up that they would get all of our members that they wanted to work for them, but to date they have only drawn two from our ranks and they will be ready to return to us before very long in our opinion for we are reliably informed that conditions and stock are not as good as they claimed they were going to have. Even the strippers are quitting, having been deceived into going into that shop by promises of big wages which they have not been able to make.

J. W. SANFORD, Secty.

REPORT OF ORGANIZERS

Saskatoon, Sask., July 5, 1922.

Since last report I have visited Calgary, Edmonton and Saskatoon. In all places visited I devoted time to label agitation and gave every possible publicity to our cause; called on jobbers, cigar stores and restaurants; distributed cards and circulars; this being necessary in order to put our case to the public, as I find there is an organized effort being made to discredit the union, and manufacturers are, by letters and agents, trying to justify their actions in their drive for the open shop and the slavish conditions being imposed on the workers to the unreasonableness of the union, and of course they only give one side of the question. I was given a sympathetic hearing and many questions were asked at all meetings I attended. The West is loaded with non-union cigars and the trust is making a drive for the cigar trade.

At Vancouver I was requested by Union 857 to remain over a few days and assist committee in local situation. After several conferences with the representatives of the Van Loo Cigar Company a proposition was submitted by the firm and accepted by the union. Men returning to work at a reduction in prices pending the arrival back from the east of the new owner in about six weeks, when he will take up the proposition of operating a union factory and making an agreement with the union. This was formerly the Stettler Cigar Company. This factory is the largest in Western Canada and has been closed the past two years. It was the intention of this firm to move to Montreal. It is hoped that a satisfactory arrangement will be made to keep factory in Vancouver. Expect to employ about 200 cigarmakers.

I attended the following meetings to date: Calgary Amalgamated Carpenters, Boilermakers, Railway Carmen, Clerks' and Freight Handlers' Locals Nos. 637 and 632, Labor Council Committee, Sheet Metal Workers, Barbers' Stationary Engineers, Brotherhood of Carpenters, Civic Employees, Machinists, also visited local union cigar factory.

Edmonton—Barbers, Sheet Metal Workers, Label Committee, Labor Party, Brotherhood of Carmen, Plasterers, Teamsters, office of Alberta Labor News. With secretary of Central Body, called on Mr. Shaw, cigar manufacturer. This firm had some trouble with the union some years ago and is operating non-union factory. Employs three men and four women. I explained the advantage to him to use our label and he promised to keep in touch with us and think over the question.

At Saskatoon I attended meeting of Railroad Firemen, Machinists, Sons of Scotland and Brotherhood of Carmen.

JAMES A. SULLIVAN,
International Organizer.

New York.

Conditions in the cigar industry have shown quite an improvement and there are not many members out of work, whereas the unorganized cigarmakers are working under the worst conditions imaginable and for very low prices, just grinding their lives away, with their bodies and souls controlled by the bosses. The members of the union that are working in union and organized shops are still enjoying the right to work under fair working conditions and a standard of prices that gives them the opportunity to earn a living, and the strength of organization that enables them to command respect and consideration.

We are making every effort to get to these unorganized workers by circular distribution and calling shop meetings, also having an occasional mass meeting, even going so far as giving motion picture reviews as an inducement to attend these meetings. We are also speaking to them through the press in order to awaken the spirit which every human being ought to possess for the right to earn a living wage.

The depression in business, of such long duration, has deadened the spirit of the workers to that extent that the bosses take every advantage of their state of mind, knowing that they have no power of resistance in their unorganized state.

Wherever we have called shop meetings we find that the bosses and foremen threaten and intimidate the workers, depriving them of the right of a free expression of thought, and trying to make practical slaves out of them.

No matter what the bosses do or say, we still know that these people are human beings, and we will become more determined each time we make an attempt to get these workers to meetings and awaken them from the stupor and revive the spirit that will bring encouragement for a better day.

We know that we are going to succeed because we know we are right, and we are fully determined to get a strong International Union in New York and get better standards of conditions and wages for the cigarmakers. Our doors are wide open and we are going to continue to invite them until they come in.

MAURICE SIMONS,
Organizer.

Working and Taking.

(From Lincoln-Douglas debate, 1858.)

That is the real issue that will continue in this country when these poor tongues of Judge Douglas and myself shall be silent. It is the eternal struggle between these two principles, right and wrong, throughout the world. They are the two principles that have stood face to face from the beginning of time. The one is the common right of humanity, the other the divine right of kings. It is the same principle in whatever shape it develops itself. It is the same spirit that says "you toll and work and earn bread and I'll eat it."—Abraham Lincoln.

Look Ahead.

The only impediment in the way of success of some local unions is, that they have placed obstacles before them instead of removing and cleaning up the path ahead. They resemble the fellow who built a boat in his cellar and did not discover that it was too large to pass through the doorway until it was completed. The old saw, "Look before you leap," may be as ancient as dodo's egg, but it applies to these days and times just the same as if it had been the brain drip of a present day writer.—Mixer and Server.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also, as per section 146, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member, if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

G. Silverman appealed against 97 Boston for suspending him for non-payment of dues. The evidence shows the member was out of work and thought he had sixteen weeks in which to keep in good standing. Owing to extenuating circumstances and the recommendation of the union the appeal is sustained.

Thos. F. Feeney appealed against the chairman of the Executive Board of 238 Sacramento for retiring from the Chair without the consent of the board. The union replied that the usual custom of the chairman was to say: "Is there any further business? If not we stand adjourned." The appeal is not sustained.

Thos. F. Feeney appealed against 238 Sacramento for excusing buckeye manufacturers from attending meetings. The appeal is not sustained.

David Rothman appealed against 10 Providence for fining him $25 and annulling his card for advertising and displaying non-union cigars in the window of his cigar store. The appeal is not sustained.

DECISIONS OF EXECUTIVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., June 28, 1922.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by Union 129 of Denver, Colorado, against the decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Ornburn, Kennedy, Gonzales, Hall, Ramsey, Stevens, Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was, Union 129 claims two days' extra strike benefit for a number of its members, which they claim is due between the time the settlement was made and the time the factories were opened for re-employment. The International President decided that the members were not entitled to this strike benefit. The union therefore appeals from the decision of the International President to the Executive Board.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That section 79 of the constitution specifically states that all benefits cease the minute the difficulty terminates, and the difficulty terminated as soon as the union and the employers signed the agreement; that this question has been threshed out on several occasions, and in one case went to popular vote, and the decision of the President and the Executive Board was practically unanimously sustained; that in this case the union was notified that all benefits ceased at a certain date, and no benefits can be paid thereafter in this controversy.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President was sustained.

Fraternally yours,
SAM'L GOMPERS,
First Vice President.

Washington, D. C., June 28, 1922.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by C. L. Halblieb, of Union 240, Norfolk, Virginia, against the decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Ornburn, Kennedy, Gonzales, Hall, Ramsay, Stevens, Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was, the International President ruled that this member had over-drawn sick benefit to the extent of $20.00, which he was directed to refund. The member claims that he was entitled to the full amount received. The member thereupon appealed to the Executive Board against the decision of the International President.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That the change in the law governing sick benefit, effective August 1, 1920, provided for the sum of $7 a week sick benefit, and stated, "No member shall be entitled to any sick benefit for a longer period than ten weeks in any one year;" that this member had drawn certain benefits prior to the enactment of this change in the law, and some benefits after that date, the aggregate of which was more than ten weeks in the year in question. The International President ruled that under this law no member can draw over ten weeks' sick benefit in any one year, and consequently directed the return of the amount in excess of ten weeks' benefit paid to the member; that this decision seems to be in full accord with the constitution and should be sustained.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally yours,
SAM'L GOMPERS,
First Vice President.

UNION NOTES

Union notes by H. Abrahams: A workingman or woman should receive enough to support themselves and their little ones and lay by something for old age; anything short of this is not a living wage.—When commodities increase 150 per cent and wages 100 per cent that is a counterfeited wage.—Every worker should read La Follette's speech made at convention of the A. F. of L.—No five men are competent to rule 110,000,000 people.—Judges are only human beings, and they are not a legislative body.—Despite the dictum of the Supreme Court child labor must go.—Light wines and beer must come back.—The day devoted by the A. F. of L. to the discussion of child labor was well spent.—Boston Central Labor Union will assist the miners.—Union 97 made donation to Denver: did you?—Our label committee has distributed 10,000 tide cards.—Do you wear a union collar? They cost no more.—Do you know there are union cigarettes on the market?—If one of the stockholders of the Standard Oil Company does something illegal is the entire company liable, or does this ruling apply only to organized labor?—Boom the label! Boom all labels! It is the most powerful and the only weapon you have.—Has your state a free university? It's rather queer that the United States supreme court can deny the rights of 34 states to regulate railroad rates, but upholds states' rights when it comes to exploiting child labor. The lives of children don't amount to much, but the profits of railroads do.

The best little worker in the world is the union label, if you would only give it half a chance. Just let the almost five million workers affiliated with the American Federation of Labor demand the label on every purchase and all the ills to which labor is heir would fade away. And the beautiful part about this statement is that it is a fact. Don't shun the little old label, make it your friend. It is a great dividend payer.

B. of the district they have moved to.

Section 56. The President shall appoint, subject to the confirmation of the Executive Board, at least three members to be known as the Label Agitators and Organizers, whose duty shall be to organize unions, agitate for the use of the union label, deliver free lectures and instruct local unions in the discharge of their duties. They shall visit such towns and cities as the International President may direct. The organizers appointed shall be located in such places as in the judgment of the International President it would be considered practical, provided also that the funds of the International Union would permit of the execution of these provisions. The amendment of Union 138, Newark, N. J., as published in the June issue, as follows:

Amend Section 150 by striking out on lines 21, 22, 23, after the word "thousand" "no union shall be allowed to furnish the labels for cigars made in whole or in part by machinery."

Section as amended to read:

Sec. 150. Each local union shall furnish through the shop collectors or committeemen (as the case may be) to all strictly union shops, free of charge, as many of the labels as may be required from week to week for all cigars actually made by members of the union and persons holding retiring cards. All label orders shall be signed by the shop collector; the label order blanks shall be furnished by the International President at cost. No shop shall be considered a strictly union shop unless the packers of the shop are members of the International Union, and the apprentice law of the local union be complied with. Where the manufacturer deals in Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, it shall be optional with local unions to withhold the label from such firm. It shall be optional with local unions to grant the union label to any manufacturer or firm whose name or firm name appears in or about the box containing Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, or whose name or firm name appears on or about such non-union cigars. for making or less than $1.00 for packing per thousand for mold work—5 molds of 20 bunches. Nor which pays less than $10.00 per thousand for hand work, less than 4 molds of 10 bunches each with press on table, or two 20-bunch molds in shaper press, to be considered hand work. Nor shall it be allowed on any cigars sold for less than $25.00 per thousand. This shall not prevent a local union from establishing a minimum bill of prices on small cigars four inches in length or less, and weighing not more than three pounds per thousand. Subject to the approval of the International President and International Executive Board. This shall not disbar local unions from establishing a price above $25.00 per thousand. It shall be optional with local unions to grant labels to members who are not employing any journeymen if they have been members for less than one year. This shall not apply to members suspended who were, prior to their suspension, members of the International Union for one year or longer, provided they be reinstated within six months after suspension.

But in no event shall a manufacturer be permitted to use the label who offers presents as an inducement for the sale of his goods, but this shall not be so construed as to prevent a manufacturer from issuing coupons to the consumer which may be redeemed in presents or otherwise.

All labels must be pasted upon the boxes before the boxes leave the factory.

Received the endorsement of 218, Binghamton; 229, Binghamton.

The amendment of Union 138, Newark, N. J., as published in the June issue, as follows:

Section as amended to read:

Sec. 61. All persons engaged in the cigar industry, regardless of color or nationality, except Chinese coolies and tenement-house workers, shall be eligible to membership; this shall include manufacturers who employ no journeymen cigarmakers, and foremen who have less than six members of the union working under them. Foremen that are members in accordance with the above, shall not be allowed to contract to work for a smaller weekly wage than the earnings would amount to if paid for in accordance with the bill of prices of the union under whose jurisdiction they may be at work. No one shall be considered a foreman, within the meaning of this section, that has not the power to hire and discharge help.

Any member of Cigarmakers International Union who shall become a member of any organization which is dual or rival to the Cigarmakers International Union shall forfeit membership in the C. M. I. U.

Received the endorsement of Union 229, Binghamton.

All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, proving he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter. In the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months, a member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all international and local assessments, and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequently thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example—a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

"RUBE CY GREEN."

Boston, Mass., July 7, 1922.

Our Label Committee had this "Rube Cy Green" go through the city advertising our label. He stopped street cars, automobiles, etc., and was quite an attraction.

HENRY ABRAHAMS.

Confidence.

We must have confidence in our organizations. If we did not have it once upon a time we would not have joined. We can just as well continue that original belief in it.

"I have not a bit of faith in the organization," once declared a member.

He reminded one of the fussy old lady who thought she was ill and called for a doctor.

"Doctor," she said, "I have sent for you, but I have not a bit of faith in you or your profession."

"Oh, that makes no difference," said the doctor. "A mule has no faith in a veterinarian, but the veterinarian cures him just the same."—Exchange.

March 3, 1879.

There is only one way that the people can get what they want, and that way is through organization.

Organization. The mob never gets what it wants. In fact it usually gets what it does not want and to its own sorrow.

Argument and logic do not get us anything unless the reasoning is followed by a practical application of the conclusion arrived at and it requires organization to do this and to apply such conclusion to advantage.

Democracy to properly function must be highly organized, more highly organized than an autocracy or an absolute monarchy with one supreme authority, quick to make a decision, be it right or wrong, with the power to back its decisions to the letter. This does not suffice. We do not want it and will not have it. We are concerned in government only as a means to an end and we find a democracy the better fitted tool for our needs—a democracy which gets its will and its power from the people through the means of organization.

This reasoning applies to labor as well as it does to the nation. The only way labor can hope to get what it wants is through organization.

Cigarmakers as a whole want better wages and better working conditions. The only way these things may be attained is through organization. Organization is not spontaneous. It does not spring into being over night. Neither does it come of its own accord. It does not grow without seed, cultivation and care. It must have the combined care and support of the many rather than the supreme sacrifice of the few. It is a job for all of us and each must resolve to do his individual share. Your time can be put to no better advantage than in persuading the non-union cigar maker to become a part of our organization which stands for the betterment of all. It is to your own advantage as the non-unionist is doing as much to injure your working conditions and to lower your bill of prices as is your employer who has to compete against the product of the unorganized.

With every branch of the trade organized, with all cigars made by hand, mould or machine UNION MADE, cigar makers would be in a position to get the things they want and it is only through organization that this can be done.

During industrial disputes any injury that may happen to property is usually blamed on the workers, no matter if all Rights proof is lacking that they were in any way to blame. A howl is raised about the necessity for protection of property and the workers are charged with sabotage or worse.

Property is seemingly the most cherished things the employer possesses and they are usually promptly protected by our obliging courts through the issuance of injunctions prohibiting the workers from molestation.

How differently "Rights" are considered. It all depends on which side of the fence they happen to be located.

The seniority rights (property rights) of the railroad workers represents far more to them than does the property rights of the owners. Property, after all, represents nothing more than wealth accumulated by the owners from profits on labor. Under present industrial conditions labor is able to accumulate very little property hence they have little or no property rights. Its seniority rights represent its all in the controversy. Justice demands as much consideration for the seniority right of labor as it does for the property right of the employer. If it is wrong to destroy property it is also wrong to destroy seniority, yet our courts are seemingly very slow in restraining the railroad companies from sabotaging the rights of the workers.

The railroads hope to destroy the organizations involved in the present controversy. They will then be in a position to beat down wages to the former starvation level and reap a rich harvest of profit. There is little chance of their destroying the present form of organization. Should they accomplish the complete destruction of the present conservative, clean cut labor unions they will find in their place some other form of organization, public or secret. Organization in some form will live within the working class.

Industry generally speaking is headed up a blind alley and is purposely kept there by the profiteering, exploiting captains of big industry and finance. Instead of carrying on industries and production for service and a fair profit the exploiting profiteers are conducting industries and production for the sole purpose of profits.

The labor question will never get on to the right road for peace and prosperity and out of periods of unemployment and strikes and lockouts until the smoke screens, used by high finance to befog the minds of the general public, and the underbrush are cleared away from the pathway of industry. This can be successfully accomplished by labor organizations.

There are many things that should be done to help in carrying forward industry on a fair, just, and equitable plan such as would bring a fair return for capital invested, to competent, efficient employers and heads of industry and to the workers employed therein. Chief among these are the gradual elimination of incompetent superintendents, managers, and manufacturers, and the unnecessary, awful waste in industry.

The so-called general public, which is a myth, must be made to understand that the worker is not to blame for the so-called high cost of living, the periods of industrial and commercial stagnation and for strikes and lockouts, and that we will not carry the burden or be the goat for the incompetency of the manufacturer and the frightful and unnecessary waste in industry.

If the general press of the country would simply print the known facts the whole so-called labor question would be on the high road to solution in so far as that can be accomplished. There is scarcely a single big industry today that is conducted on a fair, just, and efficient basis. Almost all of the big industries have bonding companies, holding companies, and operating companies, all of which get their percent of profits, and in addition to the three or four companies that are now splitting the proceeds is the dividend on watered stocks.

It is claimed by experts of the Interstate Commerce Commission that nearly forty per cent of the claimed valuation of the Pere Marquette Railroad is nothing but water. Government engineers have declared that the Pere Marquette can be rebuilt for $63,309,242. The stocks and bonds of the Pere Marquette have been inflated to $101,711,386, upon which the public and the employees are compelled to pay dividends. It is claimed that shippers and passengers are overcharged and the wages of employees are beaten down in order to pay a dividend of $2,500,000 a year on the watered stock of this one railroad.

This is but one simple illustration of the claims we have set forth in the foregoing. When we stop to consider that this is but one illustration of the thousand and one other railroads and trusts and big interests, involving billions of dollars of stock much of which is water, and that Wall Street, the trusts, banks, railroads, and great industrial corporations have interlocking interests and often directors all working industrially for the sole purpose of profits, utterly regardless of the interests of the workers, is it any wonder that we have unrest, high cost of living, unemployment, profiteering, strikes, and lockouts?

We can be put well on the high road toward a more just and fair plan of production and distribution by first organizing the workers as well as the employers if you please; second, by removing incompetency and dishonesty in industry; third, by removing the almost criminal waste in industry; fourth, by removing excessive profits; fifth, by conducting industry on a basis of service instead of profit; sixth, by giving a fair compensation for service rendered, to competent, willing employers who will employ union labor under just conditions and fair wages; and seventh, a fair rate of profit on capital invested, and last but not least without meddling, restrictive legislation by state or federal governments.

Good Health Commercially Considered.—The final report of the Commission on Industrial Relations gives a number of startling statements, for the first time given the authority and endorsement of a government commission. The report states that accidents, to which much attention has recently been given, cause only one-seventh as much destitution as does sickness. The average loss of each of the thirty-odd million wage earners in the United States through sickness is nine days a year, which at an average wage of $2.00 a day makes a wage loss of over $500,000,000.00. This with the medical care cost of $180,000,000.00 makes the total annual sick bill over $680,000,000.00.

Sick Bill

Sickness among wage earners is due to insufficient diet, bad housing, inadequate clothing, and unfavorable surroundings in the home. The majority of wage earners do not receive sufficient wages to provide for proper living conditions. The commission does not anticipate that wages will be raised enough at once to permit proper living conditions and adequate medical attention, and therefore proposes a system of sickness insurance.

European Labor Unites Against Soviet Tyranny.

(By International Labor News Service.)

Word from European labor centers shows clearly that labor of the old world is definitely swinging into line with the position of the American Federation of Labor on the question of soviet Russia.

The position is changing from one merely of opposition to bolshevism to one of direct hostility to the soviet government. Included in this new alignment, which is of great importance, is not only British labor, but the entire Second Internationale and the International Federation of Trade Unions.

European labor wrath has been rising steadily, fanned by one soviet blunder and cruelty after another.

First came the famous 21 points, by which the soviets sought to take charge of labor all over the world. Then came formation of the red internationale. This was followed by the bloody conquest of Georgia and the destruction of its labor movement. The last blow is the alleged trial of the labor and soviet revolutionary group of 46 in Moscow.

United War on Tyranny.

This trial was attended by Emile Vandervelde and the brother of the late Karl Liebknecht, representing the two European internationals. Vandervelde was compelled to resort to a hunger strike before he could fight his way out of Russia.

The Second Internationale, meeting in London last month, finally produced a declaration of war and the following account is quoted from the Labour News Service, conducted jointly by the British Labor Party and the trade unions:

"Relations between the International and the Moscow organization naturally figured prominently in the debates. Discussion was influenced by the news coming from Russia regarding the trial of Social Revolutionaries before the Moscow Tribunal, and the treatment accorded M. Vandervelde and his colleagues who undertook the prisoners' defense at the trials in the name of the Second International.

"Mr. Ramsay MacDonald moved a resolution expressing amazement that the Moscow Government had decided before their trial had ended that certain of the Social Revolutionary prisoners may be executed; regretting the outrageous manner in which the trials had been conducted, the villainous attacks made by Communist leaders upon the Socialist lawyers who had been appointed by the Second International to defend the prisoners; and characterizing as worthless much of the evidence given at the trial.

Calla for World Protest.

"The resolution recorded the view that it would be an insult to the proletarian sense of justice, would offer an invitation to reactionary Governments to pursue a like policy, and would be a breach of the pledge given to the International Executives at the Berlin Conference if the death penalty was enforced.

"It called upon all the working class organizations to protest against the sentence of murder, and dissociated the conference from the tragedy, and from those responsible for 'one more black act of vengeance' to those which already besmirch the pages of history."

Vandervelde, upon getting out of Russia, said: "We consider it our duty to arouse the protest of organized labor throughout the world against the crime contemplated in Moscow and that is why the soviet government tried to detain us in Russia."

LINCOLN SAID:

And His Words of Wisdom Are as Filled With Profound Truth Today as When They Were Uttered.

Monarchy itself is sometimes hinted at as a possible refuge from the power of the people. In my present position I could scarcely be justified were I to omit raising a warning voice against this approach of returning despotism. It is not needed or fitting here that a general argument should be made in favor of popular institutions, but there is one point with its connection not so hackneyed as most others, to which I ask a brief attention. It is the effort to place capital on an equal footing with, if not above, labor in the structure of government; it is assumed that labor is available only in connection with capital, that nobody labors unless somebody else owning capital somehow, by the use of it, induces him to labor.

The favored few, who are now berating Senator LaFollette for his declaration in favor of a constitutional amendment which would organically deny the right of the Supreme Court to veto legislation, have evidently forgotten that the great and only Theodore Roosevelt become so vexed over the theiving practices of the profiteering trusts, big interests, and big financiers and certain judges that he advocated a law providing for the recall of judges, which amounts to practically the same as the declaration of Senator LaFollette.

A true knowledge of the real underlying facts in industry, trade, and commerce should be known and published regardless of whom it may hurt and of the temporary consequences. If the general reading public could only be reached and overtaken by the true facts of industry there would be a mighty upheaval in state and federal legislative bodies and executives.

"It's union made but does not bear the label" is a catch phrase which should not mislead trade unionists when making purchases. Demand the union label.

If all trade unionists would live every day as though it were their last there would be a better demand for the union label, shop card, and working button.

Money spent by trade unionists for non-union goods or for non-union labor of any kind gives aid and comfort to the "open shoppers."

The union label helps us to provide in times of industrial peace what we very often need in industrial war—a strong organization and substantial funds.

The union label, shop card, and working button are good companions on a journey of the industrial field for any trade unionist.

When a trade unionist listens to "reasons" presented by a merchant for the absence of the union label on goods he is starting out in the wrong direction. There can be no reasonable excuse for buying non-union goods in a line where the union label has been a fixture for years, and when a merchant has lost the right to use the label there is some cause for it which cannot be overlooked by the loyal unionist. Bear this in mind and ignore the excuses offered. There are too many chances of being deceived by excuses.

These are times in which carelessness and indifference on the part of members of unions with respect to the union label are as harmful as the conduct of the man who deliberately takes the place of a striker. The employer feels that the trend of the time is in his direction and he is taking advantage of every opportunity to gain his ends. A healthy demand for the union label on purchases at the present presents a simple means of offsetting the activities of the enemies of the organized workers and if the members of unions are not willing to make the most of their possibilities in this direction they will merit the setbacks that come to them as a consequence of their heedlessness.

President Harding recently directed a message to the governors of the several coal producing states asking that they protect from violence men willing to dig coal. This was a supposed "public benefit" proclamation.

The interests of the public and their general welfare would have been safeguarded to a much greater extent had this proclamation been addressed to the mine owners and had it carried directions to them to sell their coal at pre-strike prices, which gave them a handsome profit. The mere fact that there may be a fuel shortage is no excuse for the present price of coal, which is highway robbery. Coal mined last spring before the strike is not costing an excess to produce, yet we see the price of coal mined long before the strike took effect steadily advancing in price despite the fact that freight rates have been reduced.

There is a growing feeling in the minds of many people that the coal strike was engineered by the mine owners for profit and that when coal stocks are reduced to the minimum and the prices will have been advanced to a point that assures the mine owners an additional excess profit on the coal that will be mined after the strike is settled we shall then see a speedy settlement of the difficulty.

One of the things that would benefit the public in the coal situation is the determination of the actual cost of coal production and prices fixed to conform with this on a basis of fair wages to the miners and fair profit to the mine owners. This has been so far blocked by an agency of the same government that issues the recent proclamation for the public good. Two years ago the federal trade commission attempted to find out the actual cost of coal production. The operators refused to show their books and the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia sustained the operators. This blocked the commission from making proper investigation and no further attempts have been made by any government agency to determine the cost to produce coal. Let the President use his persuasion to get these facts and to correct evils if found. His proclamations will then carry more weight with the public which will welcome substantial, fruitful aid.

That improvement of general business conditions is genuine can be gauged by the lack of demoralization during the present unsettled labor conditions. Despite the fact that unsettled conditions exist in two of the vital industries of the nation, viz., railroads and coal, stocks and bonds are selling at the highest prices for the year and new issues are in many instances oversubscribed. Employment statistics continue to show less unemployment, in fact in some lines a noticeable shortage of labor is reported.

Our own trade, always the last to pick up following a general depression, is gaining ground in some sections. A significant fact, not to be overlooked, is the marked revival in districts where persistent, continuous label agitation has been carried on. In many such localities while the depression was felt, it was neither a severe nor of as long duration as in localities where little or nothing was done to stimulate interest in union made cigars.

Label agitation has done much good for union cigar makers in the past and it can and will do as much good in the future. Any business to be successful must advertise. Collectively and individually our business is the making and packing of cigars. When we, collectively as a local union, or as an individual, realize that in order to make our business a success we must apply the same effort toward its advancement as we would were it a purely commercial venture we will get results that will pay dividends in steady, profitable employment.

As cigar makers we have invested our sole capital—our labor—in the business. It becomes our duty, if we wish our business to prosper, to give this investment the same careful consideration that we would give a business in which we had invested our cash capital rather than our labor, which after all is one and the same thing. A business to show dividends must receive careful attention. When our business is made to prosper we count our dividends in the weekly pay envelope. Make your trade union business pay by applying business methods to furthering its success.

Yesterday is past, useful only for its recorded history. Tomorrow never comes—today is here. Make the most of it. Exploit the label.

President Gompers in replying to the welcoming addresses at the opening of the Cincinnati Convention said, "We are in no mood to give up liberties no matter what power may seek to steal them or what subtlety shall be employed.

In a day like this it is most encouraging to have come from your hearts and minds the expression of hope and the offer of service. The toiling masses of America have few traditions of the old, as have the toilers of older countries and older civilizations; but in our own America we have emerged from a condition of servitude to understanding by the great mass of the toilers of America of the sovereignty of the citizenship, of the equality of opportunity which must come to the great toiling masses of America.

We do not becloud our minds, nor do we fool ourselves into any fancied security as to the obstacles which have been and are being thrown across our pathway of progress. On the contrary, the designers and those who carry the designs into effect to weaken the spirit or to crush the hopes of American labor for absolute freedom—we understand them and their purpose just as keenly as they do, and we are just as ready, and perhaps much more so, than are the antagonists of the rightful course and cause of the American Labor movement. We shall go onward and forward more determined than ever that there shall not be imposed upon our brow, upon our backs, the type of The Man With the Hoe, but that as freemen, ordained by God and by nature, declared in that sacred document, the Declaration of Independence, rooted in the Constitution of the United States, we are men and women created with certain inalienable rights, the right of life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

And this American Labor movement, organized as it is, believes in these great principles enunciated in that world-famed, historic and sacred document; and we are not in a mood to have those rights and those principles guaranteed to us by our constitution taken from us by any subtle reasoning or assumption of power, no matter whence it emanates."

We have wandered far afield from the first principles initiated by our forefathers in establishing this Republic of human welfare, life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. From these lofty principles there has grown up a spirit of grasping greed and get-rich-quick impulse, and the get-something-for-nothing, regardless of how obtained. The fundamental rallying cry that goes up from the masses should be a return to first principles of human welfare. The sooner we put the welfare of humankind above the dollar mark the sooner we shall be on the high road to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

The Lima Strike.

When the strike of the non-unionists occurred in the Deisel-Wemmer Cigar Company, Lima, Ohio, I sent Organizer Rollo S. Sexton to Lima, and from his reports and the reports of others who are reliable and wholly disinterested, we find substantially the following interesting facts:

The language employed and the conditions stated are not mine. I believe them, however, to be substantially true.—Editor.

In the strike of cigar makers at Delphos, Lima, St. Mary's, O., etc., it seems impossible for Federal conciliators to secure an adjustment in a situation in which gross injustice has been perpetrated (and it will so continue) because of the helplessness of the workers to combat the policy of the employers.

The Deisel-Wemmer Company, Lima, O., cigar manufacturers, the employer in this instance, controls 18 factories or warehouses, all within a radius of 50 miles of Lima, O., and, with the exception of Lima, where there are two cigar factories, all of the others are located in separate towns, one cigar factory in each place. And it will be readily seen because the workers are unorganized and of this "one factory town system," the company can successfully impose any reduction in wages or changes in working conditions it sees fit, as the unorganized workers in the first instance cannot secure similar work, except by leaving their homes to seek employment in other places; and, secondly, those of the employees who cannot, or do not wish to leave their homes (and it should be borne in mind that 90 per cent of the employees are women or girls), must of necessity be obliged to accept such reduction in wages or changes in working conditions, or run the risk of being denied work in the future by this company, if they refuse. And, consequently, all but 300 or 400 have returned to work on the company's terms.

The company reduced the pay of bunch-breakers (one class of workers) from 40c per hundred to 27c per hundred, and at the same time claimed, quoting from its paid notice in the Lima newspapers, "There is absolutely no reduction in wages; anyone, who is willing to apply themselves to their work, can easily earn as much per day or week at present as they did during the year 1921." When it is stated, however, that the bunch-breaker, in order to earn as much per day, under this system, as in 1921, would have to speed up 50% in work; as, for instance, one accustomed to making 800 per day, year in and year out, would now have to show 1,200 as a day's work; and when it appears that it is physically impossible to do this, and keep within the Ohio State Law of a 50-hour week, (and it was so demonstrated by the statements of a number of employees now at work in the Lima factories) it will be seen that, notwithstanding the claim of the company above stated, an actual reduction in wages has been forced on the employees. And the reduced rate of pay above quoted is lower than that paid in the year 1913.

A compromise rate of 32c per hundred and a speeding up of production of 25%, instead of 50%, was suggested to a number of those still unemployed by Commissioner Rodgers; and, as this would assure to them the same amount of pay they received before the new system was put into operation, they expressed their willingness to return to work on these terms; but, when submitted to the Company officials, it is said it was instantly rejected by them.

The wages, 40c per hundred, paid to another class of employees, known as rollers, working with the bunch-breakers referred to above (men workers receiving 45c, a discrimination against the women workers, who must turn out the same quality of work as the men workers) were not reduced, but they also went on strike, fearing a cut in wages if the new system referred to in preliminary report was successful. Investigation in Detroit and Cincinnati developed the fact that in the manufacture of a cigar, selling at the same price as that of the Deisel-Wemmer Co., viz.: $58 per M, the wages paid to rollers and bunch-breakers together amounted to 87c per hundred in the former city, and 82½c per hundred in the latter city, against the former rate of 80c per hundred paid in the factories of the Deisel-Wemmer Co., thus refuting the statement made by officials of the company that they were forced to adopt a system involving reduction of wages (now 67c per hundred) and speeding up of production, because of competition in Detroit, Cincinnati and elsewhere. Due to information received that, in the effort to make good under the new system, the cigar makers were violating the State 50-hr. week law by starting work before seven o'clock in the morning and working throughout the dinner hour (or nearly so), this matter was placed, it is said, before Mr. Percy Tetlow, director of the Ohio State Dept. of Labor, who said he would arrange to have an inspection made at the Deisel-Wemmer Cigar factory at Lima and at Wapakoneta, O., and also that a representative of the Mediation Bureau would be assigned to proceed to Lima and co-operate in the endeavor to secure an adjustment of the controversy.

The representative of the Mediation Bureau did not put in an appearance. It may be noted here that the information as to employees entering the plant before 7 a. m. (and many of them entering as early as 5 minutes after 6 a. m.) was confirmed by personal observation made by disinterested parties.

The following officials of the company, Mr. H. G. Wemmer, Vice Pres. and Gen. Mgr.; Mark H. Kolter, Asst. to Gen. Mgr., and Chas. Hosselman, General Supt., flatly refused on the part of the company to change or modify in any way the new system now in force, which reduces the wages of a certain class of cigar makers to less than pre-war rates; and those who cannot speed up 50%, in order to earn their former wage, must be satisfied with the reduced rates, notwithstanding the prevailing high cost of living.

The names of workers who testified that the new system was not meeting with the success which the company officials claimed for it, cannot be disclosed because of the fear that they would be discharged and blacklisted, and the failure of the Ohio State Dept. of Labor to co-operate on the question of the violation of the 50-hr. a week law, rendered it impossible to secure an adjustment which would be fair and equitable to employees.

The older members of the trade union movement see no cause for despondency in the present wage situation. We have seen the movement grow and shrink and grow again larger than before. We have seen wages rise, fall, and rise again higher than before. Sometimes business will recover and start, then labor will be in demand and in short supply and wages will resume the upward swing. One swallow does not make a summer. A reduction in wages does not necessarily make a permanent policy. The trade union cause is bigger and broader than any incident by its wayside. Being right it must prevail.—Boot & Shoe Worker.

TRADE NOTES.

The annual report of the Department of Commerce relative to the tobacco industry in general shows that there were 1,473,000 acres planted in tobacco in 1921, while the production from that crop amounted to 1,117,682,000 pounds, which compares with 1,582,225,000 pounds for 1920. There were imported during the year leaf tobacco and tobacco products to the value of $60,253,000, while the exports of leaf tobacco were valued at approximately $205,000,000, and of tobacco products at $21,000,000. The combined production of cigars in registered factories and in bonded manufacturing warehouses was 8,581,695,000; of cigarettes, 54,287,000,000, and of chewing and smoking tobacco and stuff, 414,000,000 pounds. There were 8,544,000,000 cigarettes exported during the year, leaving 45,743,000,000 factory made cigarettes for consumption in the United States. Revenue collected during the year amounted to $254,035,000. Of this total, North Carolina contributed $79,567,000; New York, $44,199,000; Pennsylvania, $22,260,000; New Jersey, $20,919,000; Virginia, $18,580,000, and Ohio, $14,255,000.

Of the total number of "large" cigars, 7,368,000,000, sold by manufacturers during the year ending June 30, 1921, 1,890,000,000, or 25 per cent, were intended to retail for not more than 5 cents; 2,186,000,000, or 30 per cent, for more than 5 cents but not more than 8 cents; 3,079,000,000, or 42 per cent, for more than 8 cents but not more than 15 cents, and 213,000,000, or 3 per cent, for more than 15 cents. The character of the cigars manufactured in the several districts vary greatly. About three-fourths of the total production of cigars in Florida were intended to retail for more than 8 cents each. On the other hand, about 95 per cent of the total production in Virginia were intended to retail for not more than 5 cents. West Virginia and the 23rd District of Pennsylvania, the home of the "stogie," also show a very large percentage of the total production to retail for 5 cents or less.

At the close of May, 1922, there was held in the bonded warehouses of the United States a total stock of 70,718,456 pounds of leaf tobacco. In comparison with 66,718,331 pounds in the same period last year, a decrease of 4,000,125 pounds. The 70,718,456 pounds of leaf tobacco on hand May 31, 1922, was valued at $57,280,677, compared with $72,333,745, showing a loss of $15,053,068 in value.

The following table gives in detail the amount of tobacco both wrappers and fillers, remaining in bonded warehouses of this country on May 31, 1922 and 1921:

	1922. Pounds.	1921. Pounds.
Leaf, suitable for wrappers.....	3,458,153	6,353,186

The crop reporting board in the Bureau of Agriculture Economics of the Department of Agriculture on Monday gave out a statement of its estimates on various crops, including tobacco.

According to the department's figures, the 1922 tobacco acreage is 1,763,000 acres, which is 122.9 per cent of the 1921 acreage. The condition on July 1 of this year is given at 82.4 per cent, as against 71.9 for July 1 of last year, and 82 per cent for the 10-year average.

The July 1 forecast for the tobacco crop was for 1,415,000 pounds, while the December 1 estimate was for 1,075,000 pounds, and the four-year average 1,378,000 pounds. This year's yield is given at 802.4 pounds per acre, as compared with the December estimate of 749.4 pounds per acre, and a four-year average of 814.2 pounds per acre.

The following table, though incomplete, shows the number of cigars manufactured in the various districts as shown by the sale of revenue stamps for the month of June, 1922, as compared with the previous month:

BY SAMUEL GOMPERS.

President, American Federation of Labor.

The present conflict is an expression of a fundamental dispute between industry and finance. It is a conflict between service and profit. Vast opposing forces are operating and must continue to operate until there is an adjustment that permits the supremacy of service and victory for public welfare.

Finance rules industry today. In the case of railroads, Wall Street makes railroad policy in the interest of profits. Railroad policy is not made in the interest of transportation.

A policy ordered by finance has profits as its object. It must demand low wages. It must shear wherever it is possible to shear and it will shear wherever there is not a strong opposing force to prevent that shearing.

Finance is incompetent to manage and fix the policy for industry. The prime requirement is that industry serve the public. This cannot be if the useful men and women are denied all chance to express themselves.

The purpose of coal mines should be to furnish coal for heat, light and power. Today the purpose of coal mines is to make profits for those who own coal mines. Even where profit is not made, the purpose is profit and it is with that in view that policies are made.

Those who invest capital demand labor policies that will help make profits. They necessarily oppose labor policies that are designed primarily to bring about coal production.

Control of production policies does not properly belong to those who merely control money.

Control of production policies properly belongs to those actively interested and engaged in production, to those who are competent to judge production policies, to those engaged in the business of giving services.

If the public can secure recognition of its rights in connection with production, it can afford to forget about the control of money. It must concern itself today with the control of money only because money is an instrument through which an improper power is wielded.

Facts about production are necessary to an understanding of what is wrong with production. Facts about production are today private property and in some cases are so treated with the sanction of government and courts.

The Federal Trade Commission, carrying out an order of Congress, sought facts about coal production. It could get these facts only from the books of employers. The employers refused to allow access to those facts in their books. The courts sustained the employees, saying these facts belong to the mine owners.

Financial control makes this secret necessary. If industry were controlled by industry, such secrecy would not be necessary and would cease. Competition for dividends would become obsolete, but competition for efficiency and for high grade production and service would take its place, preserving the valuable principle of competition without robbing the workers and consumers.

Financial thievery is possible largely because industrial facts are private property and protected as such. Private ownership of facts must stop.

Corporations, trying to reduce wages, ask the public to sympathize with the corporations. They expect a verdict in the dark because the public knows nothing about production costs, the efficiency of production methods or the market need for the commodity.

Money is invested to produce profits, not to produce commodities.

If financiers can make bigger dividends by investing in a gambling stock market corner to create an artificial shortage of a staple than by investing in the manufacture of a staple, they will invest in the gamble.

Need for commodities has nothing to do with investment of money. Rate of return has everything to do with investment. Not all can invest in speculative or highly profitable directions. Some must invest in less profitable ventures. All invest with the primary idea of profit, not with the primary idea of service.

Production is primarily for profit.

That is the basis of the real issue today. That is why mine owners, nationally organized, guard their secrets and refuse to agree upon terms with the workers. That is why railroad managements, managing in the name of Wall Street, refuse to come together with the workers and agree upon terms. Management is serving profit, not production needs, not the requirements of the people. This is the biggest fact in the whole situation. It is the fact that is at the bottom of everything and until people consider and understand that fact, they are dealing with superficialities.

The first step toward righting what is wrong is the establishment in industry of a uniform cost accounting system. That will make possible the scientific gathering of essential facts. Industry itself does not know the facts about itself. It is to a large degree blind, so far as management is concerned. It is like a blind man playing with earthquakes.

Second, public access to the facts is required. The public cannot judge rightly until it knows the facts—not part of the facts, but all of them.

Those are the first steps. No more steps can be taken until those have been taken. On the basis of scientific organization and public ownership of facts, next steps will be determined by the people themselves. No one can foresee with accuracy, nor does any one need to foresee.

Wall Street today is a blind fool astride a wild engine of terrific power. There is intelligence in neither. Wall Street operates blindly amidst a chaos of forces seeking profits, caring for nothing that does not bet- get or protect profits.

Wall Street must be deprived of its power, its roots dug out of our industrial fabric.

Wall Street, meaning money power, extends its control everywhere, dealing with the dead hand of increment, placing living humanity in bondage to dead men who have left money produced by dead men and which extorts its profits from the toil and requirements of the living.

There is a deep, vital issue to be solved. We have, not a class struggle, but a struggle between great, primary forces, between a group interest and a great, universal human interest.

Strikes, such as those on the railroads, in the mines, in the textile mills, cannot be understood by looking at the surface. The background is where the full truth lies.

Labor is holding the line for humanity, contending with all of its might, with its very life, for the great ideal of service—for the great practical necessity, production primarily for the satisfaction of human needs. Labor is contending against the continued enthronement of Profit as the autocrat of our destinies.

If labor's line is broken, the public welfare will be engulfed.

The Monarch of Gold seeks to rule for gold alone. Labor seeks to serve. It seeks to bring freedom to management, co-operation to all industry. It seeks to make industry serve human needs.

Back of all industrial strife today is that underlying motive force. Back of every struggle is that background. Until that is understood and dealt with intelligently and constructively, there will be no step toward final remedy.

Who shortens your hours? The union.

Who protects you from grinding bosses? The union.

Who fights for sanitary workshops? The union.

Who gets behind every piece of remedial legislation? The union.

Who takes the children out of the workshops? The union.

Who demands equal pay for the sexes, and who reduces hours for women? The union.

Who continually forces employers to protect the workers? The union.

Who raises your wages? The union.

Who has forced the establishment of factory inspection? The union.

Who started the long list of social advances now being made everywhere? The union.

The unions do things. Every hour of the day they advance inch by inch and step by step. They have beaten down opposition. They have compelled judges, clergymen, economists and educators to revise their views of our cause and movement.

The union is the best investment a worker can make. They are here to stay and their unselfishness will expand only as fast as our non-union fellows join with us.

There is no limit to what we can do by united action.

Join with us in this great humanizing, educational movement that has proven its work and stands today the only force between workers and degradation.

No other movement on earth can compare with organized labor in the practical, direct benefit of the toilers.

Let unionists proclaim the faith that is in them, and let them spread the gospel of trade unionism to their unorganized craftsmen.

Grit your teeth and organize, for you will enjoy only those benefits that you fight for.

CORRESPONDENCE

Chicago, Ill.

A fairly accurate estimate of public opinion as regards the prohibition question is afforded through a poll conducted by The Literary Digest. With the poll at approximately the half million mark we find, "Those in favor of the strict enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and Volstead Law," 181,704.

"Those in favor of a modification of the Volstead law to permit light wines and beer," 196,864.

"Those in favor of repealing the Prohibition Amendment," 101,476.

The above figures show approximately 62 per cent favoring a change in the law and about 38 per cent favoring its continuance and enforcement. The poll is the expressed opinion of all classes. If it was confined to labor alone I am of the opinion that in the second article, which indicates favoring light wines and beer, the sentiment would be found almost unanimous. This opinion is based partially on the result of a poll taken in one industrial concern (not a cigar factory) where the vote showed 93 for enforcement, 978 for modification and 966 for repeal.

The "antis" are naturally all worked up about the poll and some of their leaders declare that the first question is equivalent to asking, "Would you favor nullification of the supreme law of the land?" and they insinuate that if you do favor such nullification you must be an anarchist.

We know that when public opinion conflicts with the "antis" the public has very little chance. Ohio, the only state in which a referendum was taken on the Eighteenth Amendment, showed the public voting against the law, despite the fact that the state was "dry" insofar as state control was concerned. The Supreme Court promptly ruled that the ratification of the amendment by the Legislature was sufficient. In other words, the ruling was to the effect that the citizens of Ohio were constitutionally incompetent to decide as to what they wanted as regards prohibition.

If by voicing our sentiment as against a law, be it the supreme law of the land as it may be, although a farce in its makeup and a joke in its observance, we become anarchists, then more power to this particular brand of anarchy. It's a cinch that unless we do voice our objections to the law the morals trust will continue its demand that the law be enforced to the detriment of all concerned.

It is much easier to write ironclad laws than it is to enforce them, and the mere fact that the law is there does not change human nature in the least. A stroke of the pen cannot change the habits of a nation overnight. Temperance, the things we as a nation desire, is rapidly losing ground in the face of bootlegging, moonshine and drugs.

We ourselves, after all, are the government, or at least that is the intent of "Of the people, by the people and for the people." Hence we hold the unabridged right to protest against, modify or repeal any law not subject to the will of the majority and in the case of prohibition there has not as yet been any such manifestation.

R. E. VAN HORN.

Oneida, N. Y.

The "locked out" members of Union No. 12, Oneida, N. Y., are beginning the fiftieth week of persecution for the maintenance of the standards and principles of union men; and, even at the present time, while our bosses, other than the notorious Goldstein concern, are making every effort to "swing" another reduction after five unsuccessful attempts, in as many weeks, by the "open shop" scare and open insinuations of installing "cigar machines," etc., and even resorting to worse tactics—the intimidation of members whom the bosses cannot control are told, "We will have to let you go; your work is unsatisfactory." Question—Does the above apply to work inside or outside of the bosses' factory. I might state, in passing, that these tactics are not new in Oneida. They were first discovered during the famous Goldstein strike in 1901-1902—20 years ago—do you remember? But, with all these conditions and combinations to contend with, this bunch of union men stand today on the same identical grounds as on July 14th, 1921, when the "Master Key" said, "Thou shalt not pass" into our shop unless you toll for nothing and board yourselves! And so perforce, we board ourselves and do not intend to toll below the bill of prices of our neighbors. Will ask in closing, give us a "cheery word," brothers, and your fight, as well as ours, is won, regardless of who will be the "goat" in this strike.

Philadelphia, June 3, 1922.

The other day I requested Mr. Gerstner, president of Union No. 165, who is employed by the firm of Reig & Langsdorf, to try and procure for me an interview with Mr. John Gerhart, superintendent of this firm. This he succeeded in doing.

On my arrival at the factory with Mr. Gifford, I met and was introduced to Mr. Gerhart. I said to him, "You at one time operated sixteen of these automatic cigar making machines in your factory? What is the reason you quit operating them?"

He gave me various reasons, such as this: These automatic machines can only be operated to an advantage under a regular and even climatic and atmospheric condition. Wherever these machines are operated for instance, if at any time the air is too dry, the machine will not turn out proper cigars, and vice versa; but he adds, in the course of time these difficulties will in all probability be overcome.

I asked him to give me his unbiased opinion of the merits of the machine in a general way.

His reply was as follows: "For cheap grade cigars, the machine will work out all right." I then asked him this very pointed question: If I were working for you as a cigarmaker, would you accept from me bunches, the same as the machine makes? To which he replied most emphatically, No, Sir.

I then asked him why he sold his sixteen automatic machines? His reply: You see, Sonthelmer, we make cigars that sell for 15 cents apiece, and two for a quarter. These machines cannot turn out this kind of work. He also intimated to me, until such time when the machine shall have been perfected to a higher degree of efficiency, cigars of the class that we produce will continue to be made as heretofore.

To Our Many Interested Friends:

We are continually in receipt of requests for information from our host of friends wishing to be set right as to Union Labeled cigarettes and tobacco.

In reply to the many questions will say that "Dill's Best," and all of the Dill's goods; "Central Union," "Epicure," and all of the United States' goods; "Edgeworth," and all the Larus & Brothers' goods, including "Relu" and "Jumbo" Cigarettes, do not bear the Label and therefore not Union Made goods.

We do not regard any tobacco or cigarette "Union Made" unless they bear the label on the package. Many of our friends ask us about certain brands that they have been told are Union Made. When you want to be certain that a brand is Union Made, see that the Label is on the package the dealer hands you in exchange for your good money. When the Label is in evidence, you know you are right, and can so convince your challenger by showing him the actual label and the word of the dealer, who wishes to sell what he has in stock, as a rule, has little interest in what is "Union" and what is not. To be sure you are right, "Look for the Label" and see that it is on what you buy.

There is a world of satisfaction in knowing that you are right.

Recently there appeared in the Journal an amendment proposed by Union No. 12 of Oneida, N. Y., its object being to reduce the number of organizers. So far I have remained silent on this amendment, but since it did not receive a sufficient number of seconds to send it to popular vote and will not be voted upon I feel at liberty to say a few things concerning it.

It is to be presumed the amendment has been offered in the interest of economy. If the judgment of the committee of three is no better than has been used in the past on matters that pertained to the general welfare of Union No. 12 of Oneida, then on that ground alone, it ought to be defeated.

When the time arrived that these same men should have been far sighted enough to readjust their Bill of Prices, in accordance with the trend of the times, did they do it? Why, of course not! If not, why not? What sinister motive was behind their refusal to readjust their bill, which finally resulted in forcing one of the best union shops out of Oneida, a shop which had been a good union shop for a period of almost 50 years?

There is a strong suspicion that certain elements were at work to either undermine or wreck the Oneida Union. This stubborn refusal to meet the conditions that had arisen was given another funny twist when Powell & Goldstein moved away to the cheap districts of Pennsylvania. It was then that the wise acres of Oneida decided to lower their bill, but alas too late, the big damage had been done, the shop was lost. Now then these brothers began drawing international benefits and in addition thereto began sending out heartrending appeals, "Save us, save us, we are in urgent need of funds. If we win, you win, if we lose, you lose, etc." When these appeals were read in the different local unions we, the organizers, left nothing undone to help Oneida get donations to the very best of our ability.

Let us for a moment consider how and what the International President did to aid Oneida. As soon as Powell & Goldstein moved their Oneida shop they opened up shops in different towns in Pennsylvania. The moment our International President was informed that certain of our members were working in different shops of Powell & Goldstein certain organizers were sent into Pennsylvania to show these members the error of their ways. You may ask, "Did these members leave these shops?" Some did and others refused. For the benefit of the Oneida Union I might say let them communicate with 257, Lancaster, Pa., and with Union 316, McSherrystown, as to what action was taken by these unions, even at a loss of members. The writer of this article approached these offending members working in Lancaster, McSherrystown and Littletown. With those who came out there was no need to take any action; those who refused were fined and suspended. These and many other sacrifices were made by the International Union and the locals referred to above.

In all probability the committee of three, representing Union No. 12 of Oneida would have enjoyed some of the abuse slammed at the organizers by these strike breakers.

Until such time as the members of Union No. 12 of Oneida can show better judgment in the management of their local affairs, let me advise them not to offer amendments that many members have every reason to suspect are not offered in good faith and are not offered in the best interests of the International Union. At this time we are in need of all enthusiastic supporters of the International Union. We have men at the head of our organization who have made many sacrifices for the best interests of the cigar makers of the United States, and if the members will follow the advice of the men who have conducted the affairs of the Grand Old International Union well nigh on to a half century they will not permit themselves to be misled by those who follow first one fancy and then another. If there is any reconstruction work to be done, Oneida must or should be content to follow but under no circumstances should she lead. The reason for this harsh conclusion is Oneida's dismal failure in the Powell & Goldstein fiasco.

We have in New York State about twenty weekly labor papers. These are the only publications that can be relied upon to present labor's case as it is. These are the only publications that can be relied upon to be consistent and unfailing in their support of labor's immediate aims and of its ultimate objects. It is never necessary to ask the labor papers to support labor's cause. The labor paper is in business for that purpose and it never does anything else.

The support which labor papers can give is, however, not wholly a matter to be determined by the editor or manager of such a paper. It is largely a matter determined by the support given by the rank and file.

Every labor paper in the State of New York can be made powerful if it can get the support that the workers of New York ought to give it. Many trade unionists now read no labor paper at all. Every trade unionist ought to read at least one labor paper regularly. Moreover he ought to pay for the paper he reads. The time is coming when every trade unionist who wants to be well informed will read not merely one labor paper, but a half dozen.

It will help a great deal now if every trade unionist in New York begins reading one labor paper and immediately subscribes for that paper for a year.

This ought to be unfinished business for every local union and for every individual member until every trade unionist in New York State is a paid subscriber of at least one labor paper published in this State.

Reading, Pa., Aug. 10, 1922.

The other day a traveling cigarmaker passing through Reading brought the information that recently the members of a certain union had voted down a proposed label assessment. This astonished me. I wonder if the cigarmakers of that city realize the great danger they are up against. The strength of the cigarmakers of well-organized places has been spreading the propaganda of the blue label. Their system of advertising the label has been what has held the trust-made, non-union manufacturers at bay.

Do those cigarmakers want to make cigars for the prices paid by the trust manufacturers here in Pennsylvania? If that's what they want they will get it if they cease their activities in advertising the blue label.

The great chain of trust factories located here in this cheap belt want the cigarmakers to cease educating the consuming public, so that they may be enabled to come into the union market and unload their cheap-made cigars on the unsophisticated public. This having been accomplished, the cigarmakers will make cigars for prices paid here in this cheap belt.

Are union cigarmakers prepared to do this? If so, let them stop advertising the blue label. The rest will be easy for the cheap manufacturers of Pennsylvania.

I enjoy reading our Journal. Henry Abrahams of 97 Boston in the June Journal asks, "What does the Label denote?"

The Label denotes that the workman who made the goods bearing the label received a fair day's wage and worked not too long hours. The Label denotes that the workman is able, by and through the use of that Label, to feed, clothe and educate his children.

The Label denotes that that workman who made the goods bearing the Label is working under good conditions which tend to make him a good citizen and a good citizen is an asset to his country, as it is through our good, patriotic citizens our ideals and traditions are preserved.

The Label denotes that the best and most effective medium through which we as union men will defeat the trusts in their efforts to destroy organized labor is by insisting on the Label being on every article we buy.

The Label asks, Have we as union men done our full duty in asking for union made goods?

The Label says, If union men generally insisted on union made goods there would be much less opportunity for the trusts to function.

Our good friend, Abrahams, in asking the question, "What does the Label denote?" has certainly opened up an avenue of thought which should appeal to every member of our union.

UNION LABEL TRADES DEPARTMENT, A. F. OF L.

Monday, Sept. 4, is a day dedicated by the national government and several states to LABOR. On that day the hosts of labor in many cities assemble to recount or take inventory of their successes and reverses during the year passed.

At the mass meetings held on that day notice is also taken of the hostility of some employers, reactionary legislation, court decisions derogatory to the welfare of the people, and the proposing of remedies for these conditions.

While all of this is necessary in order that our fellows receive first-hand information on these important subjects, little or no attention is paid to the great power for good that we have with us every day in the year—the union label, shop card, and working button.

The power of money is the basis for nearly all, if not all, of our social, industrial and economic ills, and money can also be made to work very effectively in our cause if we but take the time to inform all trades unionists how to use this power for our own benefit and for the confusion of our enemies.

The power of purchase of five million trades unionists is so tremendous that it is almost staggering! Seven billions of dollars pass through the hands of our members each year, and if this were used only to employ trades unionists what a revolution it would bring about in conditions generally.

The union label, shop card, and working button are mediums which will aid us in making purchases so that we can materially assist our fellows in their efforts to not only maintain the good conditions they now enjoy but help them to still greater improvements.

Will your honorable body see to it that the union label, shop card and working button receive attention from the speakers at your demonstration and have them point out the need of every member of organized labor to support these emblems of fair conditions every time they make a purchase?

It seems unnecessary to suggest that only commodities made under union conditions bearing the union label be used by your members on Labor Day, and that everyone employed for any purpose in your demonstration have a paid-up union card.

Extending you hearty greetings and best wishes for success, I am,

Fraternally yours,

JOHN J. MANNING,

Secretary-Treasurer, Union Label Trades Department.

Optimistic Center, June, 1922.

The amendment proposed by Union 12, Oneida, and accompanied by a letter (published in May Journal, p. 10) might have been allowed to pass on to referendum; after receiving the required number of seconds, without comment, had it not been for the proponent of the amendment to Sec. 56, drawing a fanciful picture a "bird's-eye view" of garbled and exaggerated statements, under the guise of furnishing information and facts pertaining to one of the important phases of our laws, but instead, we were handed a medley; as the "recommendation" of the "committee" to correct an evil complained of, without foundation.

In dealing with statistics, accurate statements should be made carefully computed on facts, but the mere juggling of words when penetrated with the light of investigation, discloses the chicanery that is employed by an expert dodger to prove an "alleged fact."

In treating with that most remarkable remedy, "An Object Lesson in the Labor Movement," as proposed to us by the "Secretary of the Committee" we shall attempt to analyze it briefly in orderly sequence. Beginning with the year 1909, and leading up to 1921, a period of twelve years. Let us first note that a "g" deal of water has run under the bridge" in that span of time, some of our members went in to other lines of industry, some went to war and did not return, some few dropped out for causes best known to themselves, some went to scabbing, they would not stay "PUT," and a goodly number went on that long-last journey over the Great Divide; 157 names recorded in the April and May Journals, 1922. What the aggregate amounts to in twelve years the writer has no knowledge.

With reference to "high salaried" organizers, Sec. 57, Int. Constitution, regulates that, and with due modesty we think it a very nominal sum, considering the duties required, and services rendered. Organizer's time is not strictly confined to eight hours per day, with Sunday excluded, and most people know that living expenses when traveling are a bit more costly. Any one who cares to investigate and make comparison will learn that salaries paid to officers and representatives of our union are from 20 to 100 per cent less than is paid to like officials in 90 per cent of all other Int. Unions, salary and expense published in the Journal from month to month, include railroad fare and all receipts to organizers. There are about 500 local unions, scattered far and wide over the United States and Canada, with an area combined of 6,756,789 sq. mls., with Porto Rico and Cuba added thereto, it takes on a few thousand more miles. An occasional visit is not made without cost, as passes are not in vogue in our union.

With reference to "Organizers that don't organize" and "Label agitators that don't agitate the label" we direct attention to (April Journal, 1922) initiation fees, 1920-21, $30,228.20, that represents some infusion of new blood transmitted into the union, and was not accomplished wholly without effort of organizers. The amendment proposes to sit tight in the boat until the "membership reaches 50,000, not including Class A or Class B," which reminds us of the man in Arkansas whose roof leaked. When asked by a traveler why he did not fix it, the reply came: When it rains I can't fix it, when sun shines don't need it fixed. With reference to the "autocratic regime" that the "secretary of committee" alludes to, we have to say that most all trades unionists know that our laws are constructed on broad democratic principles, by sanction and consent of the majority membership, by referendum vote, and are interpreted wisely and well by those in authority. Even Doctrinaire, concede to that, only those laboring under misconception or drunk from orgy of Soviet doctrine, will dispute the fundamental democracy of the cigar makers union.

An intense and bitter war on the economic battlefield is being waged against all organizations of labor, the "committee" to the contrary notwithstanding. The way to foil the enemy in its vicious onslaught to destroy trades unions, is to meet the attack with redoubled energy in organization to preserve the lines. There never has been a time when our union was top-heavy with organizers; too few has been the rule, and not the exception. We need more UNION MEN with staunch heart, tried and true. To the query in the letter of the committee, "This amendment is our recommendation. Now, what is yours?" we make reply and suggest that, union men quit swinging the hammer against their own organization. DO NOT affiliate with the "anvil choir," join the harmony club. Become a real booster for a 100 per cent union in our craft. DO NOT be an obstructionist. "Forget that gag," work vigorously to build up, not to tear down.

We are told in the amendment, "Balance of Sec. 56 to remain unchanged." Then again, "Paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 unchanged in Sec. 56." In conclusion we wish to call attention that if the proposed amendment be adopted Sec. 56 would remain virtually unchanged, only a conflict in the prescribed law as now written. In that no alteration has been made only in the first paragraph. The Constitution distinctly says in paragraph 2, "Organizers shall be empowered to appoint (subject to confirmation by the International Executive Board), etc.," and in paragraph 4 it says, "Whenever the International President shall consider it necessary to appoint organizers he shall notify all of the locals in the district, etc., etc." It is thus plain to be seen that the intent and purpose of the law would be unbridled. Some amendments are jokes and some propositions are "jokers." We suggest referring back to the committee to revamp.

Respectfully,

R. S. SEXTON.

Poverty and low wages go together," declared Professor Carver. "People are poor for no other reason, aside from pauperism, than that they must sell their labor at a low price and, therefore, must suffer inadequate incomes. Make it harder for the employer to get men and easier for the laborer to get a job. A redistribution of human talent lies at the basis of any equitable redistribution of wealth. Education, if unhindered, would accomplish this result, but the immigration of large masses of unskilled labor neutralizes the effect of education. Therefore restrict immigration.—Exchange.

Back of all our trade union efforts lies the desire to elevate our standard of living, the necessity of holding our own and going forward, or seeing ourselves forced backward to lowered standards. Our standard of living is determined by the terms of our employment. The amount of wages we receive determines what kind of a place our home shall be, whether a two or three-room apartment in a crowded tenement district, or a five or six-room cottage with pure air and sunlight around it. Our wages determine what kind of food we shall eat and the clothes we shall wear, what opportunities our children shall have, what books and music there shall be in the home, what amusements shall be available to ourselves and our families.

"I believe that a man who works at a trade and accepts and enjoys the conditions that organized labor has brought about is morally obligated to join the labor organization, to lend his zeal, his interest and his financial help to the movement that gave him those conditions.—Former Secretary of Labor Wilson.

Aside from the question of justice, it is economically unsound to curtail the purchasing power of labor. Wage workers constitute a large proportion of the consuming class, and any curtailment of their purchasing power necessarily has its effect upon all branches of trade.

Trusts consist of organizations for the control of the products of labor. Laborers have not a product for sale. They possess their labor power; that is, their power to produce. Certainly there can not be a trust in anything which has not been produced. Hence, for this if for no other potent reason, it is economically unsound as well as it is untrue to designate organizations of labor as trusts.

The whole purpose of education is to develop the best men and women to be the most high-minded resourceful and effective citizens of our republic. Upon the citizens will depend the destiny of the nation and its contribution to institutions of liberty and progress. Citizens under a democratic government must be able and competent to express and maintain their ideals.

REPORT OF ORGANIZERS

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 8, 1922.

After covering what meetings were on in Saskatoon in the interest of the label, I then went to Winnipeg from July 9 to 20. I worked in the interest of our label, attended all meetings, distributed advertising matter. I found the cigar trade hit very hard, due to the general industrial depression and the severe taxes imposed on cigars by the government and the city. As cigars are considered a luxury, the industry is taxed to the limit, with the result that the workers in the trade are paying dearly by the low wages they receive, and they will continue to pay as long as they refuse to see the "light" of organization, and remain as individualists, aloof from the union. "Food for thought" is given in the following statistics and should awaken the non-unionists out of their sleep of indifference. The latest available figures taken from Dominion Bureau of Statistics show the average wages paid in the cigar, tobacco and cigarette industry:

Employees on salary (979), salary paid	$1,614,987
Employees on wages (7,124), wages paid	4,177,175

Average wages paid for year $586
And yet manufacturers claim high wages cause for drive for the open shop.

Now, brothers, you can readily see by the above statement why we should be more active at present than ever before in our local unions if we wish to maintain our standard of living. Let us consider the value of our organization, as it is the only means we have to combat these conditions, and the strongest weapon is our purchasing power, and when we use it we become employers of labor. It is up to us to say what class of labor we will employ. We are asking the other fellow to employ union cigar-makers when he buys a cigar. So we in return should demand the labels of our brother unionists. Inconsistency of our members is often put to me at the various meetings I address.

Attended the following meetings and gave talks on label. Winnipeg—Electrical Workers, Bricklayers, Stereotypers, Machinists, Blacksmiths, Plumbers, Painters, Structural Ironworkers, Railway Carmen, Typographical Union, Building Trades Council, Millwrights, Carpenters, Plasterers, Moulders, Electrical Workers (435), C. P. R. Carmen, Teamsters, Brotherhood Carpenters, Brotherhood Railway Clerks, Stonecutters, Boilermakers, Western Labor News, business agents of the various locals and officers of the Trades Council. At Hamilton consulted with officers of Union 55 on local matters; attended all executive meetings of Union 55; attended Trades Council meeting Labor Day committee, Labor Party, Carpenters. Distributed list of union factories at meetings and stores.

The Cigar Makers Local Union, No. 4, and the Cigar Manufacturers Association of Cincinnati, have a working agreement under the bill of prices that has been in vogue there for several years. It has been the annual custom for a committee from the union to meet the manufacturers and have the agreement renewed at its expiration.

June 30, 1922, was the date when the last agreement expired between the union and the firms. Prior to that date the manufacturers had made a request for a reduction of the bill of prices ranging from two to seven dollars, that was considered unreasonable by the members, and was accordingly rejected by the union, and strike application was made against a reduction; the application was approved.

Negotiations were being carried on between the manufacturers' association and the union, and on the day of the expiration of the agreement covering the bill of prices, the manufacturers sent a communication, stating, "they had decided to accept the bill of prices and renew the agreement for another year." That terminated the strike under the application made by Union No. 4, and the International President so ruled.

But an entanglement developed later when the committee from the union sought to have the Manufacturers' Association sign a renewed agreement accepting the bill in toto. They balked and would not sign without equivocation, as they desired changes made in the working conditions under some sections of the bill, and insisted on amending certain clauses that prevailed in previous agreement.

The hesitancy on the part of the Manufacturers' Association in signing the bill at that juncture and their failure to live up to their promise as "stated in their communication," gave a different aspect to the entire situation and caused a change of construction to be placed on the status of the strike, and it was on that promise that the International President extended the privilege under the strike application and allowed benefits to the members of Union No. 4.

Fortunately for both sides concerned in the controversy, the deadlock did not continue very long, as on July 25 an agreement was reached and the bill signed by representatives of the Manufacturers' Association and the union for the period of another year, a harmonious and amicable settlement was arrived at.

The industrial situation in general in that city and vicinity, all things considered, seem very favorable, and the prospects for renewed activity and increase in the output of union made cigars from home manufacturers at the present writing seems to be a substantial certainty. The demand is growing for union made cigars and manufacturers will be called on to meet it. A live and energetic agitation committee has been installed by Union No. 4 to boost the union label and circularize with propaganda the business houses and to visit organizations in the interest of promoting the sale and consumption of union made cigars.

Fraternally,

R. S. SEXTON,

Newark, N. J., Aug. 8, 1922.

Since my last report I have worked around Newark and vicinity visiting meetings of other organizations on the label and helping to organize and reorganize Central Labor Unions. In places where there was a Central body a few years ago through some means or other it went out of existence and the movement was becoming extinct and the workers of the various crafts and callings had no organized central movement to offer them encouragement towards organization. With the organizer of the A. F. of L. we were successful in getting a new Central body started in Perth-Amboy and hope to put some life in the general movement in that city.

I have visited Paterson, N. J., and attended several meetings of Union 3, urged upon them to take up agitation work, this they have under consideration, and will take the matter up at the next regular meeting of the union on Aug. 8, and hope they will make provisions to do a little more advertisement of the union label. I feel that if they do they will have the same success as Union 138 is having by getting label cigars in places that they were never in before.

Owing to the big strikes on now of the railroad workers and the miners, other workers are looking on with silence wondering what will be the outcome, or how soon will they have to stop work on account of the shortage of coal or the breaking down of the railroad systems. If these strikes are settled in the near future no doubt business will improve very much this fall, but if they continue no one can tell what turn business will take.

The cigar business has been fairly good up to the present time in this vicinity, but is now showing the effects of the big strikes, and no doubt it like other industries will suffer if they continue much longer. All these things make the unorganized afraid to move notwithstanding they are reduced to pre-war prices and in many instances lower. Let us hope that the termination of the struggles of the workers now fighting for justice and right will be favorable to them and that that will give the unorganized new hopes and that they will take their place among their fellow workers in their respective trade unions.

WILLIAM A. McCABE,
Organizer.

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL FINANCIER

165, Philadelphia, Pa.

Conditions here are past understanding. The finance committee declare that they verified the money claimed in bank and in possession of their secretary, L. Hernfeld, for June 1, 1922, and before the end of June Hernfeld had embezzled in cash $1,426.83, besides having a stamp shortage of $284, on which he received a $25 credit because of an omission of an item in expense for January, 1922. The ledger had not been posted for months. Many conditions must be corrected and I really believe that some changes are due to take place. Many of the members are aroused. That means a house-cleaning if they do not lose their ambition too soon. I hope they stick to it. The prices paid at Philadelphia for making cigars is a shame, and the International Union is the only machine that will help the members better their condition. Get into the union; then make the use of it possible; you can revolutionize the cigar industry in Philadelphia and eastern Pennsylvania if you will use the energy offered you through the International Union. Report of Special Financier.

Union No. 350, Manati, Porto Rico.

The accounts of this Union having been examined same have been found to be very nicely and carefully entered. Books very clean and neatly kept. All benefit cards and vouchers for every expense on file properly kept in rotation but many of them signed only by the Financial Secretary who is also the Treasurer. The President should always sign every voucher, otherwise such expense might be declared illegal if such practice of unsigned vouchers for expenses is repeated. The Financial Committee of this Union is such a Committee only in name. There is no evidence of any kind of work performed by this Committee. Have the constitution and read it so you may realize your responsibilities. The members remaining after the last strike seem not to pay any attention at all to the union, and dues are received by the local only from those drawing sick benefits.

Unless some more interest in the union and their own affairs is shown by the members, this local will have to cease operation. Stamps and Cash accounts have been corrected by me. Ledger posted to date. Most of the members unemployed. The administration of this local during the years 1921 and 1922 and also during 1920 has been considerably neglected by the officials, they being responsible for the illegal payments made and for extravagant expenditures that have created the deficiency of this Union. Make an effort and lift up the spirit of unionism, don't be lazy. This union that for so many times responded to your call may respond again and always.

P. Rivera Martinez,
Acting Financier.

Mr. John E. Farrell has retired as general organizer for the Cigar Makers' International Union, in which capacity he has served for many years.

Play safe—take no chances! Unsanitary sweatshops are the breeding places of harmful germs. Insure your health by being a patron of the union label, card and button.

Doing for people what they can and ought to do for themselves is a dangerous experiment. In the last analysis the welfare of the workers depends upon their own initiative. Whatever is done under the guise of philanthropy or social morality which in any way lessens initiative is the greatest crime that can be committed against the toilers.

Class is no assurance of genius, ability or wisdom. No man is fit to control the lives of his fellows. The trade unions are the agencies through which wage-earners are working out their destinies and interposing a check upon arbitrary power in industry. The spiritual effect of industrial freedom is of incalculable potency in determining the moral fiber of the nation.

Hooper is the chairman of the Railroad Labor Board. He is the best propagandist the railroads ever had because he makes their fake statistics "official."

Hooper fails to tell the fact that, by the latest decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the railroads are authorized to collect 5% on $18,900,000,000—INCLUDING SEVEN BILLION OF WATER—or $1,086,850,000 a year.

Hooper fails to tell the fact that he receives the neat little sum of $10,000 per."

Hooper, however, tells the underpaid section hand, whose wages he cut to $563.04, to "Be a Good Sport."

Revising the Constitution

The duty and responsibility of the Railroad Labor Board, according to the law, is to establish "just and reasonable" wage schedules. When Hooper, and his board set workers' wages at $563.04 a year, they defied the law. When he says, "Be a Good Sport," he adds insult to injury.

A hooper, commonly known as a cooper, is one who bends strips of wood or steel around casks or tubs. When the railroads chose Hooper, they got just the man they wanted. The railroad tubs were full of "water." They were leaky! They wanted a craftsman who would make them "tight."

WHOO! ER UP, HOOPER! You are the best profit propagandist the railroads ever had! When you lose your present job you should get another from the railroads.

You will receive $1,000 from the United States Government five years from the day you invest $800 in the new issue of Treasury Saving Certificates, $100 for $80, $25 for $20. This means that your investment will earn 25 per cent in 5 years.

Report of Delegates to American Federation of Labor Convention, Cincinnati, Ohio,
June 12-24, 1922, Inclusive.

The Forty-Second Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor was held at Cincinnati, Ohio, where the representative hosts of all ranks of organized labor assembled in the parliament of labor's greatest forum, to discuss the economic, political and sociological issues confronting them, and give consideration to the vital problems affecting the great mass of workers of our land, organized and unorganized, and the welfare of society as a whole, with an earnestness of purpose and steadfastness of principle to achieve in the interest of the toilers, so that equity, justice and democracy in the economic and political field of society might prevail.

And thus their labors have been recorded on the pages of industrial history; another annual milestone has been erected in labor's rugged path of progress in its onward stride for a nobler goal—battling for the right.

Broad in scope, vital in interest, and numerous of theme were the subjects presented for analysis and disposition of the convention, all of which were given careful consideration, and disposed of by intelligent action; with a spirit of free and untrammelled deliberation. No period of time has ever been fraught with more grave conditions concerning the liberties of the peoples of our country: freedom of speech, the right to organize, the safeguarding of humane standards of labor, collective bargaining as a protection of the workers, with privilege for the pursuits of happiness, and adequate compensation for labor, those principles are being trespassed on by corporate greed and steps were taken in convention to legislate for the toilers' protection. The Executive Council's report dealing with legislative attacks on trades unions—pages 35 to 42. The Executive Council deals with the Kansas Court of Industrial Relations Law, Proposed Compulsory Incorporation of Trades Unions, President Harding's proposal to regulate trades unions, and the attempt made in New York to secure enactment of a law similar to the Kansas law. Intwoven throughout all of these legislative enactments and legislative proposals is the insidious attempt to extend the doctrine of conspiracy to the whole trade union movement and thus to prevent the constructive, effective and efficient application of the principles of organization, and co-operation by the wage earners.

Space will not permit us to make as comprehensive a resume in this report as we would like to, but all members of organized labor will find it to their material interest to read a copy of the proceedings of the convention and we suggest, that all members of organized labor should avail themselves of that privilege by procuring a copy of the proceedings, which are ready for distribution. Send 25 cents to the American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C., and a complete copy will be forwarded to the sender, postage prepaid.

Senator Robert M. La Follette delivered a bold, marvelous, masterly and illuminating address to the convention on June 14th on the subject of "Child Labor Law" and those great questions that have grown out of the decision recently made by the Supreme Court of the United States. The Senator denied the right of the Supreme Court to declare laws unconstitutional and charged the court with usurping such authority. He received an ovation at the close of his address. Regarding the subject touched upon in his address, by action of the convention, President Gompers later appointed a special committee of fifteen to consider and act upon all questions referred to them in the category of "Child Labor and Child Welfare," and also all matter within the purview of the statutes pertaining to injunctions and court decisions, affecting the vital interest of labor organizations. The committee reported and the final action of the convention on the subject-matter presented was most illuminating, instructive and beneficial as a curative and preventive of the evils now existing under the process of the injunction and the interpretation of the Supreme Court's decision.

There were no changes made in the personnel of officers of the Executive Council, as all were re-elected. Our fellow delegate, Samuel Gompers, was unanimously re-elected President to serve for the 39th term in that position.

There were four hundred and fifty-eight delegates in attendance representing 94 international and national unions, 4 departments, 71 state branches, 87 central bodies, 39 local trade and federal unions, and 4 fraternal delegates. There are represented in and affiliated to the American Federation of Labor 112 national and international unions, 5 departments, 49 state federations, 838 local department councils, 945 city central bodies, 85,275 local unions, 666 local trade and federal unions, with a paid-up membership of the American Federation of Labor for the fiscal year 1922 of 3,195,651.

There were 126 resolutions introduced; 63 were concurred in, 31 non-concurred in, 25 were referred to the Executive Council for its consideration and action. A number of the resolutions were considered jointly by the various committees as the subject-matter was contained in others, and were disposed of either by adoption, rejection or referring to the Executive Council. No action was taken on 4 as they had been considered in other resolutions or some previous definite action taken at the convention covering them. Resolution No. 95 was referred to the United Mine Workers and Resolution No. 64 to the Typographical Union, as the subject-matter contained in each of those, it was deemed, should properly come before their respective international unions.

Only a brief synopsis of the most important resolutions will be referred to in this report.

The following resolutions were concurred in:

No. 77, that the Executive Council instruct its general organizers and request state and central bodies to render all possible assistance in organizing work conducted by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

No. 96, reaffirming opposition to the iniquitous Cummins-Esch law and calling upon Congress for its repeal, and hereby declaring against the decisions of the Railroad Labor Board as being functioned in the interest of the railroad corporations.

No. 7, endorsing the leasing of Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford as the operation of the property under such a lease would furnish fertilizer to the farmers.

No. 51, requesting Governor Stephens of California to pardon Mooney and Billings so that they may have a new and a fairer trial.

No. 109, protesting against unequal rights of property of men and women, but against any blanket law by which women would be deprived of the protection of the laws for their industrial safety and welfare.

No. 122, asking the American Federation of Labor to pay particular attention to organizing the workers in all industry.

No. 124, that organized labor be notified that the firm making the C. C. A. cigars is now operating a union factory and is entitled to the use of the union label of the Cigar Makers' International Union on its goods and friends of organized labor be so notified.

A resolution of sympathy and support for the struggling miners of America was also adopted by unanimous vote.

The following resolutions were non-concurred in:

No. 29, asking for the amalgamation of all unions in the respective industries into single organizations.

No. 10, calling for the inauguration of a universal label by endorsing and accepting the label design of the American Federation of Labor to be used for that purpose.

No. 85, asking that all resolutions to the convention be printed and distributed to affiliated organizations one month before the convention.

No. 48, requesting compulsory and mandatory affiliation of all local unions with state and central bodies.

No. 97, relating to the jurisdiction between the Machinists and Flint Glass Workers' organizations sustaining the decision covering the case in previous action of the convention.

No. 6, requesting that the American Federation of Labor immediately upon adjournment of this convention to get in touch with the International Federation of Trades Unions and reaffiliate with that body.

No. 72, asking that the American Federation of Labor go on record as favoring the acceptance of charity when offered by persons who recognize our need.

No. 107, asking that the working day shall consist of seven hours a day with closing time at 12 o'clock noon on Saturday with full pay.

The following resolutions were referred to the Executive Council:

No. 32, that the barriers now existing in the Boilermakers and Helpers reach an amicable adjustment of the trouble in the Boilermakers' organization, restraining the race of colored helpers to affiliate.

No. 101, asking that the American Federation of Labor assign an organizer to the district of Maine and New Hampshire, where there is a fertile field for organization.

No. 105, asking that a special organizer be appointed by the American Federation of Labor who shall devote his entire time to the organization of the office workers.

No. 56, declaring against the actions of the Crescent Tool Company antagonistic to organized labor and the secretary of the American Federation of Labor be directed to notify all labor organizations in the cities wherein their goods are handled and distributed.

No. 92, concerning the Donaldson Lithographing Company, Incorporated, looking towards a settlement of the Printing Trades Union that are now protesting against their unfair methods.

No. 8, calling for an establishment of a central bank at Washington, D. C., to the end that the workers in all lines of productive effort may, by their deposits, take part in the building or financial institutions.

No. 9, asking the American Federation of Labor to establish and maintain in itself an Old Age Pension System.

No. 35, that the convention take the necessary steps to create a "Marine Transport Department" of the American Federation of Labor.

No. 118, asking that the American Federation of Labor through a committee be requested to study the question of the workmen's compensation from a national aspect with a view to standardize the provisions of the workmen's compensation through co-operation of the various State Federations of Labor.

No. 55, declaring for the right of the people to recall any judge and urging that such declaration become effective.

The resolutions and other matters referred to the Executive Council were considered by that body after the close of the convention. In every instance they were disposed of by the Executive Council in a manner for the best interests of Labor.

We repeat that it is impossible in this report to give anything like a review of the action and spirit of the delegates in the convention. Nothing was overlooked and nothing neglected, and the Executive Council and officers and the membership of the American labor movement are urged to greater activity and energy, to organize the unorganized, to unite and federate the organized, with the principle of solidarity guiding them onward and upward for a brighter and better future for all.

Legion Commander on Strike, Evicted.

(International Labor News Service.)

Wholesale eviction of textile workers occupying tenements is now the method of coercion adopted to force strikers back to the textile mills in Rhode Island. The inhumanity of the situation is enhanced by the fact that, under an obsolete law exhumed by attorneys for Godard Bros. in Lonsdale, evictions are made without notice or court order.

Consequently hundreds of families are now living in tents hastily constructed by the United Textile Workers.

Among those evicted is the commander of Cumberland Post of the American Legion, one of the strikers.

At night the streets are piled high with furniture surrounded by weeping women and children.

A blind boy, one of a family of nine, insisted on having a cheap phonograph, but his own, next to him where he sat on the curbstone so that he could play "The End of a Perfect Day."

COMMUNISTS ROUTED AGAIN BY GARMENT WORKERS WHEN PRESIDENT ASKS SHOW- DOWN.

Schlesinger Sustained and New Agreement, Improvement on Old One, Is Ratified by Referendum Which Overwhelms Destructive Campaign of Bolsheviks.

(By International Labor News Service.)

Communists have been routed completely in their efforts to conduct a disruptive work within the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union.

The International officers, led by President Benjamin Schlesinger, negotiated a new two-year agreement with the employers. This agreement provided for a continuance of the wage scale that has been in effect for the last three years. It maintained the 44-hour week, all of the established conditions and secured some important new concessions to the workers.

It was a better agreement than the old one, which was negotiated at the peak of prosperity.

As soon as the agreement was announced the Communists began their attack upon the agreement, upon President Schlesinger and the other officers. President Schlesinger was charged with every crime in the calendar, including betrayal of the workers. His traducers cited his action in the Cincinnati convention, where he refused to support the minority resolution demanding recognition of soviet Russia.

Schlesinger met the attack promptly and vigorously. He demanded a referendum vote on the new agreement. The vote has just been announced. It was:

Yes, 21,605.

No, 1,979.

Void, 100.

This is a triumphant vindication for President Schlesinger and a complete defeat for the Communists who made the attack upon him.

The Communists staked everything in their attack on Schlesinger. Their newspapers and periodicals were most bitter. They went into the fight proclaiming it a test of strength. They have had their test. It finds them with a handful of votes, not all of which by any means are called Communist votes.

Again is the Communist strength measured and found mostly noise.

In regard to the Russian question, President Schlesinger issued a formal statement which has been widely commented upon and which makes clear President Schlesinger's opposition to the soviet autocracy and his reasons for that opposition. His statement says:

"My action in the convention of the American Federation of Labor in connection with the proposed resolution on Russia has been so persistently misrepresented in certain quarters that I deem it advisable to make a public statement of the true facts.

"I did not vote against the resolution calling for the recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States government, nor did I vote for it.

"As a Socialist and Trade Unionist, I am opposed to the terrorist methods of the Soviet government, the suppression of free press and speech and the persecution of dissenting Socialist groups, as well as to the disruptive and reactionary tactics of the Communist Internationale, and I consider it not only my good right, but my positive duty to protest against these methods and tactics in all socialist and labor gatherings.

"On the other hand, I fully realize that the refusal of the United States government to recognize the Soviet government of Russia has very little to do with the above considerations, but is based upon the fact that the government of Russia is anti-capitalistic.

"It is therefore quite consistent in my opinion for a Socialist and Trade Unionist to condemn the Communist dictatorship of Russia and the destructive tactics of the Communist Internationale, while demanding the formal recognition of the Soviet government by the government of our own country.

"This is not only my personal view on the subject, but also the attitude of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, clearly expressed in the two resolutions on the subject adopted at the recent Cleveland convention.

"It was this position which I should have liked to see prevail in the convention of the American Federation of Labor, and with that object in view, I suggested an amendment in the minority report, which if adopted, would have adequately covered both aspects of the question. My suggestion was ruled out of order by President Gompers at the insistence of two of the delegates who supported the minority report, i. e., the resolution in favor of recognition of the Soviet government.

"Thus the delegates of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union were placed in the position of either giving unqualified approval to the Russian Soviet government, or joining in unqualified condemnation of it, or doing neither. The delegates of our International, with one exception, felt the latter course was the most consistent for non-Bolshevik Socialists and Trade Unionists to follow, and was in full accord with the position taken by our organization. We acted accordingly.

"I am making this statement with no desire to enter into discussion on the subject, but solely for the purpose of leaving a record of facts in anticipation of further reckless misrepresentations."

Senator Moses: The du Ponts still hold, as of July 1, 1922, $35,121,066.02 of Government funds unaccounted for, although the war ended almost four years ago. On practically none of this $100,000,000 of public money advanced to them did the du Ponts pay interest; and the only security they ever gave for any portion of this huge sum of the public's funds was their own notes or bonds. Lucky indeed, Mr. President, is that company which, desiring to extend its business, can float its issues of securities through the Federal Treasury, and luckiest of all are the du Pont Companies.—Congressional Record.

LABORS BIG ISSUES IN POLITICAL FIGHT.

Here are Labor Campaign Principles!

They are from a proclamation issued by the A. F. of L. Non-Partisan Political campaign committee, signed by President Gompers, Secretary Morrison and James O'Connell.

"The American Federation of Labor Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee directs the attention of the wage earners and their sympathizers to two principles that should be followed in the campaign. They are:

"No freedom loving citizen should vote for a candidate who will not pledge himself to oppose any form of compulsory labor law.

"No justice loving citizen should vote for a candidate for any office who will not pledge himself to oppose injunctions and contempt proceedings as a substitute for trial by jury.

"Let your slogan be:

"No judge-made laws.

"Abolish the injunction abuse.

"Make justice blind in fact as well as in theory.

"Amendments to the Constitution of the United States should guarantee rights, not take them away.

"No compulsory labor laws.

"No sales tax.

"No wage earners or farmers to be enslaved.

"No subsidies for the privileged few.

"No remission of fines to food profiteers.

"These issues, upon all of which depend the future of our republic, should be discussed with the organizations of farmers.

"Whatever injures labor injures the farmers.

"Whatever benefits labor benefits the farmers.

"Whatever is the interest of labor and the farmer is for the best interest of all the people except the privileged few. We urge you to be up and doing. The democracy of our republic must be maintained by labor and the farmers and all others who believe in good government."

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor has taken the initiative in the national campaign to secure a constitutional amendment to abolish child labor, following thorough consideration of the decision of the United States Supreme Court Monday on the Child Labor Law, according to an announcement made public yesterday by President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor.—Washington Star.

Accident and Illness Cause Five Times as Much Loss as Strikes.

The number of wage earners who remain away from employment every day in the year because of illness is 1,150,000, or a total of 345,000,000 days for a working year of 300 days. So says the report of the engineers appointed by Herbert Hoover to investigate waste in industry.

The Engineers' report on the Elimination of Waste in Industry states that in 1919 in all industries 23,000 fatal accidents occurred, about 575,000 non-fatal accidents causing disability for four weeks or more, about 3,000,000 accidents caused at least one day's disability.

Time lost due to these accidents is estimated at 296,000,000.

In 1919, in 2,399 strikes, the number of persons involved were 3,950,411, according to the Monthly Bulletin of the Department of Labor. The average duration of the 2,399 strikes was 34 days. If every striker in 1919 lost 34 days, then the 3,950,411 strikers lost a total of 134,313,974 days' work.

This would be less than 40 per cent of the days lost by illness.

There are, therefore, more than 60 per cent more days lost by illness in the year than by strikes, and during the years 1920 and 1921 the strike figures were reduced.

From these figures it is plain that the loss of time due to strikes is approximately one-half of that due to accidents and one-third of that due to industrial sickness and about one-fifth of that due to both accidents and sickness.

These big questions have been settled once and for all by the world war and its attendant activities: Militant imperialism and autocracy won't work in the twentieth century; Germany's experience proved that. Communism, Socialism and allied "isms" are utterly impracticable; Russia has proved that. Co-operation can yield better results than haphazard competition, although large scale co-operation necessitates vigilant governmental oversight; every country proved that, when the Herculean tasks incidental to the war had to be undertaken.

Almost every nation on the face of the earth has proved that neither capital nor labor can profiteer shamelessly without bringing on retribution; this is not the only country which has proved that. Finally, the peace of the world cannot be secured through insensate, colossal preparations for war; the principal nations of Europe proved that.—Forbes Magazine (N. Y.).

OFFICIAL

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President.

508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 318 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

I. M. ORNBURN, 286 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

D. W. KENNEDY, 73 Clifton Ave., Niagara Falls, Ont., Third Vice President.

MANUEL GONZALES, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Sixth Vice President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also, as per section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member, if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Sixth Vice-President Alexander Ramsey, of Nevada City, Cal., having engaged in business has resigned.

The regular International election laws as set forth in Sections 11 to 42 do not apply in the case of the election of Vice-Presidents to fill vacancies on the Executive Board. The election takes place according to the laws set forth in Sections 43, 44, 45 and 46 of the Constitution. No nomination or voting blanks or ballots are provided. The election takes place in the local union at your regular meeting under precisely the same method as applies in the nomination and election of the secretary or president of your local union.

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $3.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter. In the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and ules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments, and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 1a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of his special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 120. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all International assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

UNION NOTES

Union notes by $7, Boston.—If you are to continue as a democratic republic judge-made law must go.—New England is one of the best cigar markets in America, hence the efforts of the non-union manufacturers to capture this market.—What have you done for Jacksonville, Ill.?—Teach and practice fraternity.—When you read of some organization charged with all kinds of crimes in our daily press wait until you hear the other side before passing judgment, for our metropolitan press doesn't always give the facts.—Are the natives of Porto Rico better fed, clad and housed since annexation? If not, why not?—Who are the political economists advising the various chambers of commerce?—Why should not the coal miners be assured of sufficient wage to keep him fifty-two weeks in a year? Is it because the industry is not hazardous?—Did not the United States Labor Board, with the price of commodities what they are, fix a counterfeit wage? Was it enough for a family of five to live on as an American ought to live?—George III. believed in the prerogatives of a king. Result?—Loss of the colonies. Do the so-called captains of industry believe they are kings?—Before you mark your ballot think for whom and what you vote and then mark it.—Are you a citizen?—If the princes of finance had succeeded in destroying the trade unions what would have happened?—Agitate, organize and educate.—Once to be a citizen was greater than to be a king.—School bags and satchels can be procured with a union label. Think of this when your child goes back to school.—Henry Abrahams.

The American Federation of Labor is not a labor union. It is simply the federation of the national and international constructive trade unions of our time and country. It grew from a

The American Federation of Labor. tional constructive trade unions of our time and country. It grew from a handful of devoted, far-seeing, practical men of labor to its present gigantic proportions. It is voluntary and unincorporated. Its cardinal principles are strict autonomy and self-government of the unions affiliated thereto. It is the clearing house and spokesman and defender of the rights and interests and hopes and aspirations of the toiling millions. It at no time and under no circumstances attempts to interfere with the plans and policies of any affiliated union. It advises, but never commands, and therein lies its great strength.

It stands always for the protection of the rights and interests of all workers, organized or unorganized.

It hopes to see the accomplishment of the mighty task of organizing all wage-earners regardless of sex, color, nationality, or religion, and ever strives to be helpful by its advice and counsel in this great work.

The American Federation of Labor has no panacea, no get-there-quick plan. It is neither conservative nor radical. It is sensible and cautious. Reactionary? No! Impulsive? No! Progressive and constructive? Yes! It has the happy faculty of considering things as they are and sense to act accordingly. Its policy is to help to mold sentiment along constructive, correct lines. It realizes that the great constructive trade-union movement is seriously handicapped by a systematic poisonous propaganda. It ever strives to meet with facts this unrighteous propaganda and to offset its influence.

It will continue to be instrumental and influential in placing proper industrial laws on the statute books of the country and state government, and in defeating bills that would rob labor of its natural heritage and be detrimental to its rights, freedom, and justice.

It seeks to make the best terms and conditions that it can for labor. It fully realizes material and conditions in the industrial world. It seeks to do the best it can with this material and conditions. It is not content with denunciation and the adoption of high-sounding resolutions. It buckles down to the actual present conditions, resolutely facing them and determining to get, inch by inch and day by day, better conditions for all wage-earners.

It believes in our institutions. It seeks to destroy tyranny, oppression and things that militate harshly and unwarrantedly and without reason or justice against the best interests of the toiling masses.

It will be successful and grow in usefulness, strength, and influence in proportion to the assistance and co-operation given it by all wage-earners and all constructive trade unions, local, state, national, and international.

The recent sweeping injunction granted the Attorney General of the United States against the striking railroad workers is seemingly by Injunction. the last word in judicial oligarchy. It denies to the strikers, and in fact to anyone else, even the right of free speech. Coming as it does from the Government itself, it shows plainly and conclusively the attitude of the present administration as regards organized labor.

The action of the Attorney General in this case is quite different from the words of President Harding, who said in a public speech on May 24, 1921: "In our effort at establishing industrial justice we must see that the wage-earner is placed in an economically sound position. His lowest wage must be enough for comfort, enough to make his house a home, enough to insure that the struggle for existence shall not crowd out the things truly worth living for. There must be provision for education, for recreation, and a margin for savings. There must be such freedom of action as will insure full play to the individual's abilities."

The above declaration is very fine indeed, but today with an opportunity to make good on his most humane words, we find the President in accord with an injunction, sought not by the railroads directly but by an official of our own government, which is intended to enforce a wage award of another governmental bureau that reduces the pay of thousands of men to less than $600 per year. Just how Mr. Harding expects these men to support their families in comfort and provide for "education, recreation and a margin for savings" on such a miserable wage is beyond reason.

The facts are that the Government is in wrong from the start of the present wage controversy. The Railroad Labor Board, cunningly designed for the purpose of deflating the wages of railroad workers, went blithely about the dirty work at the behest of the railroad owners, knowing full well that such an act would precipitate a strike. Now we find government officials who declare that this strike is against the Government. Such allegations are without any foundation in fact and are only intended as a whip of intimidation. The Transportation Act specifically denies to the Labor Board the power to ENFORCE its wage decisions against the will of the workers. It can only recommend wage scales. The anti-strike amendment as offered to the original bill was overwhelmingly defeated in both houses of Congress, yet we find the forces of government and governmental agencies lined up behind a wage decision with the intention of enforcing it if possible. The decision, if enforced, means involuntary servitude for thousands of workers, a principle foreign to every concept of American liberty.

One thing is sure, this injunction, or any others that may follow it, even be they backed up by military authority, will not repair a single locomotive. Neither will the strikebreakers whom the railroads are willingly paying $11.28 per day do very much in the line of repair work from the fact that strikebreakers are not mechanics.

The military and judicial forces of the federal and state governments are now at the disposal of the railroad executives under the pretense of protecting the public's rights. Strange that the only time the public's rights are ever considered is in a time of industrial dispute. When have the public's rights been considered in any railroad controversy before? Was there any protection granted these same railroad workers, who are surely a part of the public, when the railroad companies willfully violated more than one hundred rules laid down by the same Railroad Labor Board that now is protected in its decree against the men, by government injunction?

This public's right stuff is 99 per cent bunk when injected into industrial disputes and never thought of at any other time.

Besides, the public has no moral right to insist that workers in any industry furnish service at less than a living wage. The public is willing and does pay enough to the railroads for the service they render to allow them to pay their workers decent wages. If the rates paid by the public to the railroads for service are dissipated by willful waste, mismanagement and watered stock the public has the right to know it and they will eventually find a way to correct the evils through some other means than taking it out of the pay envelopes of the workers.

President Perkins delivered the following address to the members of the Executive Board of the Cigar Makers' International Union at its recent meeting:

The manufacture and consumption of cigars are steadily falling off despite the fact that the population is increasing. Twenty years ago or in 1902 there were 6,103,567,265 cigars manufactured. At that time the population was 75,994,575. For the year ending June 30, 1921, we manufactured 6,758,756,368 cigars, at which time the population was 105,710,620. While there was practically no increase in the number of cigars manufactured, yet the increase in population was 29,716,045. During the same period of twenty years the manufacture of tax paid cigarettes increased from 2,642,961,944 in 1902 to 50,909,001,142 in 1921, an increase of 48,266,039,198.

A steady decrease in the manufacture of cigars has occurred in the last ten years. The total production of 1912 was 7,256,390,303, while for the year of 1921 it was 6,758,756,368. At the same time a steady increase is noted in the number of tax paid cigarettes. The increase in the manufacture and consumption of tax paid cigarettes in the last ten years amounts to nearly 40,000,000,000.

The Internal Revenue Collector's report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, shows an increase of $15,500,000 over the amount collected by the government last year from tobacco and its manufactures. The increase was almost wholly from tax on cigarettes, which tax totaled $150,128,000. The tax on chewing and smoking tobacco totaled $66,342,000, and the tax on cigars was $44,184,000, a decrease of $6,893,000 from the tax paid on cigars in 1921. This is further evidence of the falling off in the production and consumption of cigars, and the tremendous increase in the consumption of tax paid cigarettes.

Heavy import tariffs duties on raw material suitable for cigar purposes and excessive internal revenue taxes on the manufactured cigar are an important factor in the steady decline in the number of cigars manufactured and consumed.

Last but not least is the fact that big combinations and trusts in the cigar industry, through their unlimited resources control much of the tobacco suitable for cigar purposes raised in this country. In some instances they directly or indirectly own considerable of the land upon which this tobacco is raised.

The number of women employed in the cigar industry is steadily increasing. The system of bunch breaking and rolling in the manufacture of cigars is steadily increasing. The number of shops, especially small shops, is steadily decreasing. There has been a steady, gradual crystallization of the non-union factories in the cigar industry. Millions of dollars are available for use in these combinations. These trusts maintain a chain of factories in all centers, and especially where woman labor is available and cheap. Many of this chain of factories are located in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Virginia, Porto Rico, Tampa, and Key West. To maintain a steady outlet for their product these combinations have established a system of chain stores which exist everywhere, and extend to the limits of the length and breadth of our country. Their stores can be found upon all busy corners, in drug stores, hotels and restaurants, and in all other favorable places for the ready sale of cigars, cigarettes, and tobacco. If they can not rent a good cigar corner store, occupied by an independent dealer, they buy the whole building, and thus accomplish the effacement of the independent dealer, and the establishment of one of their stores in its place.

Organization is the paramount issue with us at this time. To accelerate organization of the workers in the industry is the pressing concern of all.

The task of organizing the cigar industry is more or less difficult for the reasons stated. I have unlimited faith in the ability of the International Union to accomplish this task. It can be done. It will be done.

Changed conditions in the manufacture and marketing of cigars calls for some change in our laws. This however, is a matter the next convention should consider and solve. Our problem at this conference is to consider and suggest methods and means to facilitate organization and to appeal to the unorganized to join us in our efforts to improve their working and living conditions.

Elsewhere in this issue we publish a statement of wages paid to railway workers in China. It will be seen by the statement published that a switchman, who is engaged in a difficult and dangerous occupation, gets 10.50 yen per month, which is about $5.25 in our money.

There is positively no other reason why wages are so frightfully low in China than that there is practically no trade union movement there.

China has its periods of unemployment and industrial and commercial stagnation, and the great mass all the time live in abject poverty. The cheap-John manufacturers in our own country are continually asserting that that which they call high wages is the cause of the depressions and a lack of more business and prosperity in our own country, and this claim is parrot-like broadcasted by the daily press, and is accepted as gospel by the unthinking general public. If low wages and long hours brought good times and prosperity China would be the most prosperous and greatest business country in the world. As a matter of fact there is no great business and no prosperity in China except for a favored few.

If the public want the kind of prosperity that low wages and long hours have brought to the Chinaman let them back up the would-be trade union busters. If they do this they will find out to their everlasting sorrow that they will have to go into the ranks of the poverty-stricken masses.

Good wages are a boon to the workman and to the merchant and to all others of the so-called general public. The more wages the workers receive the more they have to spend. It is what the workers receive in wages and spend that keeps the wheels of industry turning. The better off the worker is in the matter of wages the better off Mr. Businessman is in the matter of sales and profits. If the switchman and others here were receiving only 10.50 yen or $5.25 a month, Mr. Businessman would soon discover a tremendous falling off in his business. Surely the workers need no better illustration of this indisputable fact. All wholesalers, retailers, doctors, lawyers, and others ought to have sense enough to realize these economic facts and to encourage instead of discourage the organized labor movement.

Trades unionism, born of necessity and nursed on oppression, has a most valuable ally in the co-operative movement. In fact, they are closely related, coming as they do from the same common parentage, a industrial system that keeps the average wage worker poor when employed and allows him to starve when unemployed. Both movements strive to attain the same end, a decent standard of living for the producing masses.

A well-known labor leader said not long ago: "If the American labor movement had spent half the time in expanding the spending power of the workers by co-operation that it has in battling for an increased wage, it would be better off today.

The farmer, too, should be a part of the co-operative movement. He is also vitally interested and at the same time is plucked by the same profiteer that so carefully cleans the pocket of the worker. The American farmer has been wrongfully led to believe that the industrial worker was his enemy and that they had nothing whatsoever in common. He even blamed the industrial worker for raising wages and really felt that organized labor received more than its share of the national wealth.

Well-informed farmers now know that a curtailed wage to the industrial worker means a deflated buying power and that the agricultural worker and the industrial worker are thus stung by the same hornet. He sees, too, that through a co-operative plan of production and distribution the middle man who has hooked both the producer and the consumer in the past will be eliminated to the betterment of all concerned.

Kansas is burdened with a Governor who thinks he has a panacea for all the ills our present industrial system is heir to. He calls it an The Kansas Industrial Court. Industrial Court, and its intention is to prevent two or more workers from quitting their jobs at the same time, thus forcing industrial slavery on labor whether or no.

It was intended that this court be made up of an equal number of employers, employees and the public. Right here is where the impossibility of providing such a court with any degree of fairness comes in. The public is, after all, the whole people, and they are practically all either workers or employers in some degree. If not, of what good are they to this industrial court or to anything else under the sun? So we see that the third party to the triangle, the public, is, after all, composed of either workers or employers as are the first and second parts of the tribunal. Thus an unequal advantage is given to one side or the other before they even organize for business.

Results so far show that it is just another case of wasted effort on the part of the Governor. It has not worked and it will not work. In fact, the industrial problem is not going to be solved through any legal compulsion that is intended to force workers to give service whether satisfied or not.

We have always had with us and probably always shall have the self-constituted radical leader with an ever-ready panacea warranted to cure all ills besetting wage-earning workers. He never knew exactly what he wanted, and, moreover, not being well grounded, never did have a worthwhile plan. His chief stock in trade was finding fault with and belittling existing labor organizations. He organized the I. W. W. He organized the One Big Union. And he has never been satisfied with either.

He now says "Stay in the American Federation of Labor unions, national and international, and bore from within." Boring from within means to capture the well-regulated, constructive trade unions, and turn them into the communist, soviet, a la Russia style of unions.

They never did succeed, and they never will, but they will bear watching. They cannot destroy the real trade unions, but they can hamper, cripple, and injure.

At a recent meeting of the American Bar Association held in San Francisco some of the speakers were seemingly much disturbed over what they were pleased to call "Anti-Americanism." They argued that to offset "a growing prejudice against the Courts and the Constitution" a bureau of some kind should be established.

Such deductions are in this particular case merely the opinions of lawyers, who as a whole are prone to think and to argue that our courts and our judiciary are the sources of all authority, and they are without foundation in fact and are far from the general concept of our well defined ideas of Americanism.

The Constitution never intended that the courts and the judiciary be more than servants of the people. The only prejudice against them, if prejudice there may be, is because of their usurpation of power and authority and their growing disposition to be master rather than servant.

Our government, predicated on the Constitution, demands equal rights, equal opportunities and even-handed justice. When the people see, as they so often do, to the discredit of some of our courts and some of our judges, that these inalienable rights are jeopardized in the interests of property, then the people rightfully protest.

Their protest is not directed against the government, it is not anti-American, but, on the other hand, it is in keeping with the ideals of real Americanism, and it will grow and become more manifest to an extent that the courts and the judiciary will be finally relegated to their proper sphere.

Unorganized workers are always advised by their employers to pay no dues to a labor union. They are furthermore told that money paid to an organization as dues or assessments is simply that much money thrown away, that the worker is under just so much less expense by keeping out of the organization of his particular craft, and that the money he would necessarily spend for dues he could as well keep in his own pocket.

The facts are that the most expensive luxury the non-union worker has is that of NOT belonging to the labor union. These deluded workers are paying dues, and excessively high dues, too. Instead of paying them to the union from which they would get much in return they are paying them to their employer and get nothing for themselves—no higher wages, no shorter hours and no better working conditions to say nothing at all of the many other beneficial adjuncts that go with a paid up membership card in a bona fide trades union. The high cost of dues paid by the unorganized is staggering. Such dues compel the worker to submit to a life of untold misery and at the end of his miserable existence to welcome a pauper's grave that he may finally escape his ever increasing burdens.

The so-called general public is slowly awakening to the fact that there is a great labor question with us. Worth While and that it must be settled. There have been more debates in the colleges and high schools during this year on industrial subjects than ever before. This is a good sign.

Such a debate was held between the Washington, D. C., College of Law and the National University Law School in Washington on April 15, 1922. The subject was, "Resolved, that Congress should pass laws to regulate the wages and working conditions on railroads and in coal mines as essential industries and prohibit organized strikes of their employees (constitutionality assumed)." In this debate the negative was victorious. This question is so far-reaching we print herewith the following extracts of the winning team's argument:

The Argument.

"Mr. Chairman, Honorable Judges, Ladies and Gentlemen: Mark Twain said many years ago, 'Don't hang the monkey wrench on the safety valve,' and we in support of the negative of the question under discussion tonight maintain that Congress should not hang its legislative monkey wrench on the social and economic safety valve of this country. Capitalists tell us that if they pay a workman $10 a day he will ask for $12, and the laboring men say that if a capitalist is making 25 per cent profit and has a million dollars more than he will ever need, he will try to squeeze out 50 per cent profit and make ten millions more. And they are both right. Man is the only animal that seeks to live differently tomorrow from what he did yesterday, the only animal that has ambition, that is, filled with divine discontent. When he ceases to have that discontent, honorable judges, civilization will decay; and while he continues to have it there must be great forces of pent-up human passions seeking an outlet, and the strike is the social safety valve upon which our opponents seek to hang the legislative monkey wrench. Stated in parliamentary language the question is: . . .

First Point.

First of all, honorable judges, such legislation is a step backward, and we believe in progression rather than retrogression. From the time of Moses to the Declaration of Independence, strikes were always prohibited; they were called criminal conspiracies and were punishable by imprisonment. And our forefathers discarded anti-strike laws along with the divine right of kings, for two good reasons: First, because they absolutely failed to prevent strikes, and second, because when two workmen had agreed together to leave one job and seek a better one the freedom-loving citizens of the early days of this Republic would not permit them to be imprisoned for that act. If we were to adopt such legislation, honorable judges, we would be going back to the days of human slavery, to the time when accused persons were tortured in court to make them confess, to the days of the Salem witchcraft.

Second Point.

We are opposed to the enactment of such legislation for the second reason that it deprives society of the weapon with which it has won its most important advances. Back in what the novelists call the merry days of England the coal cars in the mines were hauled by women on their hands and knees from twelve to fourteen hours a day. And in the early days of the mining industry in Pennsylvania, coal was sorted and the slate picked out by hand, by the bare hands of boys whose fingers were worn through until the blood dripped from them. At the manufacturers' census of 1880 the ten-hour day was almost universal. Only 14 per cent of the wage earners worked less, and 17 per cent worked twelve hours or more. Have you ever heard of an industry which reduced the hours of labor and raised wages until a strike or a threatened strike compelled such action? None of the so-called forces of good, neither the church or any other, has ever attacked the ramparts of greed until the striking laborers themselves had blazed the trail through the wilderness of indifference. And what a victory they have won. At the 1920 census only 3 per cent worked more than ten hours and 88 per cent worked less than ten hours, mostly eight or less. And what of capital? Has the victory been one of labor against capital? Go to China, honorable judges, where labor may be hired for a few cents a day, where there are no labor unions and no strikes, and there you will find that capital is as unprofitable as labor. Opportunities for investors were never better than they are in the United States today where labor is best paid, where working conditions are the most attractive, there you will find that capital is most prosperous and successful. We are opposed, honorable judges, to taking from society the only weapon with which it has actually won a substantial victory.

Third Point.

And the third reason for our opposition to the proposed measure is that strikes have been settled and can continue to be settled without it. Our opponents would make you believe that we are about to be overwhelmed with strikes. One would think that they are some new evil like the flu resulting from the present disturbed conditions of the world. News-gathering agencies treat strikes as they do everything else. If a strike occurs and is settled without disorder the papers say nothing about it, but if the employer ejects a striking workman from one of his houses or the workman throws a brick at the employer, then there is a headline. The whole Republic begins to tremble as though some mighty Sampson were tugging at its pillars. The plain truth is, according to the government records, from the year 1881 to 1900, there were 22,793 strikes in this country, and you cannot find a single instance in the records where an industry has disappeared or even ceased to develop because of a strike. Every one of those 22,793 strikes was settled. We defy our opponents to name off-hand 25 strikes that occurred during the year 1920. We can't recall a half a dozen. We weren't inconvenienced enough to remember any of them. Yet the Labor Department says there were 3,109 strikes in this country during that year. Honorable judges, there isn't a law on the statute books from the prohibition law up to those against murder that is as successful in preventing the crime against which it is directed as the present method of preventing economic explosions, the safety valve we call the strike.

Fourth Point.

Our fourth reason for taking the negative of this question is that the nation is better prepared to cope with a strike either on railroads or in coal mines than it has ever been before. Hydroelectric stations distributing light, heat and power; pipe lines distributing petroleum from the wells to the refineries; electric railways carrying freight and passengers between cities; and state and national highways alive with giant motor trucks carrying produce direct to the consumer, all these enable us to bridge a gap in coal production or rail transportation in a way that was undreamed of at the time of the last great railroad strike, in 1894. At that time we had practically no interurban electric lines, while today we have approximately 20,000 miles in operation. The motor truck was still a creature of the imagination of the inventor, but in 1920, according to the Bureau of Public Roads, there were 841,690 commercial motor vehicles registered for use, and a rapidly increasing mileage of improved highways. In 1890, the total electric power used in manufacturing in the United States was much less than the amount used in the District of Columbia alone today, while at the 1920 census approximately one-third of all power in manufacturing was electric power. Honorable judges, there is less need for this kind of legislation in these two industries than there ever has been before, for we are a hundred times better prepared to meet a strike in either of them.

Conclusion.

Honorable judges, for the purpose of this debate we have conceded that laws regulating wages and working conditions and prohibiting strikes are constitutional, that is, we have agreed not to urge against such measures that the courts would not enforce them. We have assumed that they are within the letter of the constitution. But even for the purpose of debate we cannot concede to be true that which we know to be false and we must assert that although within the letter such laws stifle the very breath of liberty which our fathers intended to pervade that sacred document. If this legislation be extended to other industries we shall have reversed the very fundamental principles of justice for which our fathers fought and died. Shall we hold before men the straight-jacket of an enforced labor contract while cruel necessity with her lash of hunger drives them into it, and still call them free men? "Liberty," says the Supreme Court of the United States, means not only the right of the citizen to be free from the mere physical restraint of his person, but to be free in the engagement of all his faculties; to be free to use them in all lawful ways; to live and to work where he will; to earn his livelihood by any lawful calling; to pursue any livelihood or avocation, and for that purpose to enter into all contracts which may be proper, necessary and essential to his carrying out to a successful conclusion the purposes above mentioned." Labor, says the courts, is the primary foundation of all wealth, and the liberty to enter into contracts by which labor shall be employed in such way as the laborers shall deem most beneficial, and of others to employ such labor, is necessarily included.

The Federal Department of Commerce has issued a statement concerning wages of Chinese railway employees, which we quote in full.

Wages of Chinese Railway Employees.

(Compiled by Trade Commissioner Frank Rhea, Peking, China, May 31, 1922.)

The following figures represent the average wages of various classes of employees of the Chinese Government Railways. Amounts stated are in Chinese Yuan dollars, which are frequently estimated as $2 Yuan equal to $1 gold, although the average from 1900 to 1915 was in excess of $2.25 Yuan to the United States gold dollar.

There is no worthwhile trade union movement in China. The workers of China have no formidable trade union movement to protect their rights, interests and wages. The circular speaks for itself.

WAGE "BULL" ETINS!

The National Industrial Conference Board is an organization of employers. It publishes a bulletin which presents things that employers value.

Latest bulletin says that on January 1, 1922, average hourly wages in 26 industries were 98 per cent above July, 1914, wages, while average weekly earnings were 80 per cent higher.

But don't let this frighten anyone; don't let it make anyone feel rich.

The same bulletin figures it out that in terms of purchasing power wages on January 1, 1922, were only 11 per cent higher than in July, 1914.

There's a difference between the face value of money and the real value of money in its purchasing power.

Now to do some figuring out on our own hook. The difference between the 11 per cent added purchasing power and the 98 per cent face value, which is 87, was the percentage that went into the pockets of profiteers, speculators, middlemen and the whole crew of pirates that were behind the game of inflation and deflation robbery.

Of course these figures were made by men hired by employers. We can't gamble on their accuracy, but, taking them at their face value, they show that somebody got away with murder.

TRADE NOTES.

York County, Pa., produces one-eighth of all the cigars manufactured in the United States. The bulk of these are made in the vicinity of Red Lion, Windsor, Dallastown, York and Hanover. During the last four years the government has collected for stamps the sum of $16,201,597.60.

Cigars manufactured and cigar stamp sales in Tampa, Fla., show enormous quantity and steady increase. The fiscal year for the internal revenue office ended June 30th, and the figures for the first 12 months reveal the fact that for the entire year the manufacture of cigars in Tampa averaged considerably more than 1,000,000 cigars per working day. The stamp sales for the year totaled $2,871,535.32, representing the manufacture of 341,410,370 cigars. This is about 33 per cent gain over the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921. The total stamp sales for June, 1922, were $278,356.78, as compared with $182,538.05 in June last year.—Tampa Trulisms.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics has just announced employment figures for June.

The Bureau received replies from 54 cigar manufacturers who gave their employment in June of last year as 16,741, decreasing in June of this year to 15,395, or a decrease of 8 per cent. The pay rolls in these factories also decreased from $321,110 in June of last year to $287,367 in June of this year, which is a decrease of 10.5 per cent.

Comparative figures were also compiled by the Bureau for May and June of this year. Replies were received from 56 cigar manufacturers giving their employment for May as 15,242, increasing slightly in June to 15,769, or an increase of 1.1 per cent. The pay rolls in these establishments increased from $277,362 in May to $292,508 in June, an increase of 5.5 per cent.

As shown by Internal Revenue Reports the total number of cigars manufactured during the fiscal year 1922, by classification, as compared with the previous year, follow:

Class A...	1,773,588,083	2,285,329,690	*511,741,607
Class B...	2,131,201,227	1,660,769,580	470,431,647
Class C...	3,033,119,216	2,535,740,254	507,378,962
Class D...	165,135,953	116,813,008	48,322,945
Class E...	45,818,759	32,530,808	12,287,951

Totals .. 7,148,863,238 6,621,173,340 527,689,898
We find that the only class of cigars showing an increase was the 5c cigar. All other classifications show a decrease totaling 527,689,898. The loss and gain of the different classifications by percentage follows: Class A, gain, 29%; Class B, loss, 22%; Class C, loss, 17%; class D, loss, 29%, and Class E, loss, 29%.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1922, there were 50,041,805,753 small cigarettes manufactured as compared with 45,015,845,373 manufactured during the previous year, an increase of 5,025,960,380.

Total revenue collections for cigars amounted to $45,152,022.05, as compared with $52,090,073.31 for 1921, a loss of $6,838,041.26.

The following comparative data of tax paid products as indicated by the monthly sale of revenue stamps shows the number of cigars by classification manufactured during the month of July as compared with the corresponding month of a year ago:

Cigars—	July, 1921.	July, 1922.

	July, 1922.	June, 1922.

Class E	1,939,414	2,702,102
Total	585,874,114	615,253,023

A total loss of 29,378,909 is shown for the month which is distributed over all classifications except Class A, 5c cigars, which show a gain of 2,946,197.

Report of Organizers.

Montreal, Can., Sept. 8, 1922.

Hamilton—Attended regular meeting of Union 55; gave a talk on local and general situation; urged the necessity of label agitation; assured members I would give every possible assistance if campaign was started. Our locals must realize the seriousness of the Canadian situation and the effect it has on our members. The long strikes and the general industrial depression and the efforts the manufacturers are making to disrupt our movement. We should forget the past, start anew, and try to place our members in all shops.

From Aug. 10th date at Montreal. I consulted with officers of Union 58 on local situation and am giving what assistance I can in label agitation and organization work. Attended regular and all executive meetings of Union 58; visited cigar stores, distributed advertising matter, visited various cigar factories; attended labor union meetings, Trades Council, Machinists, Allied Printing Trades, Carpenters, Electrical Workers, also addressed convention of Trade Congress in the interest of our cause. Distributed advertising matter to delegates. I paraded with Union 58 in Labor day demonstration when 80 local unions turned out with 38,000 trade unionists in line.

Business in cigar trade has been quiet. Cigar factories during July and August were working with less than half their staff. Improvement is shown this month and members are being placed back at work. It is expected that members of Union 58 will get busy and assist in organizing the cigarmakers of Montreal.

Yours fraternally,

JAS. A. SULLIVAN,

Int. Organizer.

Report of Organizers.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 3, 1922.

Trade in the cigar industry is just fair to medium in Baltimore city since the decline in business after the rush season during the war period, which settled down to a state of quiet inactivity in most all lines of commercial and manufacturing pursuits over a year ago, is now beginning to show some signs of improvement in our favor for the product of union label goods. While the employers of organized labor in the trade are not working forces up to the high level in numbers as they did during normal business activities here, still there are none of our members out of work at the present time, which shows a favorable inclination for the future of home industry.

There are many members of Union No. 1, "tried and true," staunch in the faith of trades unionism and loyal to its principles; firm in their convictions that the cause is just and right and organization must prevail in the end, and that the day will arrive when all of the workers of the craft through mutual understanding may become organized and affiliated with the International Union. But "faith" without work is not sufficient; there must be agitation galore, unceasingly carried on in the ranks of the toilers to achieve that goal, so that the unorganized may be inspired with self conscientiousness for economic betterment, and a desire to join forces through their productive power with hand and brain, to strengthen the trades union movement, and aggressively combat the oppressors of labor who are insidiously trying to beat down the American standards of a living wage.

Members here in recent years have been dilatory in agitation work, and in spreading propaganda for the "Union Label," the result of such inactivity is plainly visible from the quantity of scab cigars that flood this market, which should be replaced by union made goods, displaying the "Label" on every box. I attended the meeting of the local union and counseled with the members and officers, and advised with them for renewed stimulation of purpose, the greater energy for organization and label agitation in the future. Addressed the delegates of the Central Labor Council, on the subject of organization and the label, spoke at meeting of the Union Label League, and also at a very large meeting of the Federated Crafts of Railway Employees, and advocated more consistent demand for union made products. The Labor Day celebration and picnic here was a gratifying success, able speakers addressed the crowds on vital topics of the day.

Fraternally,

R. S. SEXTON,
General Organizer.

The union label shop card and working button are the hall marks of industrial freedom and democracy. Given the support which is justly theirs, there is no more potent weapon that can be utilized to maintain and improve the social and economic standards of the workers.

If you neglect to demand the union label on your purchases and thus fail to employ union labor, you need not be surprised if your own employer notices your negligence and concludes that the labor movement is very largely bluff and not much to be feared. If union men will not pay some attention to helping one another in a matter so simple as demanding the union label on their purchases they have no just right to blame the employer for taking advantage of them when the opportunity is available to him. Every demand for the union label increases the amount of work for trade unionists and serves to convince employers that it is desirable to employ union labor in order to be able to dispose of their products to the millions who belong to unions. Start in now to help out in bringing about this happy condition of affairs. It will cost you nothing in money and but little in inconvenience.—Labor Clarion.

Director General Jones of the United States Employment Service yesterday declared that, contrary to the belief of "some pessimists" that the country had been consigned to the dogs, the nation today is making sure progress toward prosperity. "Unemployment has been conquered," he added, "and industry is well on the road to normalcy."—New York Times, Sept. 13.

Five mills in the Blakstone Valley yesterday announced a return to the wage scale of January 1st. This action follows the announcement of a number of manufacturers in New Hampshire and Maine which in turn have followed the lead of mills in Lawrence, Mass., rescinding the 20% wage cut of last January.—Providence Journal, Sept. 12.

Textile mills in Maine are posting notices restoring the 20% wage reduction made last winter.—New York Times, Sept. 10.

Secretary of Labor Davis told his Labor day audience at Mooseheart, Ill., that high wage levels increased the nation's consuming power and bring prosperity. Mr. Davis pleaded not only for a wage level that would give skilled craftsmen adequate returns, but for a saving wage for the man who works with his hands.—Washington Herald, Sept. 5.

Condemning the "Wall street incubus on industry," President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor declares that the "financiers'" control of the industry results in profit being placed first and service second. President Gompers insists that the essential thing is to "reverse the importance of profit and service." Service must be made paramount and profit must follow as a result of service.—Washington Star, Sept. 10.

The New York Dairymen's League Co-operative Association has purchased the wholesale milk business and property of the Levi Dairy Company, including its large bottling and delivery plant in New York City and 22 company milk plants. The league states that its action is a step toward "bringing the farmer and the city consumer closer together."—New York Times, Aug. 31.

The New York Public Service Commission has issued an order reducing gas rates in New York City 10 cents per 1,000 cubic feet—$1.25 to $1.15. The order will save gas consumers $5,500,000 a year.—New York American, Sept. 1.

"Fight to the Finish."

By Chester M. Wright.

Railroads are yelping for a "fight to the finish."

Anthracite mine owners are yelping for a "fight to the finish."

All over the country Big Business has been yelling for a "fight to the finish."

Ever since the Armistice Wall street has been poking its straw bosses in the ribs, egging them on to stage a "fight to the finish."

What is this "fight to the finish" for which High Pirateering Finance is so eager?

It is a fight to crush out of existence all unions of workers, all organizations that act as a bar to complete autocracy in workshops.

High Finance profiteered throughout the war and it sought to beat its own records after the war ended.

Through some of its political tools it made it easy to start a tremendous avalanche of depression—a great "deflation."

This period of depression and deflation was used for profiteering purposes.

When millions of workers were out of employment little bands of money robbers were profiteering to the limit.

The depression was hand made. The misery of millions was brought about for the great gain of a few.

But the labor unions didn't go to pieces during the depression. They stood solid. Some couldn't pay dues, but there were just as many union men as ever. There are more today.

• • •

Employers and particularly high financiers saw that mere depression—mere "hard times"—wasn't enough.

Teeth were bared. Sleuth hounds were called in. Lies were circulated. Orders were issued.

The miners were forced to strike. The railroad men were forced to strike. The textile workers were forced to strike. The butcher workmen, the granite cutters, the quarry workers, the printers—all these were forced to strike.

Close to two million workers have been on the battle line of freedom during the past twelve months!

High financiers thought the unions would go to pieces. They thought wages would be forced down. They thought profiteering would be safeguarded and prolonged.

Unions stand for fair wages, for good work, for honest production, for decent conditions and proper hours. These things interfere with complete domination of industry by employers. These things interfere with profiteering.

The unions stood fast. When they were forced to strike they struck, solidly, quietly, with great determination. The employers were amazed. There are secrets about what the employers thought when they started this business. They thought a lot of things that were wrong. They totally misjudged the workers.

But they resolved that what wouldn't come easy must come some other way.

So this "fight to the finish" slogan.

• • •

Now, a "fight to the finish" means that employers are determined to smash the unions at any price.

"Any price" may be a big price, but profiteers think they can afford a big price.

Injunctions, thugs, spies, jailbirds, agents, provocateurs—all these have been used, and they cost a lot of money.

Wall street treasuries are full of money for the purpose of smashing unions.

Wall street would gladly pay enormously to regain for industry an absolutely autocratic control. Wall street wants rulership—absolutism.

But in the midst of it all the unions stand solid. The ranks show no break. Workers simply decline to work under conditions and terms that are not satisfactory. They refuse to accept dictatorship. They will not be made serfs.

Employers are puzzled. Their minds, in such matters, are simple. High financial powers that are issuing the orders, understand financial deals, they know about markets, they know about margins and profits, but they do not know about men and women. They do not know about freedom and justice and the human instinct for participation by the individual in the shaping of conditions surrounding his own existence. Financiers are profoundly ignorant about these things.

"Smash things" is all financiers know about in the matter of industrial relations. "Rule" and "dominate" and "show 'em where to get off"—these terms express the mental processes of Wall street in dealing with workers.

"Fight to a finish" means that financiers want to take the hope out of life for workers, they want to make out of laborers mere burden bearers who will deliver labor power and ask no questions.

• • •

Well, that don't go! Unions are organizations of human beings, associations of human beings, fitting perfectly into modern industrial life, where great masses toil together in single industries.

The Wall street "fight to a finish" will be to a finish—a finish for the autocratic idea, a finish for unlimited piracy and profiteering, a finish for the slave and master idea, long since worn out.

The great armies of labor today are fighting to hold progress already gained. They will hold it and gain more.

They will establish firmly the right of workers to speak with a determining voice in the fixing of terms and conditions upon which service is to be given in industry. And then they will go on to the general improvement of all industry, looking toward efficiency, toward high production, toward honest costs, toward the final establishment of the concept that service is the prime purpose of industry and that profit must follow service.

For Wall street to win would be a calamity for all civilization.

Wall street must not win—and will not win! Democracy must win and will win—democracy in industry, the service field of modern life.

Take This to Heart.

The past few years have been very profitable years to the average worker. While the high cost of living demanded a large part of his salary, yet the steady employment that he enjoyed brought about a condition of prosperity that has made him indifferent as to his industrial well being.

The members of organized labor that have entered the ranks during the above mentioned period do not realize the full importance of a labor organization for their protection. They, with the older members, have enjoyed such a protracted stretch of steady and well paid employment that they do not realize what trouble and unemployment means.

The lack of enthusiasm for their organization, failing to give credit to the origin for their bounty, only considering the present and taking it for granted that such conditions will continue, prevails in the ranks of many of the local unions of today.

This position upon the part of a great many members of labor unions is expressed in the lack of interest that is displayed in attending the meetings of their unions and doing the committee work for which they were appointed.

They willingly accept their weekly pay envelope as a matter of fact, and do not stop to think or consider that such conditions can be changed and that to their disadvantage. The worth of a labor union for their protection and defense is hardly realized, if not forgotten.

To those who enjoy the benefits that they are receiving from their membership in a labor union, let us point out a few facts of the sacrifices made on the part of the early disciples of the organized labor movement.

The writer is a member of the Typographical Union for the past 30 years. At the time that he joined the union the wages were $3.33 for a 10-hour day. Today the wages run to $8 for a 7-hour day.

During the term of our membership we have paid dues as high as 10 per cent of our earnings. Is it possible to believe that anyone who has invested his dues in an organization that has advanced his interests in such a proportion would willingly sacrifice it? That is why the members of the Typographical Union stick to their union.

But this is not enough to keep the organization from decay. The active business of the organization must be faithfully transacted and the welfare and good of the membership must be defended. This cannot be done unless the members themselves take an active part in the business of their organization.

In every organization there are entirely too many critics of the workings of the others. There are not enough workers. You cannot detail the work of your union to two or three men. This prevents in making the union's business your business and causes a lack of interest in advancing the labor movement.

Every member of a labor union should take communion with himself and in deep thought weigh what the organization has done and what it stands for. If he does this he will awaken to the need of his assistance in self defense and enlist him in the ranks of the workers of his local union.

The future is fraught with many dangers for the organized workers. It is dependent upon himself to act for his own self preservation. He must come to the defense of his organization and put himself in line with the active workers of his organization.—Exchange.

Strive as they may to avoid responsibility for the prevailing depression in the industrial world the financial interests cannot shift the guilt to the shoulders of labor. They know, and the people quite generally know, that commerce and industry are paralyzed by the greed and incompetency of the manipulators of finance. They want to continue their abnormal profits on the one hand and on the other lack the ability to work out a scheme of things that will enable impoverished Europe to purchase our surplus products. Their conduct is governed by greed, fear and incompetency and they must accept the responsibility.—Labor Clarion.

Law of the Jungle Cannot Apply to Wages.

The theory that wages must be based on competition between workers is a revival of the jungle code.

Under this system human relations in industry is impossible.

There can be no living standard when the tiger's law prevails.

Then wages are regulated by the number of out-of-works, with no arbitration, conciliation or mutuality—the weak are ground to bits in the struggle to exist.

Logically, the competition advocate finds himself in a position he dare not acknowledge—a surplus of labor competing for every job, with living standards falling to Chinese levels.

The competition advocate dare not be logical. He lacks the courage to follow his theory to its end.

He cannot say that "the interests of capital (capitalists) and labor are identical." He dare not claim that the law of tooth and claw recognizes aught but power.

There is neither ethics or morality in the competition theory.

Capitalists have abandoned competition between themselves, but maintain the fiction in the case of workers while they talk about the "immutable law of supply and demand"—and close their factories to maintain prices.

This banquet and editorial space filling stuff is supposed to awe workers who see organizations of capitalists smash this "Natural" law.

The theory that competition must regulate wages is contrary to humane instincts. It means charity organizations and the long train of evils associated with pauperism.

This theory is sustained by every force that cheap labor advocates can muster to its defense, for this age is no exception to the rule that every age has its defenders of exploitation and greed.

Trade unionism is the answer to jungaleers who would have workers tearing themselves, their families and their homes to pieces in competition for jobs.

Trade unionism supplants the doctrine of might and necessity with reason and good will among men.

Agitate! Educate! Organize!

A. F. of L. News Letter.

Huge Total of Trade Union Insurance.

Figures just compiled by the American Federation of Labor and the Canadian Department of Labor reveal some interesting comparisons. Of the 98 international trade unions operating in Canada, 75 have insurance benefits. These unions in 1921 made total disbursements of $24,089,836, an increase of $4,626,226 over the amount expended in 1920. In addition, four non-international organizations paid $20,775 more, while local and branch unions disbursed $1,503,555.

The national unions affiliated with the A. F. of L. paid out last year a total of $4,134,816.81, according to the report of Secretary Frank Morrison. This amount was paid directly by the national and international bodies. No report is obtainable regarding benefits paid by local unions, which are mostly for sickness and unemployment, and aggregate a much larger sum than the life insurance payments of the international unions.

That Surplus of Miners.

Adam Coidigger, writing in the Illinois Miner, shows how the surplus of coal miners which is now being talked of so much in the public press can be eliminated from the mining industry.

Mingled with sarcasm and humor he presents a solution in his reference to prohibition of child labor in mines and the pensioning of aged workers. We quote him as follows:

"The press is in general agreement that there are too many miners. But up to now these disseminators of wisdom have failed to submit a proposal showing how to dispose of this surplus of coal diggers.

"One way would be by abolishing mine inspection. Doing away with rescue crews would also help a little. And, no doubt, the operator would be willing to meet the public half way on these measures. However, with the best of intentions there is no chance of eliminating some two hundred thousand coal miners.

"Of course, if we could cook up another war and arrange for a selective draft, applicable to coal diggers exclusively, the problem could be solved in a jiffy because it doesn't take much of a war to kill that many people.

"But I'm afraid the people are in no mood for another war. Not yet. So something else must be done to rid this country of its non-essential coal miners. And in the absence of any other plan, I modestly submit the following proposal:

"First, take every boy under 16 years of age out of the mine. This will reduce the visible supply of coal miners by at least 50,000.

"Second, pay a living pension to every coal miner 60 years of age and over who has worked at least thirty years under ground. This will remove another 150,000 and presto, the trick is done.

"If this country cannot live and prosper without funneling tender boys into its coal mines; and if it is too darned poor to pay a pension to men who risk their lives every day for thirty years in order that the wheels of industry may be kept whirling—then let it go to blazes.

"Now that the cat is out of the bag, I want you boys to watch the press and see how this perfectly plain, simple and just scheme will be taken up and pushed to its conclusion.

"But don't look too hard! You're liable to spoil your eyesight."

The Villa Grove Co-operative Society has just issued its fifteenth quarterly report for the three months ending July 1, 1922. It shows that the society paid a dividend or returned savings to its members on the basis of the amount of purchases they made for the three months of 7%, totaling $1,863.82; that it put 1% in its regular reserve fund, totaling $266.26; and put $175.38 in a special reserve fund. It had in its reserve fund previous to that time, $3,070.91 and in its special fund $120.49. It paid interest on its share and loan capital, $104.77. The total sales for the three months were $37,903.40. Its total resources were $38,088.70.

No government can be free which assumes to dictate the disposition of man's labor.

Wake up, do your bit, and help put the drive for industrial freedom and social justice over the top.

There would be no necessity for an "unfair" list if we all did our share in boosting the union label.

Don't leave it to the "clique" to do all the work of the local union, including agitation for the label, card and button, as many minds and hands make the job easier.

The union label helps us to provide in times of industrial peace what we very often need in industrial war—a strong organization and substantial funds.

Don't follow the crowd if you want to be a leader, but lead the crowd to boost for the union label, shop card and working button.

Be as willing to carry your share of the burden of winning the battles of labor as you are to participate in the gains when they have been made.

We read and hear a great deal about the "public." The question is, who are the public? After you eliminate those who labor and those who employ labor, there "ain't no such animal," as the public, except perhaps a few people in the old ladies' home or other institutions.

"The excess profits tax was not paid by rich corporations; the tax was shifted all down the line until the very poor paid it," declared U. S. Senator Wadsworth at Washington yesterday in opposing the soldiers' bonus bill. "There never was a time when the corporations did not pass their taxes on to the consumer," added Senator Borah. "It will prove true of every such tax levied."—New York World, Aug. 29.

FOR THE WELFARE OF ALL HUMANITY

OFFICIAL

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President.

508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 318 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

I. M. ORNBURN, 236 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

D. W. KENNEDY, 73 Clifton Ave., Niagara Falls, Ont., Third Vice President.

MANUEL GONZALES, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Sixth Vice President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member. If he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also, as per section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member, if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect September 25, 1922, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after September 25 are exempt from payment of the September assessment. Class B members don't have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members don't have to pay the special strike fund assessment. Members out of work are not exempt from this assessment.

INTERNATIONAL FINES

The International Executive Board approved the application of 107, Erie, Pa., to fine Wm. Chandler, 22441; John J. Bambauer, 63752; Scott W. Rose, 16719; Henry J. Hein, 10930, and George Bambauer, foreman, each $100 for working in the G. B. Wingerter strike shop. Vote—Affirmative, 5; two members approved only $50.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

O. F. Doyle appealed against Union 285, Fort Worth, for refusing to grant him a traveling card and compelling him to pay $24.00, $1.00 a month for 24 months, his pro rata share of the deficiency of the union. The appeal against the refusal of the union to grant traveling card is sustained, but the appeal against being compelled to pay the $24.00 is not sustained. The union is instructed to grant this member a traveling card, entering on it the balance of the deficiency he still owes, and the member is instructed to pay regularly on this deficiency.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

The amendment of 58, Montreal, providing that when a factory moves from one district to another it shall remain under the jurisdiction of the original union for one year and then shall pass under the jurisdiction of the union to which it has moved, as published in the July issue:

Received the endorsement of 389, New York, and 107, Erie.

Not having received the required number of endorsements it will not be submitted to a vote of local unions.

Union 97 of Boston offers the following amendment to the Constitution:

The first paragraph of Section 2 of the Constitution shall read: The next convention of the International Union shall be held on the first Monday in the month of May, 1923.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a-Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and international assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $3.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all international and local assessments, and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all international assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

Decision of the Int'l Executive Board.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31, 1922.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board of the C. M. I. U. of A. of certain members of Union No. 16 of Binghamton, N. Y., on behalf of Daniel O'Brien against the decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Ornburn, Kennedy, Gonzales, Hall, Stevens, Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was, this committee requested the International President to reinstate Mr. O'Brien, who has been suspended by the local union for being over the limit in dues. The committee claims that the secretary did not act in accordance with the instructions of the local union in his communication with the International President. The committee also claims that this member was suspended through a misunderstanding and that he was entitled to out-of-work benefit, and had he received the same would not have been suspended. The International President sustained the action of the Executive Board of Union No. 16 and the committee appealed to the Executive Board against the decision of the International President.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: Section 112 of the constitution makes the financial secretary of a local union responsible for its funds. The financial secretary states that this member was twenty weeks behind in his dues when he was suspended and that he could not do otherwise but suspend him in accordance with the constitution. An examination of all of the evidence submitted shows that the International President could make no other decision in accordance with the constitution.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally,

SAM'L GOMPERS,

First Vice Pres.

The two largest shops in Denver, viz the Solis Cigar Co. and the Cuban Cigar Co. are working on a five day week limit and we have in addition to this about 40 out of work. Traveling members should not come here with any expectation of going to work for the present at least.

Union Note: by 97, Boston.—The cry was greater production, then the mills closed down.—In order to deflate wages it is necessary to have a surplus of labor, hence the efforts to reduce wages, engineered by the National Chamber of Commerce, and their affiliated bodies.—Some injunctions, boys.—The state was made for the man, not the man for the state.—When you buy your fall hat look for the label.—And when you buy your child's school bag look for the Union Label.—Was it not kind of the labor board to fix a wage of twenty-three cents an hour for the men who work only two hundred and fifty days in a year?—If all the R. R. employees were in one organization.—We need a convention.—After Congress adjourns business will improve and we shall soon get back all we have lost.—United we stand, divided we fall.—Yes, our boys donated to the textile workers of Manchester and Lawrence, also to the R. R. shopmen.—We wage earners want books upon our shelves, pictures upon our walls, some musical instrument for our children, leisure to enjoy them, and a wage sufficient to get them and provide for old age.—What is a counterfeit wage? A wage that does not equal the increased cost of commodities.—The automatic machine has not been a boon to the employers.—Jefferson knew the Supreme Court.—What do you think of a child seven years of age who had worked in a southern cotton mill for eighteen months.—We need a state free university.—While men labor there will be a labor question.—Why cannot all our lady members take as active a part in our meetings as they do in Union 4? It is a pleasure to attend their meetings.—The Credit Union has killed the loan shark.—There are better times a coming.—Organize, Agitate, Educate.—Henry Abrahams.

Complete list of donations received from unions for the assistance of our members who were on strike and not entitled to benefits for which Union 129, Denver, Colo., wishes to express their appreciation. It came in very handy and enabled a lot of our members to tide over a long lay off. Our difficulty has terminated and the Solis Cigar Co. are again working with about half of their original force on a five day week limit. We still have about 40 that are not employed but have hopes that they soon will be.

Our Slogan—

Organize The Industry.

Our Motto—

It Can Be Done.

It costs the non-unionist about $4.00 to $12.00 per 1,000 cigars not to belong to the Cigar Makers' International Union.

It costs the union member from 30c to 60c per week to belong to the union.

The so-called "high dues," 60c a week is often used as an excuse for not joining the union. The employer keeps this 60c per week always before the eyes of the unorganized. But he never tells what it costs the non-unionists not to belong to the union.

The facts follow. Figure it out for yourself. The union has increased the average length of life of its members from 37 years to 56 years. The union has decreased the percentage of those who die from tuberculosis from 51 per cent to 20 per cent. This has been accomplished by reducing the hours of labor to eight per day, increasing wages, and establishing better working conditions, all for from 30c to 60c a week.

And the story is not half told. The union has increased wages from 10 per cent to 50 per cent and has paid strike benefit, sick benefit, death benefit, and out of work benefit.

The union cigar maker receives generally speaking about $10 to $25 per thousand for making cigars. The non-unionist receives, generally speaking, about $6 to $12 per thousand for the same work. He works from three hours to four hours longer per day and to the limit of his strength and endurance. He is destroying his health and shortening his life. Quoted facts prove this.

It costs the non-unionist not to belong to the union his health and several years of life. It costs him many hours of labor, which rob him of the opportunity for recreation, study, and the enjoyment of home life.

It costs the non-unionist about $4 to $12 per thousand not to belong to the union. Wages including those of non-unionists rose during the war and for a short period thereafter. During the past two years the wages of non-unionists have decreased to the prewar level or about 30 per cent to 50 per cent. This would not have happened if they had been members of the union. This shows what it costs them not to belong to the union. The wages of the members of the union were reduced from the high peak war prices, but reliable records show that these reductions averaged only about 10 per cent. The dues paid the union are cheap indeed when compared with what the non-unionists have paid to their employers.

Join the union and pay dividends to yourself instead of paying them all to the employer. The small dues paid to the union are a mere drop in the bucket when compared to what non-unionists are paying to the employers.

The next Congress will no doubt attempt to pass a compulsory arbitration law. Such Labor Laws That Bite. a law in some form is evidently desired by the present anti-union forces. The railroad workers have apparently been picked as the goat, perhaps with the hope that they can be placed in the public service class and thus a greater pressure can be brought to bear against them.

It is proposed to "put teeth" in the Esch-Cummins law. This means that railroad employees will then have to submit their wage demands and adjustments to a hand-picked United States Labor Board or commission that will be empowered to COMPEL the workers under penalty of fines or imprisonment to accept any decision the board may see fit to award.

Such a proposition in any form is wholly impractical and highly dangerous. American workmen in any line are not going to submit to being forced to work for wages arbitrarily set, nor are they going to tamely accept any punishment for their refusal.

Price fixing by the government in industries in which it is not directly and actively engaged has proven the greatest failure of our present economic life. Wages is the price of railroad labor and price fixing along this line will meet with abject failure at least so long as the government does not own and control the industry.

The principle is not new. It has been tried and found a failure from the time of the French Revolution down to the recent fizzle of the Australian law. Labor hating congressmen had better forget such reactionary legislation. Such a law "with teeth in it," if passed, is liable to be up against a whale of a dentist's bill.

All agree that if we are to have a really worth while system of production and distribution

A Sick Industrial System. mismanagement, graft, and profiteering must go. We find some among the workers who would entirely destroy the whole present system of production and distribution. All of those who profit through the advantage secured by combination, exploiting government and control of capital, through the credit system, and other sinister means, are satisfied. There is a profound and intense feeling and determination on the part of many among the workers and the far-seeing, fair employers to seek, through remedial measures to the present system, to build up a more just and equitable system, that will serve the best interests of the workers, the fair-minded employer and the general public.

This element moreover feel that no system can be declared incompetent until after fair and scientific methods are applied. They feel, too, that if this is done and the system proves inefficient it will fall of its own weight.

Because of the short-sightedness and autocratic, slave-driving policies of the Czar of Russia and big interests a just and fair system of production and distribution was never allowed to be put into operation and was never tried out in Russia. The ultra-radical sought to build an untried and what many hold to be an impossible industrial system upon the wreck of a system that never did have half a chance to show its worth or failure.

No one denies that life is evolutionary. No one with any sense can or will deny that industry is evolutionary. Evolution in industry has gone forward with leaps and bounds in the last fifty years. Big interests and greedy employers have taken advantage of improved methods of production and distribution and have appropriated the great bulk of its gain to their own private use and enrichment.

This was made possible because of the lack of thorough organization of the industrial workers. The remedy which will help lies not in the hands of the few nor does it rest entirely in the hands of the workers nor entirely in the hands of the manufacturers, big interests, and capitalists.

Those who are constructionists, who believe in building up before we start tearing down, should co-operate with fair-minded, efficient, competent employers in the effort to install a system of production and distribution such as will bring about the following fundamentals: Efficiency in industry; scientific methods; elimination of all waste; elimination of incompetent management; co-operation of willing workers with competent management; service instead of excessive profits; the recognition of brains and capacity when rightfully applied; the recognition of the fact that the worker is entitled to a full share of the wealth that he creates; and a determination that there shall be no predatory rich, that there shall be no poverty unless self-imposed, that the profit on labor and brains shall be fairly divided, and that excess profits shall go to the purpose of creating better homes, better life for the toiling masses, development of natural resources and improved methods of production, to the end that all who work and toil with hand or brain may enjoy the fullest measure of the result of their labor and their activities.

The usual grist of solutions of the so-called labor problem continue to come from the mill. Among the latest to add their cure-alls to the A Solution of the Problem. already overcrowded medicine cabinet are L. F. Loree, a railroad president, and Senators Root and Pepper. Mr. Loree would have labor unions compelled by law to submit all strike votes to government officials. Mr. Root would have passed a law by the Congress of the United States prohibiting strikes which in any way interfere with the food supply, or the service necessary to the public good. Mr. Pepper proposes a law compelling a general referendum on any big strike such as the recent coal or railroad strike, hoping thus by "public opinion" to force labor from ceasing work.

It is strange that men, intelligent beyond the average, well versed in business and in politics, could seriously consider for a moment such impossible schemes. They should know, without example, that the day of compulsory labor is passed in this or any other civilized country. If they must have examples of what compulsory labor laws have NOT done in this and other countries the last few years are replete with them.

Australia and New Zealand have compulsory arbitration and labor laws and all that has been done is to make law-breakers of both the employer and the employee. A six-year record shows Australia having an average of 350 strikes a year. If the United States had as many strikes in comparison with the population of the two countries we should have had to average some 7,000 strikes a year.

Canada has what is known as a compulsory investigation act. This law is not intended to prohibit strikes but to delay them until a government board can hear both sides. Yet this plan, far milder than any proposed legislation of the gentlemen aforementioned, has not succeeded in preventing a single strike. Usually neither side would wait for an investigation and when they did the award was in many instances ignored. Even the city government of Toronto refused to accept one award of the board and there is no record of its going to jail either.

The facts are that labor is free and intends to remain free. Compulsory arbitration laws are harmful rather than helpful, provoking as they do the very things they are supposed to prevent. Labor, organized, meeting capital, organized, on the field of industrial endeavor, both imbued with a sincerity of purpose to co-operate for the best interests of all concerned, needs no legislation to further the day of industrial serenity. The problem can be solved, must be solved and will be solved without the interference of distasteful laws. Organized labor points the way and slowly but surely organized capital is swinging onto the smoother road.

Wages of Chicago building trades workers were deflated last spring through the medium of the "Landis Award."

An Award Needed? It was argued at the time that this award would cure all the ills said to exist in the building line and that under its operation the scarcity of housing, which it was alleged had made it possible for rents to reach the pinnacle of extortion, would rapidly diminish.

Fred W. Armstrong, general manager of the Citizens' Committee to enforce the Landis Award, recently declared that the cost of building material had increased from 15 to 25 per cent.

"In one instance reported to the committee," he said, "recent bids on a proposed apartment building were nearly 100 per cent higher than those obtained in March. Common dimension lumber, according to a recent estimate is now $50 a thousand. The war time peak ranged from $54 to $55. Glass is soaring and practically every item with the exception of brick is on the upward trend."

It is high time that an "award" of some kind be directed toward the real cause of excessive building costs—the profiteers who are apparently immune from any hindering influence in their game of extortion.

In the October issue of The Federationist Samuel Gompers in an eighteen-page article presents a masterly indictment against those who would destroy the trade union movement and collective bargaining and would substitute the absolute autocratic control of American industry. He cites page after page of convincing and indisputable proof of a conspiracy on the part of the labor-hating manufacturers, big interests, financiers, and chambers of commerce to destroy the trade union movement.

Mr. Gompers goes minutely and thoroughly into a mass of convincing evidence to prove his point. He cites the steel trust, the West Virginia mine war, the interlocking directorates, the National Open Shop Association, and twenty-one other anti-union associations of employers, and calls attention to the tons of propaganda against Labor that they have issued.

He then calls attention to the brilliant resistance of the unions to this mighty onslaught.

The whole article should be read by all who are seeking for truth and enlightenment upon our great movement.

Mr. Gompers concludes his splendid article as follows: "And how short-sighted it has all been, this boastful, trumpet-blaring, lying, deceptive war to destroy the organizations of the workers, the useful, toiling men and women of our country. How wasteful! History teaches that progress goes on, tyrants, fools, self-seekers to the contrary notwithstanding. Caesars, Napoleons, Hohenzollerns all pass and their forces crumble. The race moves onward. For it must be, now and tomorrow and forever."

The value of human life is seemingly measured on a sliding scale.

Consider the strenuous, praiseworthy efforts made to save all or a part of the forty-seven gold miners recently imprisoned in California.

The attention of the entire country was directed toward the heroic efforts made to save these lives and the heartfelt prayers of the masses were that a rescue might be accomplished. The life of even one of those unfortunate miners was considered of more value than all the gold in the mine.

This is the value that should be placed on human life. Yet how different is the value of life estimated in our everyday industrial turmoil, stripped as it is of the emotion that goes with accident or disaster. We see human life sacrificed to preventable accidents, to the heartbreaking living wage plan and to the brutal system of child labor, and find only the voice of organized labor is raised to stop the sacrifice.

Welcome the day when a human life will not be imperiled by disaster and when it will be held and prized at its true worth at all times and in all places.

Labor does not organize to gain a real or fancied supremacy over other labor that is unorganized. The purpose of organization and its every effort is to gain, through the power of united action, a measure of justice for all wage earners who work with hand or brain.

* * *

A serious business depression has marked the two years just ended. All industrial life was affected and cigar-workers, due in part to their being engaged in a non-basic industry, have been especially hard hit.

While there are no figures at hand that tell the whole story as to just how much wages in unorganized cigar factories have been cut, we do know that, according to reliable reports of various industrial commissions, wages in general have been deflated anywhere from 30 to 50 per cent. With these facts as a criterion, it may reasonably be assumed that non-union cigar workers have fared no better than the general average.

The time-worn, incompetent, moth-eaten methods of production and distribution should be brushed aside.

Labor and Capital should co-operate for the building up of a system of production that would be just and fair to all and a credit to our civilization.

(From "Waste in Industry," by the Committee on Elimination of Waste in Industry of the Federated American Engineering Societies, appointed by Herbert Hoover.)

Statistics, when properly interpreted, do not support the popular belief that strikes are responsible for great losses in earnings to wage earners or in the output of industry.

Finally, strikes are merely symptoms of more fundamental maladjustments, injustices, and economic disturbances which produce unrest, discontent, and bitterness among the ever-increasing number of industrial workers. Treating symptoms rarely reaches the roots of the disease. Suppressing strikes will not cure social unrest; but will probably increase it. Strikes are always regrettable; but not always reprehensible. Until the social millennium is attained, they will continue to occur and will be sometimes necessary both as a direct defense against injustice and oppression and as the only way of compelling the public to give its attention to hidden evils in industrial relations.

"Lawless courts represent anarchy in its worst form," said Senator Robinson in the United States Senate. What about a lawless administration?

The injunction against the striking shopmen was granted by the courts, but it was asked for and obtained by Daugherty, acting for Warren G. Harding.

Compelled and driven by public opinion. Daugherty and Harding are now explaining away the injunction and undoubtedly the courts will modify it. But such modification will not be the result of more mature deliberation on the part of Daugherty and Harding. They have threatened this step and deliberated for more than two months.

Whatever he may say or do henceforth, here are Warren G. Harding's views of the rights of organized labor. Let them be nailed to the wall of every meeting place of organized labor in the country!

The injunction enjoins "all railway employees" and "all persons acting in or in conjunction with them" from "in any manner whatsoever encouraging, directing or commanding any person . . . to abandon the employment of said railway companies . . . or to refrain from entering the service."

It enjoins the officers of the railway shopmen's unions from "issuing any instructions, requests, public statements or suggestions in any way to . . . any official or member of said labor organizations constituting the said federated shop crafts . . . with reference to their conduct or the acts they shall perform subsequent to the abandonment of the employment of said railway companies."

President Harding has thus attempted to deprive the workman not of some of his rights, but of all of his rights as an American citizen.

And for what object is the American constitution to be abrogated?

The spokesman of Mr. Harding cleared up this question completely in his official speech asking the court for the injunction. The railways are to be operated on the employers' terms. If the unions endeavor to prevent it they are to be "destroyed" by the government. This is Mr. Daugherty's own word.

All the constitutional powers of the government as well as the unconstitutional powers it has usurped are to be used—to preserve "the open shop." Here again are Mr. Daugherty's words (spoken for Mr. Harding):

" . . . so long and to the extent that I can speak for the Government of the United States, I will use the power of the Government to prevent the labor unions of the country from destroying the open shop."

The parts of the injunction above quoted show exactly what Harding and Daugherty mean by "the power of the government."

Nothing that Mr. Harding can say or do can ever wipe out the fact that he asked for and obtained this injunction. Read it again and again. Learn it by heart and preserve it for future reference.

When the newspapers reported that John Petrowski and others had confessed to wrecking the ill-fated Michigan Central train there was expressed much satisfaction that justice was to be done.

By SAMUEL GOMPERS,

President, American Federation of Labor.

Today and every day the workers of America should consecrate themselves anew to the support and extension of the labor press.

The labor press is doing splendid work in defending and advancing labor's cause. Without it, organized labor would be indeed poorly equipped in its efforts for the protection of the wage earners.

The value of the labor press to our fellow workers is incalculable.

In season and out of season the labor papers proclaim the doctrine of justice for those who toil.

Wage workers are coming to rely more and more on the labor press to get the facts on subjects which affect them most closely. They are learning that the employer-owned press cannot be relied upon to support labor's interests at those crucial times when there is need of support to shape public opinion for the truth and justice of labor's cause.

In labor controversies there is always need of saying the right thing at the right time. It gives the workers an advantage when the advantage is needed. The labor papers are on the job to do this work.

It is of immeasurable value to the workers to have these regular publications of their own to give consideration to the general principles of the labor movement and their application.

It is of equally immeasurable value for them to have a press that will strike hard and to the point and persistently on crucial questions in defense of labor's rights.

The influence of the labor press is also felt outside the labor movement. It compels the general public press to be more truthful and decent in its attitude toward labor and the labor movement.

Agitate! Educate! Organize!

This is the slogan of the trade unionists in their struggle for the emancipation of all the workers.

In this struggle the labor press is one of the workers' greatest assets.

Let us pledge ourselves again to give the labor press that 100 per cent support which its loyalty to the workers' cause splendidly earns and deserves.

New York, Aug. 28, 1922.

Dear Sir and Brother:

We desire to inform members of organized labor, and particularly the members of your organization, that the Sarnoff Hat Company, which formerly operated union factories in the making of soft and stiff felt hats and straw and panama hats, have ceased to do business with the United Hatters of North America, and is now either making hats themselves with non-union labor in non-union factories, or buying them from established non-union concerns.

For several years the United Hatters of North America have spent a great deal of money advertising the Sarnoff Hat Company, and advising members of organized labor to patronize the Sarnoff stores because their hats contained the union label of the United Hatters of North America. Now that their hats are no longer entitled to the union label, we feel it our duty to notify you and the members of your organization that in the future Sarnoff hats will not contain the label, and we do not want your members to be deceived by going to the Sarnoff stores for union made hats, because the Sarnoff hats will not contain the union label.

Undoubtedly the Sarnoff Company will carry a few union made hats to deceive the public and give the impression that they are still operating union factories. Inasmuch as we have repeatedly told you to patronize the Sarnoff stores, we feel it our duty to notify you that the Sarnoff Company is no longer employing members of the United Hatters of North America, and state emphatically that they are through with organized labor.

Thanking you for the patronage you have given our label in the past, and hoping that in a few days when your members purchase their fall hats they will contain the union label of the United Hatters of North America, we are, UNITED HATTERS OF NORTH AMERICA,

Martin Lawlor, Sec'y-Treas.

Hand-Carving vs. Composition.

The Union Woodcarvers of the United States need the help of all organized labor's co-operation in combatting the "composition ornament evil." They wish to urge union men to buy hand-carving. Hence they ask all union members when purchasing furniture, pianos, phonographs, etc., to be sure that it is strictly hand-carved.

Hand-carving is invariably union made.

Composition-carving is unfailingly non-union made.

Report of Organizer.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 3, 1922.

During my work here in August I was instructed to proceed to Pennsylvania in a district from Lebanon to Reading, where the cigar makers of chain shops in several towns went on strike for an increase of wages.

These workers, like others, during the war received increases bringing their wages up to a possible chance to live, although not in keeping with a fair wage. The non-unionists and even some of the unionists thought they were going to keep these prices without an organization and therefore turned their backs on the organization of their craft.

When the manufacturer got ready he started to take away from the worker what he gave voluntarily and continued until he pared them downward nearly to the bone. This made them revolt, for they found they could not live and work for such prices, so they demanded and struck for a $2 increase per thousand. The employer offered the munificent sum of 50c per M, but they went out for $2 per M and after two weeks out they were offered $1 increase.

On my arrival in this district I found the workers had under consideration the question of accepting this offer. I went to Newmantown to the meeting where this matter was to be discussed and final action to be taken. After a long wrangle the cigar makers of Newmantown accepted the employers' offer and returned to work the next day. This settled the strike and all other towns did likewise, and they now get $9 per M for mixing three kinds of fillers on the table, $3 less than they received during the war, and still they keep out of the organization of their craft.

After leaving this field I went to Albany, N. Y. While there I learned that the cigar trade was fairly good there, but there are no shops of any size to employ union men and the non-union cigar has smooth sailing.

I spoke at several meetings of the striking car men while in that city and later returned to this territory. I have addressed the striking car men in Jersey City and received an invitation to address other organizations in that city. I addressed the label conference of the several counties of the state held in Dover, N. J., Sept. 24, and spoke at the protest meeting held in Perth Amboy on Oct. 1 on injunctions.

The sale of union label goods is on the increase here and there have been several jobs open in union shops and I hear that more jobs are now open. With the agitation work done here the sale of label cigars has increased and no doubt more jobs will follow if Union 133 continues its label advertisement.

All of the organizations that I have spoken to at their meetings have assured me that they would look for and demand the blue label cigar. I believe that their minds are open for label agitation and will co-operate if the cigar makers will do their share in bringing to the minds of the other organizations that their fight is our fight and that our fight is their fight.

Report of Organizer.

New York City, Sept., 1922.

Since my arrival in New York City as general organizer I will make a brief report of my work with Mr. Maurice Simon, general organizer.

I will inform that the Italian and Spanish speaking cigar makers had their minds poisoned with the activities and propaganda of our enemies against the Cigar Makers' International Union of America.

To a great extent I have made these fellow craftsmen change their opinions about our organization, and conditions are on the change, as it is not dangerous to speak about the International Union as it was on my arrival amongst the Italian and Spanish speaking cigar makers.

I commenced a campaign in "El International" of Tampa, Fla., and explained the benefits of being a member of the C. M. I. U. of A. and personally distributed the paper from house to house, and personally convinced numerous craftsmen of their false impressions about our organization.

In company with Mr. Simons we organized a grand mass meeting on March 26, this year, obtaining very good results, also our meeting of May 6 was a grand success. The cigar makers were addressed by Mr. Arturo Giovanitti, secretary of "La Camara Del Lavoro." I have visited different organizations and periodicals, obtaining their moral support in my work of organization, and the result of my efforts are demonstrated by the fact that the amala-mated association of cigar makers were noting that they were losing their members and sympathy and have proceeded to name an organizer that speaks Italian and Spanish to counteract my success, but I speak Italian and Spanish and will continue to demonstrate that the only safe and sound organization is the C. M. I. U. of A.

Local Union No. 389 on my arrival here had a few members, and today they have 100, and my readers should consider my statement above—it was dangerous to speak about our organization to the Latin cigar makers.

I have co-operated with Mr. Simon in all organization work here. This is my report in brief. Yours fraternally,

P. BIANCO, Gen. Org.

Italian Labor Chamber.

In making the rounds one morning this week we located the veterans of the cigar makers, who, next to the printers, are members of the oldest international union in existence.

We found on going over the books of Henry C. Wegener, secretary of the cigar makers (who, by the way, has held the office of secretary of Local No. 72, C. M. I. U. of A. since 1887, which is some record—35 consecutive years), that there are some veterans in the cigar makers' union here in Burlington, and they are good healthy ones, too.

Henry Wegener and Al Hauber rode the goat in 1880, 42 years ago (take notice, some of you kids who joined in 1900 or since). Adam Hiltz follows in 1881, while J. H. Hunger is next best, initiated in 1883; Ben Hug in 1884; F. W. Busse, who has two sons in the shop craft strike, was initiated in 1885; Frank Eberle and Frank Halter in 1886; Jack Hiltz and Wm. J. Heck in 1887; Peter Bohlen in 1888, and Harry Snyder in 1889.

All of these members are right here in Burlington except Adam Hiltz, who is in Des Moines with his daughter, Mrs. Barnhart, and is not actively connected with the cigar industry. All the rest are still rolling them as they were 33 to 42 years ago, and we hope they will continue to do so for some years to come.—Iowa Labor News.

LABOR CONDITIONS IN PORTO RICO

Before the Commission on Industrial Relations—Some of the Remarks from P.

Rivera Martinez.

It may be frankly stated without fear to any further contradiction that the main causes which have created the state of wretchedness prevailing in that Island and the bad general conditions confronting the laborers there is doubtless the special kind of government suffered by the poor inhabitants of Porto Rico, and the disgraceful selection of the men who are appointed or elected to serve as public officials.

The reactionary education that has held sway over the Island of Porto Rico for more than 400 years; that is, as long as Spain was the mistress of our destinies, is the same that dominates the Island today, for in spite of being Porto Rico under the American flag for more than sixteen years, the men who took the Spaniards' places—in the management of the local affairs—are descendants of our first governing classes. They are as ambitious as their fathers were, and as full of social and political vices as they, and as inimical to the rights and public liberties as the most hardened soldiers of the monarchy could be.

It is true that the conditions of the toiling classes have improved somewhat, but not in proportion to the vast wealth that the same class has produced, and very much less in comparison with the great improvements made by the monopolists of commerce, industry, the political power, the financial power and the masters of privileges and franchises.

If any change has been noticeable in the conditions of the working classes and favorable to them, this change is due solely and exclusively to the great influence of the organized American people as represented by the American Federation of Labor, and in certain instances to the influence of the federal administration itself, but NEVER to any initiative on the part of our political ring-leaders, or to any beneficial action of the local administration in behalf of the wealth producing masses of Porto Rico.

The self-styled patriotic leaders in our Island, the descendants of reaction, who are both influential agitators in public and men representing the opinion in the leadership of political parties, are also the representatives of the people in the House of Delegates. They are attorneys of the biggest corporations, of the sugar, tobacco, coffee and fruit trusts, of the railroads and street car companies; they are also interested in the banks, which reap fabulous profits and live off usury; some of them are also who in a like manner grant the franchises, and consider the working men as beings inferior and unworthy to live like persons; they are who in their political business are trying to create an anti-American political feeling and are at the same time who hold the Americans responsible for this condition of wretchedness and misery by casting discredit upon the American people and his institutions. But whenever it is a question of taking their stand with the Americans they are not a mite reluctant to do so whenever it suits their purposes better. All these are who opposed and are opposing the advancement and uplift of the workingmen of Porto Rico.

The undertaking of bettering the conditions of the laborers in Porto Rico must be very gradual, constant and brought about through the introduction of the democratic institutions that are advanced, through the agency of the school, the wise administration of the laws and justice, the co-operation which the government can offer within its powers, and above all, by the general social, political and economic education encouraged by the labor organizations.

The Island of Porto Rico has lagged behind in the matter of education for more than 400 years. Up to the year 1899 there were about 85% of the population who could neither read nor write. Neither prices, salary nor contracts existed with respect to labor. Laborers were called upon to work for what the bosses wanted to pay, and under this generous paternalism they were paid whatever the employer saw fit to give them, and in pursuance with the truck system the worker was required to buy his provisions at the store of his employer for whom he worked, and this employer would give him a ticket or brass check that could only be traded in for articles at his place of business.

Up to the present, and since shortly after the American occupation, the working people of Porto Rico have kept on educating themselves in the principles of organized labor movement as understood by the American Federation of Labor. Schools have multiplied, merchants began to arrive, and new industries were soon created. Corporations began to organize themselves and take up the lands, as well as the bulk of the natural wealth. Franchises began to be granted. Business went along on the increase, and in a short time the population increased from about 1,000,000 to 1,200,000 inhabitants, and we owe it to the initiative of the American people if the Island has enjoyed the wonderful prosperity that it really has, but which, unhappily, has been used only to emphasize on the slavery of the people, because most of the wealth that is produced does not remain on the Island to go back again into the business interests of that locality, because it goes out and benefits the strangers and becomes dividends on the shares of their holders.

By the very careful study of these matters, the laborers of Porto Rico became familiar with all these social, economic and political evils and they decided to better their conditions and raise their salaries and general standard of living. Some of us have kept ourselves since more than ten years ago in close touch with the labor organizations of America. We have learned more and more each day and we are always looking ahead to learn even more and thereby co-operate to the bettering of the conditions of the workmen of the Island.

The workmen of Porto Rico have put into practice the same principles and methods of the American Federation of Labor in their fight for better wages and shorter hours of labor, but it has been very hard in the Island to apply the practices of our theories and aspirations through the legal, normal and peaceful means of strikes. The government officials have tried to prevent the workmen from exercising the right to strike, and they have done all they could to hinder the free emission or exchange of thought. To discourage the propaganda of the ideas they have prevented the peaceful manifestations, and in this way they have trampled the constitutional rights, giving access to deplorable and irreparable incidents throughout the Island.

Hired men armed to the teeth have been used by the bosses during the labor troubles to fight the strikers, and the police force has also been used to cause the men to return to work under the old conditions.

It is necessary for the working people of Porto Rico to have a sufficient and strong organization who may be able to set down a scale of wages adequate to the needs of life and in harmony with the labor it produces.

The congress of the United States should appoint a commission to make a direct, impartial and full investigation of the conditions prevailing in Porto Rico before any action be taken in regard to providing a new organic act for the Island. Porto Rico has never been favored by the investigation of an impartial commission from congress, and on account of that the congress of the United States is not in a position to know which in reality are the needs and aspirations of the workmen of the Island.

The peasants of the Island must be favored with the granting of the lands of the people of Porto Rico which are uncultivated, and a people's bank should be established to help the small industries and the peasants from the exploitations of the banks making loans at this time at from 20 to 40% interest in small quantities.

Porto Rico workmen must be protected and defended by the establishment of a Department of Labor with the same privileges of the other departments which are at the service of the capitalists.

And all the federal laws relating to labor and beneficial in character should apply to Porto Rico through an act of the congress of the United States.

Special Financiers Examination of Union 41, Aurora, Ill.

October 16, 1922.

The books and accounts of this union have not received the proper attention for some time past. Lack of interest in union affairs has brought about the condition in which this union now finds itself. Indifference on part of most of the members has permitted Ex-Sec. C. H. Patterman to conduct the business of the union in such a manner as to cause a shortage in the funds amounting to $309.40, all of which was appropriated to his own personal use. A comparison of the due books with each member's ledger account showed that dues and assessments had been sold and not accounted for in the amount of $122.50, which is here charged as due Int. Union on this examination. Ex-Sec. Patterman also failed to account for $187.50 cash. An error of $1.20 in his favor was discovered, leaving net amount due to the Int. Union of $309.40, as shown below. In order to avoid a repetition of this condition the finance committee has been instructed to stand squarely upon the constitutional authority and that is—To examine the accounts at the end of each month by checking up the day book with the ledger to see that every member has received the proper credit and that the monthly reports agree with books and that the cash and stamp accounts are correct.

Endorsed vouchers should be on file for all items of expense. Section 73 of the constitution should be enforced without fear or favor as it is just as easy to be within the limit in dues and assessments as it is to be on the 90 day limit and constantly facing suspension from the union. If you will conduct your union business in a business like way you will experience no trouble in the future. Statement as follows:

Standard Oil (of New York) has declared a stock dividend of 200 per cent.

This increases the capital from $75,000,000 to $225,000,000.

There hasn't been a dollar of real value added by this hokus but many persons will have bigger bank accounts because of it.

It is a matter of bookkeeping.

The par value of the stock was reduced by the directors from $100 per share to $25. At the same time, when the announcement of the big melon was made the stock jumped 20 points on the stock exchange to a 596, a new high mark. More hokus.

Back in 1913 a stock dividend of 400 per cent was declared.

Like a pondrous avalanche the mountain of wealth moves on.

* * *

Once upon a time Judge Landis, now the mahout of baseball, cut the original Standard Oil Company of New Jersey into thirty-three parts.

These parts were supposed to crawl off by themselves to eke out a bare existence in a cruel and competitive world.

They have had a hard time getting along. Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller, senior and junior, have been at the verge of destitution. These crippled fractions of a once mighty combination have found it difficult to get all they want in Persia, Mexico and other parts of the world. They have had to be most round-about in grabbing the naval oil reserves; and in general they have just had to skimp and scrape along. It is tough to be all cut up that way!

* * *

But somehow the various little Standard Oils ooze their way along, lubricating their pathway as they go, finding ways over the rough places and keeping the wolves from the door.

Standard Oil of New Jersey, parent of the flock, hasn't gone bankrupt. Standard Oil of California is expected to declare a stock dividend of 100 per cent soon. Practically all Standard companies are listed to come across in the near future, some of them handsomely. Most all have built up tremendous surpluses.

Among the companies mentioned in this connection and the amount of their surplus on Dec. 31, are: Standard Oil of New Jersey, $592,021,632; Standard Oil of Indiana, $143,222,710; Prairie Oil and Gas Company, $86,796,851; Ohio Oil Company, $72,806,826; Vacuum Oil Company, $62,664,918; Atlantic Refining Company, $61,709,049; Standard Oil Company of Ohio, $17,344,463; Standard Oil of Kansas, $6,768,408; Solar Refining Company, $4,608,550.

* * *

Nothing was gained, of course, by the magnificent gesture of Judge Landis in "smashing the trust." It was all very foolish. Nothing was smashed. It's all a matter of bookkeeping. "Each for all and all for each."

But this is not a dissertation on trust-busting. We here call attention to the inordinate profits—the grand rake-off.

Profits go on forever. Standard Oil merely duplicates what the whole world of corporation operation is doing. Steadily, year by year, during the last ten years, before the war and since the war and during the war, the rate of corporation dividends has gone up and up and up. Every year has seen the aggregate of dividends higher than it was the year before.

And that ought to be of interest to workers; and also to those who lightly condemn workers for organizing unions and fighting for an even break in the rewards for productive service.—

Chester M. Wright.

Newspapers and financial circles were astounded when they learned that the Harriman National Bank of New York had loaned $100,000 to the United Mine Workers of America without security, taking only the personal notes of the international officers for the loan. The Philadelphia Public Ledger, the New York World and the New York Times each devoted more than a column to this simple piece of banking business. Because the miners needed money and got it from a bank, just as business houses do, a sensation was created.

"Wall street gasped," said the New York World, upon learning that the Harriman bank had made the loan.

Harry B. Rosen, director of the bank, explained to newspapers that the security was "the integrity of 900,000 miners and their families," adding that the credit of the army of miners was equal to the credit that could be commanded by the wealth of Rockefeller. Now loans of much more than $100,000 are common in New York.

What made this loan to the miners such a sensation in the great eastern newspapers?

There is but one explanation. These newspapers believe they know how the banking fraternity feels about labor unions and strikes and it is so much a matter of settled routine and accepted policy for Wall street to hate unions and to seek to smash them that for a New York bank to pursue any other course is in reality a sensation.

The Harriman Bank people explained simply that they weren't a "part of Wall street." They went on to say that no bank had ever yet lost through a loan to a labor union and that the miners could have had more money if they had wanted it.

The attitude of the great banking interests has been so much a matter of public interest of late because of the banking control of important industries and because of the union smashing banking influence in the railroad shopmen's strike that this episode is of much more than casual interest.

The attitude of the newspapers—one of open mouthed amazement—toward the action of the Harriman National Bank, is excellent additional proof of the attitude and policy of the banking world as a whole.

The Harriman Bank followed business principles, even to the doors of a trade union. The great financial combines stop business at that point and go to smashing. They and their spokesmen resent what the Harriman Bank has done and those who may not speak for them, but who understand them, gasp at what has happened.

Secretary Green of the United Mine Workers praised the helpfulness of the bank and its president, not only in the matter of the loan, but for helping to arrange some of the most important conferences with the mine owners.

There are constructive minds and honorable characters in all walks of life and it is a pleasure and an inspiration to come upon them.—American Federationist.

Winning the Railroad Shopmen's Strike Against Trade Union Smashers' United Front.

By Clint C. Houston.

Chicago, Oct.—Approximately 200,000 railroad shopmen have returned to work at this writing on more than 100 systems under the plan of settlement adopted at Baltimore and later approved by the general policy committee of the Railway Employees Department, American Federation of Labor. Negotiations continue on other lines, and confidence is expressed at national strike headquarters here that all but a few of the "hardest boiled" roads will soon accept the agreement as the only alternative whereby their old and efficient workers can be brought back to the shops.

Court injunctions, intimidation by private armed guards and state militia, attempted bribery, coercion, "outlawry" by the Railroad Labor Board and double-crossing by the President of the United States have failed to break the morale or determination of these 500,000 organized railroad workers in waging a fight for human rights in a lawful and constitutional manner. When the history of this gigantic struggle is fully written it will form one of the most illuminating chapters in the American labor movement, a struggle from the day the government returned the roads to private management to the present moment, in which the employees have been forced to contend not alone with the more than 200 class one railroad managements, but with the Railroad Labor Board, a tribunal created by Congress that for over two years has sought to limit and circumscribe the activities of the organized railroad employees.

While the conference was on in Baltimore between President Jewell, members of the executive council Railway Employees Department and several railway executives who had become dissatisfied with the arrogant attitude of other managements, Attorney General Daugherty came secretly to Chicago and filed suit in the United States District Court in the name of the United States of America against the officers and organizations of the shopmen. This was the last desperate drive to prevent a settlement which would recognize the rights of the workers and to aid the autocrats of the railroad industry in forcing the men to return to work upon terms dictated solely by the managers.

This action is not surprising in the light of President Harding's change of front over night from a proposal made by him and accepted by the shopmen's representatives that would insure an honorable settlement to one that demanded complete surrender of the strikers to the railroad executives. Since this time the men have regarded the strike as a lockout, and such it is.

Daugherty's drastic injunction has not even made a dent in the strike. It has only served to make the shopmen more determined than ever to win a complete victory. Injunctions will not repair cars and locomotives, nor will the throwing of hundreds of strikers into prison help the railroads. It requires skilled mechanics to perform this service, and it so happens that they are members of the railroad labor organizations.

After scouring the country for three and a half months the managements have failed to find competent men willing to act as strike-breakers in sufficient numbers to relieve the disserviceable equipment. Strikers have been offered bribes ranging from $100 to $200 and pay "far exceeding that fixed by the Railroad Labor Board as 'just and reasonable,'" but to no avail. As a result most of the roads holding out are compelled to place embargoes on shipments. In Illinois only about 60 per cent of the coal mined is being transported to market on account of car and motive power being deficient. This is creating a fuel crisis as winter approaches.

Should the Interstate Commerce Commission enforce the federal safety appliance laws on the railroads more than 50 per cent of the present equipment of many roads would be junked. And the condition of equipment on these roads is growing worse from day to day. What few mechanics they have among the strikebreakers are devoting their time to minor repairs to keep trains moving, and no classified repair work is being done. This is piling up future trouble in heaps for the railroads, as everyone who knows anything about the industry will readily admit.

With the approximately 200,000 strikers returning to work during the past two weeks under signed agreements, the financial strain will be quickly relieved. Each man so returning is pledged to contribute the amount of two days' pay each month to the general strike fund for the relief of those remaining locked out. Under these conditions and with the continued solidarity of the men, the railroad executives, aided by the courts and the national administration, could not break this strike in one hundred years.

One beneficial effect of the shopmen's strike is to bring about a complete discrediting of the Railroad Labor Board, which caused the suspension of work by a decision reducing wages 2 cents per hour below the low level prevailing when the roads were returned to private management on March 1, 1920. All agreements now being entered into between various classes of employees and management provide for adjusting grievances without interference by the board, and most of the cases pending are being withdrawn. The board killed itself when it adopted Chairman Hooper's resolution on July 3 "outlawing" the shopmen. From the day it began to function the board has been partisan to railroad management. Direct negotiation between employer and employee in the railroad industry is again the prevailing rule of action.

The shopmen's agreement provides for the creation of a commission of twelve members, six appointed by the executives and six by the employees, which will adjust all major grievances growing out of the settlement, such as seniority, working rules and wages. The Railroad Labor Board is not even mentioned.

The hitherto strong position held by the Association of Railway Executives also has been materially weakened, if not broken. The Atterburys and Cuylers no longer lay down the policy to be pursued by all the railroads. Breaking away of such important systems as the New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Seaboard Air Line, Southern Railway, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago & Great Western, the Gulf Coast Lines, the Erie, the Chicago & Alton, and many others which have already signed agreements with the shopmen points to a serious division in the family of railroad autocrats. At last the railroad workers are gaining a position where their rights will be recognized. For it must not be forgotten that the fight waged by the 500,000 shopmen has been of direct benefit to the other 1,500,000 men employees in other classes of the railroad industry.

Also there was much exhortation of the unions.

It was taken for granted by many well meaning persons that the unions were responsible for the wreck, and of course they pointed to the affair as a "horrible example."

Now comes from Gary, Ind., another story. This story is not prominently printed, except in a few friendly and fair papers, such as the Washington Daily News, from which the accompanying account was taken.

This latest account is a different story. Read it carefully, and remember about it the next time you see a story about some union man "confessing" to some crime against property.

Gary, Ind.—Stripping to the waist, John Petrowski, one of the men police say voluntarily admitted wrecking the "million-dollar" express of the Michigan Central here last week, told Judge Dunn yesterday the mass of bruises on his body were caused by police beatings to gain the confession.

Petrowski's body was covered with black and blue welts and bruises. Four physicians testified they were inflicted last week about the time the confessions were made. He said his hands were elevated and his back beaten with blackjacks and clubs until he could stand the pain no longer. He signed the confession then, he testified. The third degree, he said, was given him by detectives from the Chicago central headquarters.

At the same time Petrowski was giving this testimony and having his case continued while the court made investigation, three other men, alleged to have plotted to wreck the New York Central "Twentieth Century Limited" at Fort Wayne, were free.—A. F. of L. News Letter.

The Communist party and American soviets were recently given quite a jolt when a leading socialist declined an invitation to visit Russia. In declining he stated, among other things, that he was "Unqualifiedly opposed to Communism. It has not a single constructive plank in its entire platform. I surely could not support any movement that publicly operates under one name and privately under another. According to my way of thinking, there is no place in the United States of America for Communism."—Exchange.

The lessening of the daily hours of labor increases the total of products by increasing the opportunity and disposition for consuming them. The sum of the difference between a savage and a civilized state is merely the difference between men who have time and inclination to gratify their physical needs only, and men who have time, inclination and determination to indulge and cultivate the intellectual side of their nature.

Organize the industry. It can be done.

SOMEBODY LIED.

"Extravagant workers" who rolled in "war wages" were condemned by all "good" citizens. Income tax statistics now made public show that in 1920, a good wage year, only one family in three had an income big enough to tax. Only one family in three had an income of as much as $2,000.

Somebody lied. Now, who could it have been?—International Labor News Service.

BY CARTOON BY THE AMERICAN FARMER

Just Think!

By J. M. BAER, the ex-Congressman-Cartoonist.

International Labor News Service.

There is nothing left to do but THINK under the drastic Daugherty injunction. He has covered everything a man can do "or otherwise in any manner whatsoever" but JUST THINK.

The railroad workers are enjoined from writing letters or other circulars. They are prevented from using telegrams and telephones. They are enjoined from talking. Consequently there is nothing left for them to do but to meditate. Just think!

Now, regardless of the fact that Daugherty has out-cared the old emperor of Russia and out-kaisered the ex-kaiser, and assuming that the workers obeyed the injunction to the letter, it would not be such a bad thing after all to just THINK.

Thought is the most dynamic force in the world. If all the producing peoples would get to thinking and especially thinking along the same line, nothing could prevent them from getting economic freedom, industrial justice and complete political control.

Just think, what would happen if the workers of the field and factory would think. They would build up their own newspapers, their own press services and through these two institutions they would set everybody to thinking.

When a worker merely works he becomes a machine. They don't want workers to think.

They want to do their thinking for them. The exploiter wants to keep the workers too busy to think. But when the workers think, they are for the first time working for themselves.

When the worker gets to thinking he gets others to think. He tells others to read the labor newspapers. He supports his organization; he gets others to support it. When he thinks he soon acts. He votes right. He will control the government just by thinking and getting his brothers to thinking along the same line.

Thank heaven, Daugherty and his Wall street crowd cannot control thought. They cannot lock up our minds. They will know that after the next election when the people express what they really think.

If the workers would only think. If they remain law-abiding and don't do what the railroad executives are so anxious for them to do—that is to blow up bridges and trains—so they can call out the army to shoot them down—but if they will just THINK—then the greatest achievement of all mankind is at hand.

Sit tight, stick—and just think!

RIGHT TO STRIKE SACRED.

By Chief Justice Walter Clark, of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

The right to strike against the private owners of railroads is sacred. Men cannot be forced to work unless we repeal the XIII Amendment and maintain a standing army of millions to enforce peonage. Laborers have a right to strike and to peacefully picket. They cannot resort to violence against person or property. Hence, the strenuous effort of union leaders to prevent all violence and of some corporation agents to provoke strikers to acts of violence.

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President.

508 So. Dearborn St., Chicago.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 318 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

I. M. ORNBURN, 286 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

D. W. KENNEDY, 73 Clifton Ave., Niagara Falls, Ont., Third Vice President.

MANUEL GONZALEZ, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Sixth Vice President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also, as per section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member, if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect September 25, 1922, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after September 25 are exempt from payment of the September assessment. Class B members don't have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members don't have to pay the special strike fund assessment. Members out of work are not exempt from this assessment.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by Julius J. Lechner, of Union 144, New York, N. Y., against the decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Ornburn, Kennedy, Gonzales, Hall, Ramsey, Stevens, Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was, Union 144 suspended Mrs. Julia Lechner, mother of the appellant, for nonpayment of international assessments. The appellant admits that the member was over the constitutional limit in dues, but pleads that in view of her long membership the limit be waived and she should be reinstated. The Union states that the member was much over the limit and had been retained on the roll a considerable time in view of her long membership, when a strict interpretation of the laws would have required her suspension.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That this member was eleven weeks in arrears on international assessments; that the records show that notwithstanding promises that these would be paid, they were not paid up within the limit fixed; that the action of the Union was in compliance with the constitution, and the International President could not, under the law, reverse such action.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally yours,

SAM'L GOMPERS,
First Vice President.

Organize the industry. It can be done.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices, may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all international assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

UNION NOTES

Union Notes by 97, Boston: Better times are coming. Congress has adjourned and the tariff bill has passed.—Any man who endeavors to stifle the expression of free opinions will be condemned by all men who believe in free speech and free opinions.—All special laws will be repealed.—“Preserve what is vital; reject what is outworn and accept that portion of the new which is useful.”—“The inadequate wage paid to millions renders thrift impossible. Rent, food, light, fuel, transportation, insurance, household furniture, medical care, medicine, clothes for the family. Figure what they cost you and see what is left for old age.”—This is why I believe organized labor should add old age pensions.—If I were to give 25 cents to the child of a railroad shopman would I violate the injunction?—Boston's trade union college is a success.—The powers that be would pull down the bars and flood the country with surplus labor.—There is nothing in the constitution of the A. F. of L. that prevents industrial organization.—Boom the label, not only your own, but the other fellow's.—See that your fall hat and your child's satchel for school bear the union label.—City officials in Manchester refuse to permit anyone to address public meetings in aid of textile workers who is not a citizen of New Hampshire.—The powers that believe they are the guardians of the public desire to enact a sue bill, a censor bill and a drastic enactment of Volstead act. On all these amendments we shall vote no on election day.—All hands up for a convention next May.—Boston Central Labor Union will have a ball and entertainment in Mechanics' building next month.—Don't forget the barber shop card.—A long pull and a strong pull; let us all pull together.—Let us take up the question of insurance by some old line company.—We are working five days a week.—Henry Abrahams.

UNION LABELS

To All Organized Labor, Greeting:

There has been much written and a great deal more preached about the value of the union label, card and button to the workers. But all the writing and all the preaching will accomplish very little until concerted action is displayed by every member of organized labor when spending money.

The sale of union labeled products will never exceed that of non-union products until we, the organized workers, stop buying non-union products instead of our own. Unless we make our own products popular they will never be popular. Belief in our own products will create belief in the buying public.

Remember you are boosting your own labor and that of your fellow trades unionists. Get this thought clearly in your mind and then talk the products of organized labor up and not down.

We should feel ashamed whenever we spend money for the products of those who are opposed to us. Each time you fail to patronize union labor is a loss to us and a gain for those opposed to us. Of course, this is a great disadvantage to us. If you have made that mistake in the past, resolve right now that you will never again be placed at a disadvantage by your own thoughtless action.

You will find that many of the buying public will change from non-union to union products when you set them the example. Most people like to help those who know enough to help themselves.

Remind yourself and those dependent on you that if your employer should show a preference for the services of those not organized, your power of purchase would be curtailed. Give your fellow trades unionist a square deal by purchasing the products of his labor, so that his power of purchase will not be curtailed, and he in turn will be in a position to purchase the products of your labor.

You know the old saying, “Money Talks.” Think it over. Let all union earned money talk in the future and ask for union label, card and button.

JOHN J. MANNING,
Secretary-Treasurer, Union Label Trades Department.

Life insurance for members of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks at reasonable rates is announced by President Hyatt and Secretary-Treasurer Flaherty of that organization.

All good-standing members, between the ages of 18 and 60 years, who are in good health will be insured without a medical examination. The benefit will be $500, and the cost $8 a year. The benefit applies to both male and female members. The contract is entered into with a Dayton, Ohio, life insurance company, and has been approved by the Ohio superintendent of insurance.

Satisfactory arrangements will be made to carry the benefits of members who leave the service or whose service promotions deprive them of active membership.

A terrific waste in industry is indisputable. Doctrinaires, laymen, and many others, while admitting this, differ as to what is wastage. Hand or Waste and Profiteering. brain wealth producers are each entitled to a just and equitable share of the wealth they produce. The workers are entitled to wages that will give them a decent and comfortable living such as would embrace comfortable clothes, proper nutritious food, a good home, books, travel, art, music, amusement, and an amount to take care of them during the lean years associated with old age.

Waste is not the paramount issue, is not the greatest drawback to a proper system of production and distribution. Profiteering is its partner in crime and is the greatest contributing force to unrest, discontent, and a condition bordering on poverty for the great mass of the people. For the good of mankind, civilization, and the perpetuity of our institutions both should be eliminated.

Co-operation and co-ordination on the part of all concerned can bring about a more just and equitable system than now exists. During the world war our country as well as all others showed what co-operation and co-ordination could do in the matter of production and distribution. Despite the terrific call made upon industry, we through co-ordination, were able to and did successfully meet all demands. During that period there was no shortage of coal, of trains, of food stuffs, munitions, or other necessary things to maintain those in the trenches as well as those at home. If we could do all of this in a frightful, destructive, devastating war there is no good reason why we should not do it in times of peace, and if we do not it will be to our everlasting disgrace and regrets which may come too late.

To serve the best interests of the living in this period of rehabilitation deserves the best thought, attention, and action of all right-thinking men and women. We co-ordinated in the effort to kill and destroy; let us now co-ordinate in the effort to build up and benefit the living.

Waste in industry is by no means due to the things used which we could get along without, and should not be measured from that standpoint. The paramount waste in industry is due to the turnover system, mismanagement, false economy, and obsolete methods of production, profiteering, excessive overhead charges, and destruction of food of all kinds, that is relegated to the garbage heap or left to rot on the trees or decay in the ground, which results in increasing the cost of the article consumed by the public and increasing the profit of the middlemen and retailers.

The unnecessary waste in production and distribution if saved would pay all city, state, and federal taxes, plus enough to reclaim acres and acres of non-productive desert land and desolate swamps and turn them into productive land worth billions of dollars.

All of this can be remedied by the organization of the workers on the one hand and the producers and distributors on the other and less interference by fussy, incompetent boards and commissions functioning under government appointment and control.

Let us seek out and dispassionately consider methods and means best calculated to promote and advance the Defects and Remedies. task of more completely organizing those engaged in the cigar industry. Let us first consider some of the causes that militate against more effective organization work.

Too often some of our own members criticize the union and its laws, methods and activities, all to the detriment of the growth and stability of the union. Just criticism and well-grounded fault-finding are always permissible and should be encouraged within the confines of union meeting rooms. We believe in free speech and an open expression of thoughts and ideas, but we hold that unjust, unfair, and captious criticism of the union and its laws by our own members if indulged in in the presence of non-unionists is an abuse of free speech and is in violation of that fraternal spirit and faith in our union so absolutely necessary to increase the membership and promote the stability of the union. We, moreover, hold that this abuse is partly responsible for the fact that greater headway has not been made in organization work.

Let us next seek the remedy. Officers and members should dispute with facts the claim of non-unionists that high dues is one of the reasons that they don't join the union. This can be done by distributing wherever possible the circular supplied in any quantities by the International Union under the caption "To the Wage Earners in the Cigar Industry," and which was also published in the October issue of the Official Journal.

Let us resolve and then live up to the declaration that optimism and faith in the Cigar Makers International Union should take the place of pessimism and fault-finding in public and in the presence of non-unionists. A more persistent agitation for the exploitation and use of the union label should be indulged in. It would be helpful. The trade can be fully organized and with just a little energetic, systematic activity on the part of all concerned.

Census reports show a large percentage of increase in the number of women in industry. The war and its necessities were responsible to some extent, although there appears to be very little if any reduction in the ranks of women workers, even now when war's demand is over.

Aside from the wage question, much has been done and much more is demanded for the safety and comfort of our women workers. For all that has been done in the way of remedial legislation and for all that may be done in the future that may tend to make their lot easier and their conditions of labor more endurable women are indebted to organized labor.

Active co-operation of the workers themselves by their affiliation with the trade union of their particular craft will speed the day of still better and more equitable working conditions for them. The labor movement is the natural haven of the woman worker, and whether she remains in industry a few months, a few years, or a lifetime, it is to her best advantage to avail herself of its protection.

The successes of co-operative enterprise get very little space in the average newspaper, although its few failures are invariably given the widest publicity. Many captains of private enterprise have in the past loudly mouthed the sentiment that co-operation could not stand hard times.

The facts are that the percentage of failures during the past two years has been much lower in co-operative enterprises than it has been in private business. Failures in private business in 1922 will exceed 22,000. Co-operation is standing the business strain and has weathered the storm very nicely indeed.

We find among the many striking successes of co-operation the following which are especially interesting. Forty-five thousand wool growers saved approximately a million dollars last year by co-operative marketing. Co-operative apple growers of New York increased their receipts by almost one hundred per cent, and co-operative raisin growers in California get 49 cents on each dollar's worth sold where they formerly got but 37 cents.

Co-operative enterprise when organized and conducted in accordance with the principles of the Rochdale System and sound business, and not depending wholly on profit for its life, will succeed and much good will be accomplished for both producer and consumer.

The theory that a country can benefit from a reduction of wages is a mistake and the sooner it is discarded the better off we shall be collectively and individually. The supremacy of American products is not due to cheap labor. The skill, productivity and general excellence of American labor is due to the fact that his standard of living is high and that his wages are made to conform, in some measure at least, to that standard.

A general reduction in wages means an enormous economic loss to the nation and a reduction below a living wage, just and reasonable, strikes at the root of our national life. Seventy-three per cent of those gainfully employed in the United States are wage workers. Reducing the wages of this percentage of our population below the level demanded for a decent standard of living means retrogression instead of progress.

We recently heard a witty individual say that he was quite sure that he belonged to the Dubb family, that he had just paid Mr. Dough $12.00 for $2.00 worth of coal. It is said that out of every dollar spent by the consuming public for agricultural products approximately eighteen cents will go into the pockets of the farmer, leaving eighty-two cents for other purposes. The cost of hauling, a legitimate commission, and a fair profit on the part of the retailer will probably amount to, say, thirty cents, which leaves fifty-two cents, which goes into the pocket and bank account of pure, unadulterated profiteering.

Co-operation under the Rochedale system would save the most of this fifty-two cents which now goes to the profiteers, which could be divided between the farmer and the consuming public. Co-operation presents a ready and easy means whereby this widespread profiteering can be stopped. There are few countries in the world where co-operation has been less used and tried out than right here in our own country. We grumble and growl about profiteering, which increases the cost of living, robs us of our hard-earned money, and keeps us only a few jumps ahead of poverty, yet we neglect to put into operation the means that would rescue us from this degrading, frightfully unfair, foolish, and unnecessary robbery.

The outstanding point in the off-year election just held is the stinging rebuke of the electorate given those Straws that Show who championed the the Veering principles of reactionary of the Winds. privilege and oppression and incidentally the unmistakable demand for modification of the Volstead law.

Even the most ardent friend of recent congressional action will have a hard task in making the results, as shown by the ballots, conform to his hopes for future high-handed bureaucratic administration.

Labor has seemingly lost no friends in Congress and will without doubt gain added strength, if for no other reason than the fear that is engendered by its power as expressed in its determination to elect its friends and defeat its enemies. Legislators in both houses of Congress will heed the sentiment as expressed on November 7, 1922.

Our duty is now to watch carefully the action of the newly elected, as well as the hold-overs, on all measures that are appertaining to our cause, and, furthermore, to resolve that two years hence we shall use our every effort to complete the good work so well started, to the end that justice may reign over all branches of our government.

"The fact has been burned into our hearts that the only time a working man has the 'right to work' guaranteed him by the government is when he is under the protection of a strike-breaking agency," says the Journal of Electrical Workers and Operators.

"If this were not true, and if Mr. Harding really meant what he said, the government would have enforced the 'right to work' of the thousands, yes, millions, of jobless men who were compelled last winter to tramp the streets, because they did not have the 'consent' of a small set of men. At that time Mr. Harding and his imitators did nothing about sustaining the sacred right of those hungry and desperate men to work, eat and live.

"All this cant about a workers' 'right to work' is simply an attempt to uphold the disgraceful act of scabbing, make a strike-breaking agency out of the federal government and pave the road and try to take away his right to quit—to strike,

"So we must drive home to every wage-earner that the only rights he possesses are those he is strong enough to get and to keep—no more. At all times it is a question of organization."

Distributive co-operation if conducted under the Rochedale system is simple and safe. There are several people and concerns masquerading under the name of the co-operative movement, which are in reality stock jobbers and get-rich-quick concerns. Nobody ever gets rich or gains anything in these fake concerns except the promoters. It is true that the chap who closes his eyes and his mind's reason and blindly goes into these concerns reaps a whirlwind of regrets and sad experiences.

The public press, generally speaking, are or pretend to be always defending the rights and interests of the dear public. So much is said about the G. P.'s interests that the great public as a body have commenced to believe that what is said in advocacy of their interests is true. So much has been said about high wages that the public or a big portion of them actually believe that labor is to blame for all of their troubles. As a matter of fact coal dealers get two prices for the coal they sell. The public pay one price, while large concerns, railroads, public utilities, trusts, and so forth pay another price, which is always much lower than the price charged and which the general public pay. The dear public help to make up and pay for the difference in the price of coal supplied to those who can best afford and should pay as much if not more than the public pay.

The railroad labor board, whose members draw a salary of $10,000 per annum from the government, declares that a living wage is "a bit of mellifluous phraseology well calculated to deceive the unthinking."

Were its members personally subjected to a wage of twenty-three cents per hour and from such meager pay had they to raise a family, it's a pretty good guess that they would not long remain among those classified as "unthinking nor would they be "deceived" as to the rottenness of the wage decision forced upon them.

TRADE NOTES.

The No Tobacco League, recently in conference, found, among other things, that tobacco interests are "unpatriotic in time of war, deceiving people and destroying the efficiency of our men in arms for their own profit." The league's resolution went further by saying that the filthy weed "degenerates the whole human race" and asks that laws be passed banning it from restaurants, elevators and railways and prohibiting advertisements of it in magazines and newspapers.

Florida revenue stamp sales during September, 1922, were as follows:

Class—	Sales.	No. Cigars.
A.....	$ 36,560.86	9,140,330
B.....	16,659.18	2,776,530

D.....	64,764.64	5,397,054
E.....	3,630.92	242,062

The total stock of leaf tobacco for cigar wrappers and fillers held in bonded warehouses of the United States on August 31, 1922, was 5,676,751 pounds as compared with 5,806,998 held in the same period last year, a decrease of 530,247 pounds.

The 1922 production of tobacco in all districts of Cuba has been officially estimated at 304,000 bales, a decline of 50,000 bales, as compared with the 1921 crop, which totaled 355,000 bales. In addition, the present stock in Cuba is approximately 150,000 bales less than the amount of the holdings at this time last year. There are now about 300,000 bales in stock, against 450,000 bales held on September 15, 1921. The latter figure included 115,000 bales of the 1920 crop.

It is stated that the 1921 and 1922 crops are placed at 50 per cent and 57 per cent, respectively, below the 1920 crop, which consisted of approximately 700,000 bales.

The following comparative data of tax paid products as indicated by the sale of revenue stamps shows the number of cigars, by classification, manufactured during the month of September, 1922, as compared with the corresponding month of 1921.

The label is just as much a part of your union as your card. You wouldn't think of not carrying a card, would you? Then why not demand the label?

Eternity is almost beyond human comprehension; imagine, if you can, a period so long that it would allow a man to save enough cigar coupons to get a plane or a motorcycle.

When trade unionists demand the union label they help put other trade unionists to work. Is this not a union principle worth practicing? Be consistent. Do the thing you know you ought to do. Demand the label always.

Enslave a man and you destroy his ambitions, his enterprise, his capacity. In the constitution of human nature the desire of bettering one's condition is the mainspring of effort. The first touch of slavery snaps this spring.—Horace Mann.

If discipline is essential to an army's success, it is equally so to the success of trade unionism. The wage earners' only hope of successfully meeting the problems which confront them lies in their ability to act collectively. The greatest devotion to a cause, the clearest understanding of the principles involved, the soundest policy of action would all be of no value unless wage earners could act collectively, and wage earners' collective action is nothing more or less than obedience to the law, which trade unionists have enacted, and this obedience to the law is discipline.—Int. Molders' Journal.

CORRESPONDENCE

To Local Unions, Greeting:

Oneida, N. Y., Nov. 6, 1922.
 Union No. 12, Oneida, has received many inquiries of late by sister unions regarding conditions existing here at this time—after 16 months of locked out and forced out idleness on the part of the cigar manufacturers of this city.

The story is quickly and truthfully told:

We have two "scab" concerns in Oneida to contend against. With their doors wide open, beckoning and influencing union members to fall for them by promises of steady employment (on bunch machines) and a "group insurance" (for 25c per month, compulsory) IN LIEU OF A UNION CARD, and international death benefits as guaranteed by our Int'l Constitution. They (our scab manufacturers) also "jeer" at our members walking the street with union cards, which they claim will become "void" at the end of this year (1922). It is true that the benefits accruing after the 16 weeks limit are not very burdensome, but with all the above odds against us we are still making the supreme sacrifice for union principles and union conditions.

From the original number of 96 men that were locked out by one concern on July 14, 1921, only four scabs went back; and out of the 20 men locked out by the other concern only six scabs went back. Just think of this—only 10 scabs netted by our unfair bosses in 16 months of privation for unionism. Brothers, what does the above teach?

Yours against the open shop.

 Union No. 12, Oneida, N. Y.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 26, 1922.

To All Organized Labor, Greetings:

We desire to say to the members of your union that the firm of Janeway & Carpenter, manufacturers of wall paper, of New Brunswick, N. J., that our members employed by this concern have been locked out since August 1st and are still out fighting for recognition of their union.

We were advised by Mr. Janeway that he strongly favors the anti-union shop and will not recognize our union in any way.

We therefore call upon organized labor to give us their moral support in this fight. When purchasing or using wall paper insist upon union made wall paper.

National Print Cutters' Ass'n of America,

Boston, Mass., Oct. 31, 1922.

Enclosed find circular the Union Label Section is sending to the local unions of Boston and the Central Labor Unions of the state of Massachusetts.

With best wishes, I am,

JAMES A. DOWD, Rec. Sec.

To the Officers and Members of Local Unions.

Greetings: Trade unionists, awake! Throw off this lethargy! Be consistent. You have a weapon in the Union Label that will organize the worker, maintain the shorter work day and improve not only your standard of living, but provide for your old age.

When you buy a cigar see that the Blue Label of the Cigarmakers' International Union is upon the box. (The color is light blue.) They do not cost any more. Look for it! Ask for it! Trade unionism means more than paying your dues.

Fraternally and sincerely yours,
 Union Label Section of the Boston Central Labor Union, James A. Dowd, Rec. Sec.

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 31, 1922.

In proposing the amendment that appears in this issue of the Journal, Local Union No. 549 feels that by adopting same it would cause the endorsement and passage of a good number of necessary amendments to the Constitution, Sec. 213 as it now reads contradicts itself. We believe this amendment to be a proper one if the unions are to take the interest they should on all amendments proposed, by taking action on same whether in favor or against them, and so reporting.

 Cor. Sec.

REPORT OF ORGANIZERS

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 3, 1922.

I started my work in Buffalo with the object in view of creating a better demand for union label cigars. I visited union meetings, addressing them and requesting them to purchase union label cigars. The meetings were not well attended owing to the street car strike, which has been in existence since July 1st, the jitney service being crippled by the judges fining the operators from $50 to $250, and also by court injunctions. I also visited the retail cigar dealers and succeeded in getting quite a number of them to again place the union label cigar on sale. I spoke at meetings of the striking street car men and the railway shop crafts. In making the rounds of the retail cigar dealers in the last few days quite a few of them tell me that there is an increased demand for union label cigars, which is surely gratifying. When the shop crafts' strike and the street car men's strike are settled I am sure that there will be a great improvement as far as union labeled cigars are concerned in this city of Buffalo.

Yours fraternally,

CHARLES H. STEVENS,
 General Organizer.

Organizers Sol Sontheimer and J. P. Keenen have resigned.

To have the respect of your fellows you must have self-respect. Demand the union label.

The union label is a protest against the exploitation of women and children.

Spend money earned under union conditions only for union-labeled goods.

Trades-unionists always give preference to the union label, shop card and working button.

Do you believe in collective bargaining? Then demand the union label.

REFERENDUM VOTE FOR SEVENTH VICE-PRESIDENT.

Total number of votes cast, 5,043. Number of votes cast for E. J. Stack, 2,360; number of votes cast for E. V. Defibaugh, 1,113. As no candidate received a majority of all votes cast a second election was ordered. In compliance with the law (Section 46), Messrs. E. J. Stack of Portland, Ore., and E. V. Defibaugh of Wheeling, W. Va., having received the greatest number of votes, were placed on the second ballot.

The reports of the following unions were received too late to be counted: 229, 324, 219, 218, 146, 142, 112, 107, 45, 297, 325, 251, 46, 95, 336, 376, 468, 472. The votes from these unions would have changed the result if received in time.

The Proposed New State Constitution.
The proposed new state constitution as drafted by constitutional convention of Illinois is a document replete with covert phrases and hidden meanings.

In 1870, when the present constitution was adopted, the people were given an opportunity to vote on nine separate propositions, any of which they might accept or reject. No such latitude of choice is offered to the people now, however, and when they enter the polls on Dec. 12 they may only decide on the single issue of adopting as a whole or defeating as a whole, the proposed new constitution.

If the voters of Illinois ratify the proposed new constitution, all the people of our state will soon find themselves enmeshed in a net work of legalism beyond the understanding of any person except the nine individuals who, as members of the supreme court, will be the sovereigns of Illinois—except insofar as they will be controlled by political bosses to whose desires they must give most careful attention unless they themselves can become the political party dictators.

Unequal representation in the state legislature is provided for in the proposed new draft, effecting not only the representation of Cook county in the senate, but also representation in every industrial center throughout the state in the lower house by a peculiar and unstable and insecure method of apportionment on the basis of votes cast in a given election instead of population, citizenship or registered voters.

The New Sovereign Power.

The members of the judiciary department will be made the sovereign rulers of the people of Illinois if the proposed new constitution is ratified. The grant of power proposed for the judges of the state is far greater than that ever suggested in any other American state and even greater than any judicial power exercised in any country in the world since the middle ages. The nine men who are to serve as members of the supreme court may assume jurisdiction in any sort of controversy which may arise between citizens, and may appoint assistants (Sec. 110) who will have such judicial and other powers as the supreme court may prescribe. What is the limit of this peculiar extension of judicial jurisdiction? That is a question that those who are to exercise the power—that is to say, the judges—will decide for themselves and against their decision the people will have no appeal.

In another section of the proposed new constitution (Sec. 123) it confers upon the judiciary department a new and strange jurisdiction which has never been conferred by any constitution. It is a section which gives to the courts the unrestricted authority to go as far as the supreme court may please in the making of so-called declaratory judgments in which no consequential relief is sought and upon this basis to make binding declarations of right. Thus the supreme court can at any moment authorize the judges of the state to take jurisdiction in great numbers of disputes and controversies between citizens which are not now regarded as the proper subject of judicial action and the supreme court may further authorize the local courts as well as itself assuming authority to pass judgment on the basis of controversies that some one believes may arise at some future time but which have not actually taken place. No more cunning scheme to enable the predatory interests of the state to shackle the people could be devised. The power to do this is conferred upon the court without any restriction whatsoever.

Taxes.

It is agreed on all sides that the main reason which brought about the calling of a constitutional convention was the widespread dissatisfaction with the rigid and inflexible uniformity provision of the present constitution as affecting the power of taxation. Despite the fact that some years ago the voters of Illinois, by an overwhelming majority, decided in favor of extending the power of the state legislature in the matter of taxation so as to permit classification of property for taxation purposes, the constitutional convention adopted the precise language (Sec. 141) of that part of the present taxation section against which the people complained. No income tax can be levied against the huge incomes of the great corporations under the proposed new constitution unless the meager earnings of the workers be also taxed. An arbitrary limited exemption of $1,000 for the head of a family, plus $200 for each child under the age of 16 years, is all that is allowed the man of family. In case of other persons the exemption to the wage earner is limited to $500. Thus no law providing for the taxing of huge incomes of great mercantile corporations would be constitutional unless that law also provides for a tax on the income of the $12 a week sales girls.

Banks.

A section of the proposed new constitution which prohibits the state from assuming any liability for any banking business (Sec. 49) is designed to prevent the state legislature from enacting laws to protect bank depositors. Its purpose is clearly to prevent the passage of legislation in Illinois already enacted in several states which provides for guaranty funds to be deposited with the state authorities for the protection of bank depositors.

Three times the citizens of Illinois have by an overwhelming majority declared in favor of the initiative and referendum. The legislature declined to act under the present constitution and the legislature may continue to decline to act under the proposed new constitution. Thus the relationship of the people to constitutional amendments remains unchanged by any provision of the proposed new constitution.

Other Dangerous Provisions.

The Bill of Rights, the most precious heritage of the common people has been seriously multiplied by the constitutional convention. As previously stated, one section has been used to convey limitless power to the judges. Another section (Sec. 8) has been changed so as to empower the attorney general to seize and hold citizens at will by merely filing information without even being required to show probable cause in a court of record. The section which now provides the right of bail has been changed (Sec. 7) so as to leave that right entirely to the discretion of the judge. Through the striking out of one word in the sentence on the right of trial by jury—the word "heretofore," (Sec. 5). The supreme court under its rule making power in another part of the constitution, is given power (Sec. 93) to authorize judges to intrude themselves upon the juries and to alter the methods of jury trial in many respects.

The right to the writ of habeas corpus (Sec. 7) in which the question of procedure figures very largely, is also seriously limited by the powers granted to the courts in the sections empowering the courts to prescribe their own regulations without restriction by statute law.

We also regard as extremely unwise the qualifying clause which has been attached to that section of the bill of rights providing for the freedom of conscience and which proposed to authorize the reading of any version of the old or new testament in the public schools (Sec. 3) without comment. It is significant to note that the change in this respect was inserted as a qualification upon religious liberty and was not attached to the article on public education. Its effect can only be to arouse religious controversy which the courts would sooner or later be called upon to decide under the vast accord of jurisdiction to the judiciary department. There are many versions of the old and new testaments, some of them used exclusively by certain denominations to the exclusion of other versions with substantial differences in text. In the course of time it is certain that the use of some version of the Bible by some teacher will be questioned and then will begin the entry of the judiciary department upon the religious field.

There are some significant omissions in the proposed new constitution as compared with the present constitution. Some of these affect the power of the legislature to regulate corporations whether as organized under the laws of Illinois or the laws of other states and doing business in Illinois. One of those omitted sections relates to the power of eminent domain over railroads and other corporations. Others are those which now prohibit creation of purely fictitious values. Such omissions furnish ample evidence that the constitutional convention has given little real consideration to the people of Illinois. The legislative power has been seriously limited in other respects and legislation providing for old age pensions or pensions of any kind in which state funds are to be used, will not be constitutional (Sec. 157) if the new draft is ratified. We believe also that no law providing for any state insurance fund in connection with the workmen's compensation act can be enacted under the proposed new constitution.

There are many other points which require the most careful scrutiny of the citizens of Illinois. We have, however, covered some of the most dangerous provisions of the proposed new basic law. In doing this we have used the present constitution as the measure by which to pass judgment upon the proposed new constitution and we have no hesitancy in saying that it is infinitely better for the citizens of Illinois to uphold the present constitution with all its faults than to accept the fearful proposals offered to them by the constitutional convention. Here and there in the new draft we find sections which, standing alone, seem to offer some slight improvements, but even those are restricted and in some cases nullified by other sections.

Action by Local Unions and Central Bodies.

The freedom of the citizens of Illinois is in serious danger. It therefore becomes the duty of every trade unionist in the state to enter the fight against the proposed new constitution and to subordinate all other activities in one supreme effort to save the people of the state.

Every local union should hold special meetings as quickly as possible for the purpose of discussing the terms of the proposed new constitution as compared with the provisions of the present basic law and should undertake the printing of notices and other circulars advising their members and all other liberty loving citizens to go to the polls on Dec. 12 for the purpose of defeating the proposed new law.

The books and accounts of this union are in a bad condition, due to indifference and lack of interest in union affairs by the few members remaining here. No meetings have been held for some time and as a result the secretary was at liberty to conduct the business of the union to suit himself. REPORT OF SPECIAL FINANCIER.

Union No. 488, Middletown, N. Y.
Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 15, 1922.

The books and accounts of this union were pretty much jumbled. The year 1917 was nicely conducted; after that there were many errors, commissions and omissions, that appeared questionable. Reports sent to Int. office were misleading and caused some serious troubles. All this could have been avoided had the finance committee done their duty. They were such in name only. All vouchers were properly executed, but remained in their original book form and none signed by recipient of benefits or other expense. Ledger not posted properly and no accounts kept of several members, some running over two years. No treasurer's account book kept for about two years. Gave the officers proper instructions as to their duties, how to post the ledger and other financial books. I received the promises of better work in the future.

Statement as follows:
Balance on hand last exam., Jan. 1, 1917.$ 267.94
Reported receipts to Oct. 1, 1922 8,448.82
Due to Int. Union on this exam..... 56.37

Total$8,768.13
Expense to Oct. 1, 1922 8,291.18

Int. balance should be Oct. 1, 1922$ 476 95
Funds of union Oct. 1, 1922:

Distant Pastures Look Green to Organized Labor's Critics.

"Most of our radicals, even those who derive their entire socialist gospel from the columns of the New York Nation and the New Republic, are accustomed to gauge the American labor movement by the European yardstick," says D. N. Shub, writing in Justice, official magazine of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, on "The A. F. of L. and Its Radical Critics."

"They will not understand that the American labor movement is developing according to its own laws; that the problems which confront the American labor movement are different from the European and must be solved in a totally different manner.

"Not only the communists, but many of the 'right' socialists in America cannot still wear themselves away from the idea that the labor movement is not a self-sufficing phenomenon with an objective of its own, but that it is a means for another end. In the eyes of the first, this end is socialism, while the others believe it to be socialism.

"No matter what we may think of the trade union movement and the role the unions might play in the reconstruction process of society upon socialist precepts, it is time, nevertheless, that we recognize the fact once and for all that the object for which unions are formed and maintained by the masses of their members is not to reconstruct society but to improve the condition of the working masses today.

"Individual leaders and theoreticians of the labor movement will have the right to think and believe that the ultimate aim of the labor movement is the abolition of wage slavery. They may even write this down in black and white in the by-laws of the trade unions. The working masses who belong to the union, however, care little for the distant future. To them the union is valuable inasmuch as it improves their conditions right here and now, or at least in the very near future.

"Such is the point of view with regard to labor unions not only of the conservative workers of America, but also of the socialist workers of Germany, France and other capitalistic countries in Europe.

"Whoever recognizes the importance of improving the condition of the workers today—and this is recognized now by even the extreme radicals—must accept the trade union movement as it is and judge it inasmuch as it fulfills its own purpose.

"That union is progressive which can best defend the interests of the workers in a given industry, regardless whether its secretary or president believe in the dictatorship of the proletariat or not."

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also, as per section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member, if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

Notice of the special assessment of $1 on all 30c and 60c members and 50c on Class B members, in compliance with Section 92 (a) of the Constitution, is herewith given. This assessment takes effect September 25, 1922, and may be paid in two weekly installments. New initiates who have not been members for four months are exempt from all assessments. All who join after September 25 are exempt from payment of the September assessment. Class B members don't have to pay any International assessments until they have been members for six months. Forty-cent beneficiary members don't have to pay the special strike fund assessment. Members out of work are not exempt from this assessment.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

Wm. Standcumbe appealed against 97, Boston, for limiting the week's work to five days. The constitution, in Section 195, provides that "Every local union shall have power to regulate the hours of labor in its respective locality, but in no case shall they exceed eight hours per day." While this section gives the right to local unions to limit the hours per day not to exceed eight, it in no wise gives any local union the right to limit the days per week that members may work. The appeal is sustained.

Wm. Standcumbe appealed against Union 97, Boston, reference the manner of calling a special meeting, and the action of the president thereon, for the purpose of voting upon an amendment to the by-laws limiting the working days of the union to five per week. Since the question is settled in the foregoing decision no action seems necessary upon this appeal.

Jacob Meese appealed against 97, Boston, for suspending him for non-payment of dues. The member presents extenuating circumstances which warrant the sustaining of his appeal. This is done without prejudice to the secretary, who performed his duty in the matter.

F. E. Bardsley appealed against 297, Canton, for refusing his claim for strike benefit. The appeal is not sustained.

Charles Huberman appealed against 97, Boston, for refusing to permit the men employed in his shop to work on Saturday. The appeal is sustained.

Fred A. Goulet appealed against 49, Springfield, for compelling him to return illegal kick benefit drawn. The appeal is not sustained.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

The amendment of 97, Boston, as published in the September issue, as follows:

The first paragraph of Section 2 of the Constitution shall read: The next convention of the International Union shall be held on the first Monday in the month of May, 1923.

Received the endorsement of Unions 337, Key West; 374, Pekin; 251, New York; 107, Erie; 399, Vincennes; 118, Peoria; 130, Saginaw; 12, Oneida, and 389, New York.

Not having received the required number of endorsements it cannot be submitted to a vote of local unions.

The amendment of 133, Brooklyn, as published in the October issue, as follows:

Strike out Sections 203-204 up to and including in said locality. Strike out the whole Sections 206-206-207 and insert in lieu thereof: No more than one union shall exist in any locality. Section to read: No more than one union in any locality: District of Porto Rico to remain the same as in the Constitution.

Received the endorsement of 44, St. Louis, and 339, New York.

Union No. 500, Tampa, proposes the following amendment: Amend Sec. 213 of the Constitution by inserting after the words "International President" on line six, the following: Their endorsement or not of each and all amendments proposed. Strike out all on line seven from the words "but no unions" up to "by circular" on line nine, and insert: Union shall be fined $5.00 also for not taking action on an amendment submitted by the International President by circular. No other change. Sec. 213 as amended would read: Sec. 213. Each local union shall have the right to propose, through the columns of the Official Journal, amendments to the International Constitution. Each union is required to act upon every amendment at their meeting next following the receipt of the Journal containing such amendments and report to the International President "their endorsement or not of each and all amendments proposed." Unions failing to comply with this provision shall be fined $5.00. Unions shall be fined $5.00 also for not taking action on an amendment submitted by the International President by circular. Any amendment receiving the endorsement of at least twenty unions shall be submitted to a vote of local unions within thirty days, and if adopted shall take effect and remain in force from the first day of the month succeeding the official publication of its adoption.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all international assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

UNION NOTES

Union notes by 97, Boston: Have you read and analyzed the circular issued by our International President?—We need a convention; never was there a greater need of an exchange of views on conditions and a means of getting back all we lost than now.—Second our amendment.—Editorial in November Journal under the caption of "A Sick Industrial System" should be read by every member of the C. M. I. U. of A.—The weather affects sales of cigars.—Strippers should have a charter from the C. M. I. U. of A.; it would bring all parties in interest into closer relation.—The blue label is a means toward an end. Can't you see it?—If every member of our organization would realize the future welfare of his craft depended on himself we would soon be better off.—If all funds of local unions were deposited in the International office the interest would be a great help and there would be less deficiencies.—If restrictions on immigration laws are repealed the protective tariff will go with it.—If my boss is protected I want to be protected, too.—Industries with a protective tariff please take notice.—The wonderful things that the correspondents of one of the tobacco papers don't know about Boston union are surprising to our membership.—Boston Central Labor Union had a ball in the largest hall in the city; cost of hall $600, and was a brilliant success.—Boston has a credit union run by 97, one of the best in the state.—Label Section of the Boston Central Labor Union has sent out a strong circular to all affiliated unions to look for and demand our blue label.—Massachusetts will have a free state university. State Board of Education and most college professors favor it. The movement is growing by leaps and bounds.—Judge-made law must go if democracy is to be preserved.—Boston Central Labor Union established the first Trade Union College and has as good a faculty as Harvard.—And don't forget when commodities are raised 100 per cent and wages 50 per cent that is counterfeit wages.—Union 97 gave $400 a week to the Textile Workers of Manchester. Their fight is the fight of organized labor. Manchester Union gave them $1,500 a week. That is going some. 192 is on the map.—Throw your broad upon the waters and it will return ten fold.—School bags and traveling satchels have a union label on them when union made.—Election day should be a legal holiday or be held on a legal holiday. Think it over.—Read the Journal, and read it all, and then you will be sure to read my screed.—This is modest.—Henry Abrahams.

Adam Lansche is requested to communicate with Union 165, Philadelphia, Pa.

Make It a "Merry Christmas" for Organized Labor.

November, 1922.

To All Organized Labor, Greeting:

During this season of the year every one is more or less interested in Christmas shopping. A great amount of money will be spent. This fact gives the wide-awake trades unionists food for thought, as they realize the golden opportunity to expend their Christmas savings for the products of organized labor.

Cigars, tobacco, cigarettes, writing paper, slippers, collars, shirts, underwear, gloves, hosiery, suspenders, belts and neckties can all be obtained with the union label, and always prove most acceptable gifts.

Father may need a new overcoat, raincoat, a new hat or pair of shoes. Supply his need and watch for his look of pleasure when he sees the union label. That will make the gift doubly precious to him.

Brother may long for a new razor, a new traveling bag, or a musical instrument of some kind. Many housewives would appreciate a new stove or range or a new mattress. The thrifty housekeeper would appreciate a barrel of union flour. A union-made desk or table will supply a long-felt want of many.

In making all purchases your patronage should be given to those stores employing union clerks and union drivers.

Many churches engage an orchestra to assist the choir at Christmas. If you have the true trade union spirit you will see that union musicians are engaged by those in charge.

You will see that all Christmas programs are printed on union water-marked paper and that the label of the Allied Printing Trades appears on them.

Should any of the Christmas season entertainments include refreshments, see that union bread, cake, meat and soft drinks are served by a union waiter.

By carrying out these suggestions you will make it a "Merry Christmas" for many of your fellow workers in the American labor movement, as by reason of your patronage more of the organized workers will be employed.

With best wishes, I am,

Fraternal yours,

JOHN J. MANNING,

Secretary-Treasurer, Union Label Trades Department.

Union Label Section. Boston Central Labor Union.

To the Officers and Members of Local Unions.

Greetings—Trade unionists, awake! Throw off this lethargy! Be consistent! You have a weapon in the union label that will organize the worker, maintain the shorter workday and improve not only your standard of living but provide for your old age. When you buy a cigar see that the blue label of the Cigarmakers' International Union is upon the box. The color is light blue. They do not cost any more. Look for it! Ask for it! Trades unionism means more than paying your dues.

UNION LABEL SECTION OF THE BOSTON
CENTRAL LABOR UNION.

A Merry Christmas and a Happy
New Year to all.

The national or international union is country wide in its ramifications, activities, and usefulness. Its pathway to greater success is often imperiled by narrow-minded local selfishness. It is often hurt by those who cannot see beyond their own narrow environment. China hid itself behind the historical Chinese wall, which the sun of progress and enlightened civilization could not penetrate. It did not commence to properly function in a manner that was progressive or enlightened until the wall was scaled or thrown down.

Any local union which attempts to hem itself in to any given locality by the wall of human selfishness will sooner or later destroy itself. There are no tariff walls between the states that make up the federal government and the Republic of the United States. The cheap goods in an unorganized, cheap-labor state flow without interruption over the invisible state boundary line and find lodgement in the show case and finally in the mouths of the consumers in the community which has blindly sought to hedge itself in with union rules and regulations.

Every community has a right to and should strive to get the very best wages and conditions they possibly can. We glory in their effort to do so. However, in their efforts to do this they should not lose sight of facts and conditions over which they have no absolute control. We can no more succeed under a system of isolation and laws limited to one particular community than the state could if it adopted similar tactics.

The only thing to do because it is the wise and only practical thing is to measure outstanding and outlying conditions with the yardstick of calm, logical reason and to apply fully such measures and things as will stand up to the measure from all existing, surrounding facts. The paramount issue with us is to build up regardless of what the cost may be. Organize the unorganized districts. This can be done with the expenditure of a little time, energy and money. If the union assumes to be the custodian of the best interests of its fellows then we must extend our lines of ramifications and activity beyond local jurisdiction to that of our fellows in the industry employed in all unorganized districts, and if we fail to do so we are not very good keepers of our own best interests.

One of the great outstanding questions that demands attention and solution is the transportation and distribution of the agricultural products to the industrial centers and into the homes of the workers who are the great mass of the consumers, and the transportation and distribution of the manufactured products from the industrial to the agricultural districts.

The National Bank of Commerce, New York, which issues a monthly bulletin called "The Commerce Monthly" in a recent issue says that "distribution costs should come down. The entire elimination of some types of organization may be necessary and the consolidation of the existing agencies in manufacture, warehouses, and selling may be required to secure results. The more direct the line of dealing between the original producer and the final consumer the more nearly shall we come to an effective solution of the question."

William G. Shepherd, in an address to the annual session of the association of national advertisers, says: "For every three farmers in the United States there is some one behind a counter. For every four workmen in the factories of the United States there is a store clerk or a store manager or a store owner waiting to sell what the workmen produce. We think we have a lot of railroad men in the United States, but it takes as many store clerks standing behind counters to sell goods to us as it does men to carry these goods in transportation, to keep the railroads in repair and the rolling stock in good condition. For every twenty-two families in the United States there is a retail store. Struggling under this heavy burden these American families have discovered that the job cannot be done by having only one member of the family at work."

Here we have then the evidence of a great banking institution and of Mr. Shepherd. Neither is attached to the labor movement and neither can be classed as a labor agitator. The greater the cost of transportation and the greater the toll of the profiteers, the higher will be the cost of living. This is a plain and simple proposition. The remedy is plain and simple and within our grasp.

Time after time we have pointed out in these columns that the terrific waste and added cost of the middle men and profiteers is one of the fundamental causes of the high cost of living. The general labor movement has always held to this same view, and for just once in a big issue a conservative bank under the shadow of Wall Street is in accord with what we have been called anarchists and disturbers for saying, lol these many years.

There must be some means found whereby fair wages made possible through trade union membership and activity may be safeguarded against the profiteering and unnecessary middle men, and there will be no security until this is done.

There are several sane, safe and sensible means whereby the present rotten system can be changed for the better and its evils ultimately ended. The farmers are well organized and have their official organs and their official spokesmen. They are great sufferers from the excess number of middlemen and profiteers. They can and should build or rent elevators and warehouses in all industrial centers and establish agencies for the purpose of getting their products into the hands of the consumers at the least possible cost of handling.

The workers in the industrial centers can and should establish distributive and co-operative stores and buy direct from the farmers' established agencies and sell to the masses under the non-profit, Rochdale co-operative system. We shall have to protect our union wages by some such means from the profiteering middle men.

The inauguration of the company union, a plan conceived by the employer to offset legitimate trade union or-

The Company Shop Union. organization, continues in various industries. It is one of the pet sops of unscrupulous cigar manufacturers graciously "given" to their workers.

Schemes for alleged benefits, questions of shop regulation and the supposed representation of the workers in matters pertinent to wages, hours of labor, etc., are varied, but they are all cut from the same shoddy material.

The vicious hypocrisy of the whole scheme is so patent that it is almost a mystery how any thinking worker can or will fall for it. One of the many weaknesses found in any of the shop union plans is the fact that irrespective of the method adopted in any particular shop, it is the expression of that shop only, the workers being denied the benefits of communication and agreement with their fellow workers in the same general industry who are employed in other shops whose interests are identical and whose needs are common.

The hollow pretense of "democratic" control falls flat when we find that their elaborate laws, usually drafted by a shrewd corporation lawyer, provide that the company is after all in full control, fixing wages and the hours of labor and retaining absolutely with no redress for the workers the right to do as they please.

The trades union movement is the only agency working for the expression of the desires of the workers as a whole. Employment in industry engenders common interests, and whatever of good that may be secured through organization must needs find a common outlet not bounded by the artificial barriers of factory walls. Democracy in industry cannot be secured nor can it be even successfully grounded until the entire trade or industry is taken as a basic unit.

The woman worker is forced into the industrial life of the nation by relentless greed, exploited to the limit and Organization, the Hope of the Woman Worker beyond by the unscrupulous employer. The trade union is the only solution for the problem that confronts her and it is her only hope of emancipation.

The purposely misapplied term, "the weaker sex," is held over her head, and under this baleful untruth stalks injustice, forcing her to work the maximum of hours for the minimum of wages. In non-union factories she is hired as an individual, treated as a serf. She knows nothing of what other workers are paid, has no redress when work is unfairly distributed and is subjected to a system of "fines" for real or fancied waste of material or for any infraction of arbitrary working rules. Her hours of labor are whatever her employer chooses to enforce except in a few notable instances where the state interferes by laws limiting the hours of labor for woman workers, and she is oftentimes dependent on the whim or fancy of her employer or foreman for her chance to work at all.

Following is a part of the findings of a Survey Committee in the state of Oregon, and it may be so well applied to the entire question of women in industry that we take the liberty of quoting at some length:

"Owing to the lack of organization among women workers and the secrecy with which their wage schedules are guarded, there are absolutely no standards among them. Their wages are determined for the most part, by the will of the employer without reference to efficiency or length of service on the part of the worker. This condition is radically unjust.

"The wages paid to women workers in most occupations are miserably inadequate to meet the cost of living at the lowest standards consistent with the maintenance of the health and morals of the workers.

"The present conditions of labor for women in many industries are shown by this report to be gravely detrimental to their health; and since most women wage earners are potential mothers, the future health of the race is menaced by these unsanitary conditions."

Compare these deplorable conditions depicted so truthfully in the above report with those that exist in shops or factories under the banner of trades union organization.

Here we find, not so many individuals, but a group of woman workers educated to the fact that "in union there is strength." Gone is the hopeless suppression under which she worked as an individual. In its place we find the happier, freer attitude, born when the worker knows that her wrongs will be righted through an appeal to her union. The worker's comfort becomes a question to be carefully considered and the work is distributed fairly and paid for at an agreed rate.

Women in industry, individually weak, must learn the lesson of collective strength before they can expect a place in the sun.

From present indications the curtain will soon be rung down on Governor Allen's Farce Comedy, the Kansas Industrial Court. The Allen's Industrial Court Doomed.

Governor-elect, J. M. Davis, elected despite every effort of the reactionary forces of the Allen clan, has made the following statement publicly outlining his position as regards the obnoxious "Can't Strike Law," hailed by labor haters generally as the one piece of legislation that would eventually destroy organized labor.

The newly elected Governor says:

"The industrial court law has been unfair and unjust and there is no need or a place for it in Kansas. There have been only a few cases before it and none of them has been settled satisfactorily.

"The state needs officers who will arrest the wealthy man as quickly as the poor man and then the public will respect officers of the law and laws will be obeyed.

"Obnoxious laws cannot exist as long as I am governor. The industrial court law is one of them."

With these declarations enforced Kansas will be getting back to "normalcy" in so far at least as to the application of Americanism in industrial disputes.

Discipline is absolutely necessary to achieve success both as individuals and more particularly as it applies to associated efforts in our unions. To achieve the height of efficiency the individual must discipline himself. There can be no success in the labor organization unless there is absolute discipline. On the economic field of operation, in the mine, mill, and workshop, the individuals standing alone are unable to make any headway in so far as wages and hours of labor are concerned. When the workers join the union it is for the high purpose of securing better wages, shorter hours, and better living conditions, for all, and if they work in harmony and are guided by the rule of common sense, fair dealing, and discipline they are always successful. No one sacrifices his liberties or his rights when he joins the union. There is no way by which liberty, freedom, and justice, fair wages, and decent working and living conditions can be obtained except through the unions. Discipline being necessary to success, it becomes of paramount importance.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Any business, public service or otherwise, that does not provide a wage sufficient for those engaged in it to support life and to provide as well reasonable comfort has no right to exist. It is a parasite living on the industrial body. Service to the whole people at the expense of the comparatively few workers who provide it is wrong in principle and unjust in practice. The day must come and come soon when dividends, usually paid on a stock issue largely water, must be curtailed and the difference in business earnings diverted to the pay envelope which is, after all, the back bone of the nation.

One subject always in order in regular meetings, executive board meetings and wherever and whenever opportunity presents itself is that of organization of the cigar industry.

It makes no difference whether trade conditions are good, fair or bad, the necessity of educating and organizing is of prime importance.

Persistent effort directed at any objective is bound to meet with success and with all of us, collectively and individually, keeping everlastingly at the task of organization we are bound to see gratifying results within the near future.

The realization of the hopes, aims and ambitions of labor is bounded only by the limitations of organization. All essential matters appertaining to the general welfare of the workers in the cigar industry are wholly dependent on the degree of organization we are able to effect.

WANTED—Plenty of all-round good union boosters. Steady work and good wages. Apply at the next regular meeting of the union.

The booster is a credit to himself, to the unions, and to all mankind, and is a joy forever.

A member of the union who is a malicious knocker against the union and its officers and works overtime is entitled to the contempt of the cur in a convention of yellow dogs. He is doing more to tear down the unions than the worst non-union boss in existence.

If we subsidized the so-called ship marine for the purpose as stated, of enabling our ships to compete with the ships of foreign nations, the foreign nations would immediately subsidize their ship owners, reduce wages or otherwise cheapen the cost of shipping by water. We, in that event, being bound by a twenty-year contract on the cost plus plan, would have to increase our subsidy to the American ships. Such a system leads nowhere, except to piling up taxes on the innocent, burden-bearing masses. Some are bold enough to say that the question of subsidizing our ships originated in foreign countries. The idea is that if America subsidized its ships it would give these foreign ship owners an excuse to go to their own government and demand an equal subsidy for their ships. The whole system of subsidizing anything is economically and financially unsound and perniciously vicious and should under no circumstances be tolerated.

The self-constituted leader who won't "play" because he can not have his own way in the union is in most cases only a feeble-minded member and a poor sport.

The non-unionists, open-shoppers, and half-baked economists state that the union rules and union prices destroy the opportunity of individuals to climb to the top. Union rules and union prices may be bad for 1 per cent of the workers but they are good for the rest of the workers. Surely what is good for 99 per cent and bad for only 1 per cent of the workers is just, humane, and fair, and is economically sound.

If the union is not what it should be in the eyes of some of the self-claimed wise-acs it is chiefly the fault of those who control by their votes.

The fault-finder is always very active. He doesn't know how to construct. There is no constructive thought in his head; hence the only thing left for him to do is to attempt to tear down. At each regular meeting he exercises his vocal organs in his favorite occupation of tearing down.

The chap who says "The Union is all right but," and then proceeds to tell why in his estimation it is all wrong, is standing in his own light by refusing to come into the union, or, if he is in, by not becoming a booster and helping to make it what he thinks it should be in order to be all right without any buts, ifs and ands.

No secession movement ever proved successful especially in our own country, with one possible exception and that movement is a long way from being wholly established on a permanent basis. The time will come and in the near future when the people engaged in the industry (the exception referred to) will be reunited and working in one harmonious unit.

The secession movements never did accomplish any good or gain anything except for the employing classes, and what has been gained for the employer in these movements has been to the loss of the workers.

If the impatient chap who leads in secession movements and those who follow would devote one-half the enthusiasm, effort, and energy to correcting any fancied or real grievances in the parent organization it would be better for all workers concerned.

The election of congressmen, etc., is over. The organized and unorganized workers find themselves plugging on precisely as they were prior to the election in so far as wages and hours of labor are concerned. Such has been the history for past generations. In the final analysis our labor organizations through united action and collective bargaining are the means through which we obtain better wages, shorter hours, and better working and living conditions. Let us pay our undivided attention from now on to ELECTING MEMBERS TO THE UNION. We need it; they need it; and society at large will be better off in the long run with the workers organized and making good wages such as will enable them to live in decency and comfort. Our platform is "Organize the Unorganized."

Education and toleration for the just rights and logical opinions of others if applied and religiously adhered to in the labor movement lead to higher standards.

The injunction as used by the Federal courts of the United States is not an instrument of equity, but rather a weapon of oppression.

Why is it that so many trade unionists lose their nerve, so loudly extolled in the meeting room, when they fail to demand the union label when making purchases?

If the labor movement falls short of being as perfect as it might be you can generally trace the chief reason for this straight to the door of those who are most prone to find fault with the way the unions are run.

Distribution eats up 50 cents out of each dollar the consumer pays for bread, according to figures compiled by the Joint Commission on Agricultural Inquiry during its investigation of the high cost of living. The farmer receives 29.6 cents in the local market for wheat needed to produce $1 worth of bread.

If in our homes we employ union workers in all trades represented by our purchases, and if these other workers do the same in their homes we employ each other to our mutual advantage. Besides this all of us are building up organized labor for our future protection and advancement.

But if we in our homes and they in their homes buy non-union articles thus discharging union workers and hiring non-union workers, we are killing ourselves and doing an act of the utmost treason to the union movement that we have taken oath that we would support.

There is an old story of a man who began to shingle his house in a rainstorm. When asked why he did not shingle it before it rained, he replied that it did not need shingling until it rained. This is the same reasoning that prompts some wage earners to seek the benefits of unionism only when a wage reduction is at hand. Then, having given nothing to the union, he seeks everything from it, and if he fails to get it, he says the Union is no good. In this case not the employer, nor the union, but the worker himself decided his own case. His own indifference betrayed his own interest and cost him dearly.—Shoe Workers' Journal.

When the spy or detective is unable to obtain control, he assumes the role of fault-finder. He criticizes everything or anything the local or international officers may do or attempt to do. He does his work cleverly—all the time appearing to hold a sincere interest in the workers' welfare. He elaborates upon the many sacrifices he has contributed to the cause of unionism. He details with disgust the mistakes made by those in authority, at the same time emphasizing his own virtues. He keeps up a constant nagging against all laws and regulations, opposes all constructive propositions, classes them as reactionary, encourages racial and religious prejudices, does anything and everything that will cause unrest, breed dissension and bring about disruption—all the time covering his true purposes with a cloak of deceit.—Electrical Workers' Journal.

The 1922 price Connecticut shade-grown wrappers, without streaks, spots or discolorations, are quoted at $4.25 to $4.75 per pound.

Kimball of Cornell University in an address at the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

The simple announcement that an article bears the union label is all the advertisement needed by the consumer who cares for principle as well as for price.

CORRESPONDENCE

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec., 1932.
To the Officers and Members of Local Unions:
Unions 87, 132, 149 and 292 of Brooklyn offer an amendment to Sections 205 and 206 of the Constitution by striking out the words "Greater

New York" and inserting in its stead the word "Manhattan."

We ask you to second the above amendment for the following reasons: (1) Some time ago the International President with the Executive Board of C. M. I. U. of A. met in the City of New York and here recently a conference of all unions surrounding New York advised more activity in organization, and we the unions of Brooklyn believe that if we had our own autonomy that we could follow the said advice more readily. We pay to the J. A. B. 75 per cent of our 20 per cent constitutional allowance, which leaves us but 5 cents out of every dollar to run our own locals, which must pay officers' salaries, hall rent, committee expenses, etc., thereby showing that our activities in organization are necessarily handicapped by lack of funds. We believe that if we could use our whole constitutional allowance there would be a possibility of organizing the unorganized cigar workers of Brooklyn.

(2) We find that since the J. A. B. has had full control there is but few union shops in Brooklyn using the label. We had approximately at one time 700 members, and today we have in all about 325 members, showing a loss of over 50 per cent. We think that we could regain our losses if we had the use of the money that we pay the J. A. B.

(3) We call your attention to the fact as a reason why we propose the amendment that the label committee of Brooklyn has been merged with the New York label committee and the label is seldom used by our manufacturers. A short time ago we issued between 400,000 and 500,000 labels for cigars, while now the label is hardly ever seen.

(4) You will note there are four unions in Brooklyn, and all four favor this amendment. We believe that it is a step in favor of organization as proposed by both the conference and the International Executive Board.

Hoping that you will second the same, and when submitted for a referendum it will receive your support.

COMMITTEE, UNIONS 87, 132, 149, 292.

John Braham, Chairman.

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 9, 1922.

The following was passed by Local No. 132 at the regular meeting held at Manchester, N. H., Wednesday, Nov. 8, 1922.

Fraternally yours,
R. B. HAYES, Sec'y No. 132.

To the Cigarmakers of Local No. 132,
Manchester, N. H.

I herewith enclose a letter that I would like this body to endorse and forward to the president of the A. F. of L., Mr. Samuel Gompers.

Fraternally yours,
O. M. CRANE.

We, the cigarmakers of Manchester, N. H., ask organized labor, through you, to help with some finances the striking textile workers of this city.

We begin to feel it quite a burden as we are giving 5 per cent of our earnings for a number of months. We feel that organized labor is not doing what it should for so noble a lot of people as the strikers here have proven themselves to be.

We want others to interest themselves, as we find our assessment, in addition to other assessments and high dues, too much at this season of the year.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 4, 1922.

To the Members of the Trade Union Movement:
Early in this year the firm that extensively manufactures brushes of all descriptions, and known as the Fuller Brush Co., of the City of Hartford, Conn., had in contemplation the erection of a large set of new buildings within the jurisdiction of the Structural Building Trades Council of Hartford, Conn.

Following out an established custom, the Council, through its secretary, Bro. George Watson, sent a letter to Alfred C. Fuller, president of the Fuller Brush Co., and requested him to give consideration to the employment of members of the trade union movement on the proposed building operations, and in this letter of Bro. Watson's it was guaranteed to Mr. Fuller that there would be an extensive advertising of the Fuller product by members and friends of the trade union movement if Mr. Fuller would employ our men.

A letter was received, part of which reads as follows:

"As a company we feel that we want to save money wherever possible, and it so happened that a non-union concern made the lowest bid and got the contract. This concern has nothing against the union and nothing against any individual's personal faith or creed or policies. It simply accepted the lowest bid."

Mr. Fuller "positively refuses to have anything to do with organized wage earners," and his manager says that it was the low bid that prompted the work to be done by non-union men.

As this fight of Mr. Fuller's against union labor is yours as well as against the building trades of Connecticut, we are asking you to please read this communication over carefully and if an agent of the Fuller company approaches you to buy the product of the Fuller Brush Company, which is also styled the "Hartford Brush," will you ask him or her why Mr. Fuller is fighting organized wage earners of this country, and please pay no attention to excuses and polished talk on the part of agents as to why this immense building program was erected by non-union men?

Thanking you for your patience, I remain,

FRANK A. FITZGERALD,
President.

P. O. Box 617, New Haven, Conn.

REPORT OF ORGANIZERS

Newark, N. J., Dec. 4, 1922.

Trade conditions in the cigar industry in Newark have not hit the primrose path to what might be termed a flourishing growth of business; but moderate improvements have been shown along those lines which marks an increased output and consumption of union made cigars in this locality, compared to the more recent period of depression that has been felt throughout the entire country, which shows some stimulation and encouragement alike to our members, and the manufacturers of union made cigars, as renewed life begins to trickle in the channels of trade.

The agitation committee of Union No. 138 have been doing some effective work in circularizing the public and organized labor, with propaganda for "label" goods, and distributing among the retail merchants of cigars as a display add a large and attractive facsimile of the "Union Label" with appropriate motto attached thereto, inviting the purchaser to call for union made cigars, the results are favorable. I have addressed a number of meetings in agitation for the label, and in a general way have been as useful as possible in co-operating with the committee and working for the cause.

There is a fertile field in this center and adjacent communities, for propagation of the organized labor movement. The district is honeycombed with cheap paid labor-trust factories, and non-union slave driving shops, that work on the same rigid basis of "profit for the employer only" and leaves the remainder to the workers who produce the wealth; a mere pittance to "get by" with, long hours of toil, and a life of druggery at best. Such is the reward of unorganized non-union cigarmakers in trust factories, and those of the non-union "open shop" faith.

A committee of five members of Union No. 138 have been appointed on organization, to further the program that was devised at the last meeting of the International Executive Board, and more fully developed at the recent conferences of volunteer delegates from local unions, held at New York City and Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 5th and 12, respectively, where President Perkins presided and First Vice Samuel Gompers, Second Vice I. M. Ornburn, and Sixth Vice Charles Stevens were in attendance. The ground work was laid, and it was unanimously agreed that a campaign of intensive effort should be started in all cigar centers throughout the states to bring the unorganized workers into the fold of the International Union. The immediate task that lies before me in the locality where I have been assigned to work is to harness up in co-operation of combined purpose and unity of action the entire forces of the several local unions. The campaign has been launched and will be carried on to completion. Let no one shirk his duty, let us all give full measure to the work at hand, and success will crown the effort for organization.

Yours fraternally,

R. B. SEXTON,
General Organizer.

York, Pa., Dec. 5, 1922.

Since my last report during October I worked around the state of New Jersey, visiting Jersey City, Paterson, Perth Amboy and New Brunswick, advocating the use of the union label and appealing to the unorganized to organize. In Paterson, N. J., I put in several days and evenings visiting meetings of various crafts, urging the members to co-operate in the demand for label goods and to help to build up organizations. Spoke at Jersey City Central Labor Union on labels; visited Perth Amboy and New Brunswick, N. J., and spoke at open meetings of workers' organizations. Also with Secretary Schweitzer of Union 138 visited several small non-union shops in Newark to try and induce some men workers to rejoin the union. On Nov. 5 met with representatives of the unions of Greater New York and the state of New Jersey, together with President Perkins, Vice President Gompers and Vice President Stevens, to discuss and advise as to the best means to be employed to organize the cigarmakers of our industry. Expressions were freely made by all present and a renewed faith was pledged to the Cigarmakers' International Union and all left the conference with the determination to help to organize the unorganized.

On Nov. 12 a like conference was held in Lancaster, Pa., composed of representatives of the locals of Pennsylvania, also President Perkins, Second Vice President Ornburn, together with several of the organizers. At this conference also a renewed pledge of faith was made in the International Union and an expression of determination to help to carry on the work of organizing the cigarmakers of Pennsylvania.

The International President and Int. Executive Board, as they have ever done, again renewed their pledge of support to the officers and members of the local unions in carrying out the work of organization, and if the officers and members of local unions will respond and co-operate there is no doubt but that this kind of team-work will bring results.

I can say that since the conferences a new spirit of determination has been made manifest in all the locals that I have visited and if continued will no doubt bring light and hope to the unorganized cigarmakers and induce them to join the union.

Many who in the past differed in the detail of organization work now show a willingness to lay these differences aside and forget the past and work for the future to the end that all those in the cigar industry may come into the organization of their craft and receive a fuller share of the profits of what they produce.

With this in mind let us all say onward for a brighter and better year in 1923, with all co-operating for the one end.

WM. A. MCCABE, Organizer.

Philadelphia, Pa.

At this time it gives me great pleasure to report the progress being made in the city of Philadelphia and throughout the state in the campaign of organization. Philadelphia is the starting point for organization work in this state, the state which you all no doubt realize is sorely in need of organization, in our industry especially. Union 165 has been reorganized and has developed a fighting spirit in the interest of the Cigarmakers' International Union of America. This having been accomplished, the foundation has been built for an intensified campaign of organization. The conditions under which the girls in particular must work are deplorable, due to the fact that they are unorganized. Numbers of these girls are becoming interested in the value and necessity of organization and are falling in line slow but sure.

At present we have an independent strike against the firm of Roig & Langsdorf, who make the largest size cigars in the state and pay the lowest price for making same. The cigarmakers of this city, mostly unorganized, are supporting this strike morally and financially. This firm has factories in the following towns: Perkaskie, Pa., Quakertown, Pa., Trumbaursville, Pa., Almont, Pa., and Pottstown, Pa. The cigarmakers are determined to win this strike and they have very good prospects of receiving the support of the country factories.

As a delegate to the Union Label Trades Department and Central Labor Union, a great deal has been done to interest organized labor in the performance of its duty. To demand the union label on all goods purchased, teach their wives the necessity of demanding the union label when out shopping, thereby creating a demand for union made products, and make the open shopper sit up and take notice. As a result more union made cigars are being sold in this district.

Addressed a mass meeting of cigarmakers on Thursday, Nov. 9, held in machinists' temple. Visited Sellersville, Perkaskie, Quakertown and Trumbaursville on organization work. The value of organization is slowly creeping into the minds of the cigarmakers in the country districts and it is only a question of time when all the cigarmakers in the state of Pennsylvania will be organized under the banner of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America. It can be done, and it will be done.

HARRY GIFFORD.

Report of the A. F. of L. National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee.

During the year 1921 the A. F. of L. National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee, by the direction of the Executive Council, began to plan for the elections in 1922. It was believed that frequent communications with all labor organizations would be the means of stirring the membership to the necessary enthusiasm to bring about results when the time came for them to select candidates either in the primaries or elections.

In December, 1921, by authority and direction of the Executive Council, circular letters were sent to all state federations and city central bodies warning the wage earners of the country of the reactionary forces that were guiding legislation. All organizations in their respective localities were urged to appoint legislative committees to keep a record of the votes on measures of interest to labor by members of their respective state legislatures. These committees were advised that during the then forthcoming political campaign they could become non-partisan political campaign committees to further the interests of labor and the people. They were also informed that the records of all members of congress in their respective states or districts would be sent them when the campaign opened.

Printed reports on legislation before congress under the heading "What Congress Is Doing or Not Doing" were sent to all colleges, state federations, city central bodies, building trades councils and the labor press.

March 8, 1922, circular letters were sent to all state federations of labor and city central bodies in which it was urged that all municipal and state non-partisan political campaign committees should become more active than ever. They were advised to hold mass meetings and to confer with farmer and other organizations of liberty-loving people for the purpose of acting in harmony in the primaries and on election day.

April 4, 1922, another circular was addressed to all organizations of labor informing them that it was vital to the protection of labor's interest and welfare that a vigorous campaign be conducted to place in the national congress and the state legislatures men who without regard to party affiliation, would serve the dictates of justice and not the autocratic domination of the exploiting interests. This was followed by a circular being sent to all organizations of labor on May 1, 1922, calling attention to the fact that every energy should be used in the primaries to nominate members of congress and the state legislatures who believed in progress and even handed justice. Encouraging reports were received from many of these committees.

On July 25, 1922, a special circular was sent to nearly 40,000 non-partisan political campaign committees outlining what should be done to make the campaign a success and in which they were urged to give as wide publicity as possible to the following principles:

"No freedom loving citizen should vote for any candidate who will not pledge himself to oppose any form of compulsory labor law;

"No justice loving citizen should vote for any candidate for any office who will not pledge himself to oppose injunctions and contempt proceedings as a substitute for trial by jury;

"No freedom loving citizen should vote for any candidate who will not pledge himself to vote for legislation abolishing child labor."

Early in the year conferences were held with the representatives in Washington of the various farmers' organizations. These were very helpful in reaching an understanding as to many of the candidates. During the campaign the committee was repeatedly asked by the farmers if certain candidates for congress were acceptable to labor as they did not wish to endorse anyone unfriendly to labor or oppose those friendly to labor. A remarkable feature of this questioning as to legislative records showed that in every instance the farmers were supporting or were willing to support the same candidates as labor. The committee feels that this co-operation will continue to a greater extent in the future. A situation arose in Iowa which required your committee to take some action to endeavor to secure the nomination of some outstanding man for the primaries for United States senator from that state. Representative Sweet of Iowa announced his candidacy. Mr. Smith W. Brookhart, a man of sterling qualities, sympathetic to the cause of labor and justice, announced his candidacy. It was somewhat difficult to make a choice as between the two men running in the primaries by reason of the fact that Representative Sweet's labor record was also excellent. But due to the fact that Mr. Brookhart had two years ago made such a wonderful showing in his candidacy against Senator Cummings it was deemed the most practical course to try and persuade Representative Sweet to withdraw. It was thereupon that Representative Sweet was called into conference with the committee and urged to withdraw in the interest of Mr. Brookhart. He refused to withdraw, but promised that if Mr. Brookhart beat him in the primaries he would support Mr. Brookhart wholeheartedly. Many other conferences with members of congress or candidates were held by the committee or the chairman concerning the attitude of labor toward certain candidates.

In the meantime hundreds of letters from individuals were answered on all phases of the political campaign. Officials of Kansas were urged to begin a campaign to defeat supporters of the Kansas Court of Industrial Relations Act. Arizona was voting on amendments to the constitution that should be defeated. Nebraska had a referendum vote on an amendment to the constitution permitting the legislature to pass compulsory labor laws. Missouri, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and other states were also taking referendum votes on questions pertaining to labor. Illinois was preparing for the vote December 13 on a new constitution which disfranchised thousands of voters in Cook County by limiting their representation in the legislature. This necessitated much correspondence. Circulars have been sent to all state federations of labor asking for the result of the referendum votes.

While this agitation began to show encouraging results up to August 14, eighteen states had held their primaries and the outcome was most encouraging.

August 14 and 24 additional circulars were sent to 2,400 organizers of the American Federation of Labor and of its various departments. These directed the organizers to visit the various central bodies and local unions and inform them of the dangers ahead if the wage earners and all other liberty loving people were not awakened to the situation.

During September, 1922, the individual records of every member of the United States Senate and House of Representatives were brought down to date and sent to all central bodies and nearly 40,000 local unions in the respective states and districts. Special circulars were also prepared for each state, which were sent to all central bodies and local unions. These circulars pointed out the legislation which reaction had prepared for passage in the coming session of congress. They also called special attention to the attitude toward labor of members of the Senate.

During the primary and election campaigns organizers were sent into North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas, Colorado, New York, New Jersey, Indiana, California, Idaho, Washington and Pennsylvania. Special circulars were sent into Nevada in the interest of Senator Pittman, to Wyoming in the interest of Senator Kendrick, Minnesota in opposition to Senator Kellogg, to Wisconsin in favor of Senator LaFollette, to New York state for the purpose of organizing non-partisan political campaign committees to oppose Governor Miller, Senator Calder and other antagonists of labor.

The Publicity Department of the American Federation of Labor was very helpful in spreading broadcast the principles of labor and in acquainting the voters with the issues at stake. Never in the history of the non-partisan movement has there been such activity among central bodies, local unions and individual members.

Applications by unions and individuals for legislative records of members of congress on measures of interest to labor were received in great number and promptly complied with.

President Gompers made a number of addresses. He attended the American Legion convention in New Orleans and spoke in New Jersey and Connecticut. At the same time he held numerous conferences in the cities he visited during the primary and election campaigns and consulted and advised with the officials of labor as to candidates. He wrote many articles or the American Federationist bearing upon the political situation and the necessity of the people to safeguard their interest by being sure to vote only for those who by their past records demonstrated that they would faithfully carry out the wishes of the people. Statements for the press on political and labor questions were frequently written by him and received wide publicity. The last just before election was entitled "The Bugle Call," issued by us, and was printed in a great majority of the daily papers, in the entire labor press and the American Federationist.

The committee believes that through labor's influence many victories were won. It was feared that the interjection of third party candidates in Minnesota and Washington would defeat the hopes of labor. In Minnesota labor supported Mr. Shipstead, independent candidate for senator. Although the democrats had a candidate Mr. Shipstead was successful over Senator Kellogg. We held a number of conferences and wrote many letters to Minnesota labor officials in an endeavor to have the situation cleared in that state by the withdrawal of the democratic candidate. The surprising feature of the Minnesota situation is that the leaders of the democratic organization desired the withdrawal of the democratic candidate for governor.

In Washington Mr. James A. Duncan was nominated. President Gompers in a letter to Mr. James A. Duncan, the labor candidate, informed him that his candidacy was apt to draw enough votes away from Mr. Dill, the democratic candidate, to permit the election of Mr. Poindexter and suggested that Mr. Duncan withdraw. He refused to do so. This correspondence will be printed in the December Federationist. The vote given Mr. Duncan, however, was not large enough to re-elect Senator Poindexter. Your committee believes that no individual member of the labor movement should allow himself to be forced into a political contest which would result in the election of a bitter and relentless antagonist to labor.

The result in Kansas was a victory for labor. A conference of representatives of all labor organizations in Kansas was called by the committee to meet in Emporia, Sept. 18, 1922, to arrange for a campaign that would defeat all candidates in favor of the Kansas Court of Industrial Relations Act. As a result of that conference Governor Allen's candidate for governor was defeated by a bitter opponent of the act.

Yours fraternally,

"Out on a Limb."

BY COURTESY OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATIONIST

OFFICIAL

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President.
503 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 318 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

I. M. ORNBURN, 286 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

MANUEL GONZALEZ, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Sixth Vice President.

E. J. STACK, Labor Temple, Portland, Ore., Seventh Vice-President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per section 14f, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 14ic of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member. If there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

Many requests are received for blank monthly reports about this time. Monthly blanks are mailed from Jan. 13 to 16 to the corresponding secretary of each union and contain the following supplies for the year:

- 24 Financial statements.
- 12 Label reports.
- 12 State of trade.
- 12 Sick benefit reports.
- 2 Officers' reports.
- 10 Supply orders.

Secretaries who do not receive the package within a reasonable time should make inquiries at the postoffice, and if it is not there, they should notify this office at once so the proper inquiries may be made.

DECISIONS OF THE PRESIDENT

Fred Hartsuff, a union manufacturer, appealed against Union 283, Geneva, for fining him $25 and compelling him to deposit $100 for alleged misuse of the label. I had the matter thoroughly investigated by three disinterested representatives and upon their report and statement of facts the appeal is sustained, the $25 fine removed and the action in compelling him to deposit $100 reversed. Mr. Hartsuff has paid the regular bill of prices during all of this controversy.

George Birch appealed against Union 283, Geneva, for fining him $10 for the alleged offense of working below the bill of prices in the Hartsuff factory. On the recommendation of the investigators who say that the bill of prices has always been paid the appeal is sustained.

In the case of A. H. Helmer, in which Union 283, Geneva, fined him $10 for working below the bill of prices, on the recommendation of the union the fine is hereby rescinded.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

Proposed amendment by Union No. 138, of Newark, N. J., to Section No. 150 of the International Constitution:

Union 138, Newark, N. J., proposes the following amendment:

Amend Section 150 by striking out on lines 31, 32, 33, after the word "thousand" "no union shall be allowed to furnish the labels for cigars made in whole or in part by machinery."

Section as amended to read:

Sec. 150. Each local union shall furnish through the shop collectors or committeemen (as the case may be) to all strictly union shops, free of charge, as many of the labels as may be required from week to week for all cigars actually made by members of the union and persons holding retiring cards. All label orders shall be signed by the shop collector; the label order blanks shall be furnished by the International President at cost. No shop shall be considered a strictly union shop unless the packers of the shop are members of the International Union, and the apprentice law of the local union be complied with. Where the manufacturer deals in Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, it shall be optional with local unions to withhold the label from such firm. It shall be optional with local unions to grant the union label to any manufacturer or firm whose name or firm name appears in or about the box containing Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, or whose name or firm name appears on or about such non-union cigars. All labels issued must bear the ink stamp. It shall be optional with local unions to paste them on the boxes. But in no case shall the union label be used in a factory in the United States or Canada which pays less than $9.00 per thousand for making or less than $1.00 for packing per thousand for mold work—5 molds of 20 bunches. Nor which pays less than $10.00 per thousand for hand work, less than 4 molds of 10 bunches each with press on table, or two 20-bunch molds in shaper press, to be considered hand work. Nor shall it be allowed on any cigars sold for less than $25.00 per thousand. This shall not prevent a local union from establishing a minimum bill of prices on small cigars four inches in length or less, and weighing not more than three pounds per thousand. Subject to the approval of the International President and International Executive Board. This shall not disbar local unions from establishing a price above $25.00 per thousand. It shall be optional with local unions to grant labels to members who are not employing any journeymen if they have been members for less than one year. This shall not apply to members suspended who were, prior to their suspension, members of the International Union for one year or longer, provided they be reinstated within six months after suspension.

But in no event shall a manufacturer be permitted to use the label who offers presents as an inducement for the sale of his goods, but this shall not be so construed as to prevent a manufacturer from issuing coupons to the consumer which may be redeemed in presents or otherwise.

All labels must be pasted upon the boxes before the boxes leave the factory.

The amendment of 132, Brooklyn, as published in the October issue, as follows:

Strike out Sections 203-204 up to and including in said locality. Strike out the whole Sections 205-206-207 and insert in lieu thereof: No more than one union shall exist in any locality. Section to read: No more than one union in any locality; District of Porto Rico to remain the same as in the Constitution.

Received the endorsement of 44, St. Louis; 389, New York; 87, Brooklyn; 90, New York; 500, Tampa; 144, New York.

Not having received the required number of endorsements it will not be submitted to a vote of local unions.

The amendment of 500, Tampa, as published in the November issue, as follows:

Amend Sec. 213 of the Constitution by inserting after the words "International President" on line six, the following: Their endorsement or not of each and all amendments proposed. Strike out all on line seven from the words "but no unions" up to "by circular" on line nine, and insert: Union shall be fined $5.00 also for not taking action on an amendment submitted by the International President by circular. No other change. Sec. 213 as amended would read: Sec. 213. Each local union shall have the right to propose, through the columns of the Official Journal, amendments to the International constitution. Each union is required to act upon every amendment at their meeting next following the receipt of the Journal containing such amendments and report to the International President "their endorsement or not of each and all amendments proposed." Unions failing to comply with this provision shall be fined $5.00. Unions shall be fined $5.00 also for not taking action on an amendment submitted by the International President by circular. Any amendment receiving the endorsement of at least twenty unions shall be submitted to a vote of local unions within thirty days, and if adopted, shall take effect and remain in force from the first day of the month succeeding the official publication of its adoption.

Received the endorsement of Unions 44, St. Louis; 132, Brooklyn; 76, Hannibal; 133, Newark.

Unions 87, 132, 149 and 292 offer the following amendment to Sections 205 and 206 of the Constitution, as follows: "Strike out the words 'Greater New York' and insert the word 'Manhattan.'"

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues of 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and international assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $3.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2.00, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all international and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 130. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all international assessments levied before or after said strike or lockout has been approved. But these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due-stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

UNION NOTES

By 97, Boston.

No. 97 did not forget Oneida. They are our own; or the Manchester Textile Workers.

Did you read the article on the decision reference to picketing by the majority of the Supreme Court of the United States, written by the president of the A. F. of L.?

A circular on the Blackstone, Quincy and Peter Schuyler, issued by New England conference, is a good one.

Why not abolish piece work in our industry?

Why don't the strippers apply for a charter from our International Union. It would be of mutual benefit.

"You cannot create prosperity out of poverty; it is the surplus dollar that counts."

Manufacturers should realize the home market is the best market.

The label is the best tool you have; use it to reach the goal.

You can get union made underwear in Boston.

Why not vote for a convention? We need it.

Yes, we contributed to the American's Christmas fund.

Wall street wants a surplus of labor.

Labor made a good move when it started a bank; its funds will not be loaned to crush them. —Henry Abrahams.

The secretary of Union 153, Sioux Falls, S. D., would like to hear from Pat Barnes.

The fine of $100 imposed on Phil Pauley by 357, Vancouver, has been rescinded on account of good work done in a non-union shop.

PRIVATE LOANS

Cornelius Snyers, 94080, is hereby notified to pay back the private loan granted him by 17, Cleveland, as there are other members that need money quite as much as he did when he got it.

IN MEMORIAM

If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and, in addition, send in such cards, but place in your letter the information necessary, as the letter is filed as a matter of record. There is a tendency on the part of some trades unionists, among whom may be a few cigar makers, to decry the Union Label as a factor of the dead past. They claim that label agitation is seed sown on unfertile soil and that the harvest is not worth the cost of seed and cultivation. The facts are that the ground is still fertile and every element necessary for fruitful production continues to function but the sowers of the seed have depleted the quantity sown to such an extent that the sparsely scattered stalks that come to life from the meager seed sown are not able to coordinate properly and oftentimes die miserably from lack of cultivation and attention.

The Union Label lives and is still a factor in organization. It can be used today to the same advantage it has been used in the past. The necessities for it are ever present and the same propaganda that was successfully used in the past will meet the necessities of today and of tomorrow as it met the necessities of yesterday and the day before.

Labor is, after all, the employer of labor. Each of us in our capacity as a purchaser of the necessities of life becomes an employer of labor. Organized labor alone receives approximately $5,000,000,000.00 annually in wages and spends the greater part of it for the things that labor has produced. The only reason this enormous buying power does not dominate the market is because it does not do its duty collectively as an employer. It refuses to buy from itself. Why? Largely because we have neglected the possibilities of the Union Label as a guide in our purchasing. We have listened too closely to the chap who, unconsciously perhaps, has boosted the non-union employer by purchasing non-union goods and who has continually croaked "Label agitation is a dead issue."

When we hire a union carpenter he is able to identify himself. He can show by the proper credentials, his union card, that in hiring him we purchase union labor. Not so if we purchase a union cigar or a union hat. Manufactured articles are not able to identify themselves. They must have some mark of identification to distinguish as between the union made and the non-union made. Such identification is provided in the Union Label. Education coupled with persistent, constant label agitation causes the demand for label goods which means that organized labor becomes the employer of organized rather than unorganized labor.

The power of the Union Label is alive, pulsating with energy and it needs only our word of demand to make it a giant in the ranks of organization.

On the threshold of this New Year organized Labor is in a much better position than on January 1, 1922.

Agitate, Economic conditions have Educate, materially changed and in their
Organize. change comes labor's chance for further achievement. The time is opportune for labor to regain what small losses it may have suffered during the past chaotic two years and to further its cause, advancing its outposts on the battle-front of human betterment.

General business conditions are improving, the army of unemployed which a year ago numbered approximately four million is rapidly diminishing and even the most reactionary among the large employers of labor has from necessity been obliged to call a halt in their open shop drive.

The last general election has relegated a large number of well known and powerful labor haters to the tangled swamps of political oblivion and in their stead has elected men whose past records bid fair to a more comprehensive program of National legislation in-so-far as the general welfare is concerned.

Wage scales, according to the United States and State Departments of Labor, are increasing while up to August, 1922, decreases were in the great majority. The efforts of reactionary employers to wreck organized labor through the medium of their widely advertised, Wall St. financed "American Plan" have proven abortive. The good ship "Organization" has weathered the storm and our banner remains nailed to the masthead unsullied and unfurled.

Make the coming year one of achievement: Conditions are right for it.

Fellow Workers:

Your International Executive Board is mindful of the suffering and privation many have had to undergo in the last two years of dull times, unemployment and high cost of living.

No one can tell what the New Year has in store. Outstanding indications all point to a slowly rising tide of more and steadier employment and better times for the burden-bearing masses. It is the combined opinion of your Executive Board that the present hopeful indications will develop into a substantial realization.

The fact that all wage-earners and all labor organizations have suffered mentally and physically is of no solace, but a source of much regret and deep sympathy.

We have taken note of the fact that in former periods of industrial stagnation unemployment, much suffering, and privation all had an end and have been followed by brighter times and better days for the workers. There is no question that that which has occurred in former depressions will be repeated in this instance, and that a brighter and better day is slowly coming forward.

We are sure that the efforts now being made to more fully organize the industry will prove successful. Singly and collectively we will be helpful in every way possible in the organization work now in hand. Those who are now organized must hold the first line trenches and be strengthened and re-enforced from the unorganized. We bespeak your helpful co-operation with the general and sub-organizers, in their efforts in the mighty task of organizing the cigar industry. We know that it can be done. We know that there is a spirit of determination, courage and ability throughout the membership of the International Union to accomplish the desired end.

We owe it to ourselves, to the unorganized, and to our children to discharge the solemn obligation of protecting and maintaining a substantial, true, and everlasting organization of the workers in the cigar industry. We renew our faith and obligations, and pledge ourselves to do all within our power to further the cause so near and so dear to the hearts and minds of all right-thinking men and women in our industry.

With hearty good wishes for you personally, for the local unions and the International Union, we are,

Fraternally,

G. W. PERKINS, International President,

SAMUEL GOMPERS, First Vice-President,

I. M. ORNBURN, Second Vice-President,

Executive Board, Cigar Makers' International Union.

Standing on the threshold of the New Year, unafraid and undaunted, let us restate our obligations and renew our loyalty to the organization to which we owe so much and of which so much more is expected! Let us with growing confidence and determination renew our faith in our organization and in our combined ability to organize the industry.

History shows that during the rise and development of civilization and progress certain periods have developed a psychology for the spirit of "I will." In our own beloved country we had the spirit of 1776 and out of that spirit grew our great republic. At each successive stage in our development there has been some great rallying cry to develop the spirit of achievement, usually for the good but sometimes of indifferent character. This spirit of achievement does not always last. We sometimes rest upon our laurels. People go to sleep under a false sense of security.

In the reorganization of the Cigar Makers' International Union we had the spirit of 1879 and '80 of organization, from which developed the spirit of "It can be done; it shall be done." This spirit radiated from the minds and hearts of many willing and determined workers. It radiated in circles and started the mighty task of organizing the trade into active operation. We adopted our chain of benefits, our union label, our scales of wages, etc., etc. Then came the period of relaxation intermingled with a false sense of security.

Big interests and non-union manufacturers never rest. They never take a nap. The organized labor movement can not afford to sleep at the switch. The opponents of the trade union movement are always working overtime in their efforts to divide us and to hinder progress along organization lines. The old, old adage "Divide and Conquer" is a favorite weapon of politicians in all countries as well as of captains of industry in all manufacturing lines.

For years the privileged few have strenuously tried to keep the farmer and the industrial worker at variance. These insidious propagandists go to the farmer verbally and through publications with propaganda in which labor is blamed for all the farmer's ills. These same interests then with the same sinister motives go to the industrial worker and tell him that the farmer is to blame for all of his ills. The chief point and purpose is to keep the workers and producers, whether farmers or industrial workers, divided and fighting among themselves.

The same methods are employed in our unions. If the workers can be kept divided on racial, religious, and partisan political issues and fighting each other it has a tendency to retard organization and is to the sole advantage of the employing class. We have our political parties, our churches, and our fraternal organizations, where all such matters can and should be discussed, leaving our trade unions free and unhampered, with no outside influences or isms, to advance and protect unitedly in spirit and in feeling our economic working conditions and well-being. A mind made up of many minds can never be one mind. Cigar makers are like all others. They have divergent opinions and different ideas and theories on many things, and of course can not be one mind on religion, race, and politics. ' They like all others want better wages, shorter hours, and better working conditions. There is absolutely no reason why many minds can not become one mind on these fundamental principles. Differ all we please on political issues. ' Indulge our thoughts in that direction to our heart's content but become as of one mind on the fundamental economic trade union issues of fair wages, reasonable hours, and decent working conditions in the factories.

1923 holds within the realms of possibility splendid achievement for those who are compelled to work long hours for low wages under miserable working conditions. All that is required is to develop the spirit of '79 and '80 to become in the shop and meeting room good fellows and friends. Unite as union men to achieve better working and living conditions, more wages, reasonable hours, and last but not least resolve to work for ourselves instead of to the advantage of non-union employers! Let us resolve to make 1923 a banner year of achievement in the Cigar Makers' International Union!

In this worthy effort I have unlimited faith and confidence for success. I pledge all within my power to be helpful.

Cordially and fraternally yours,

G. W. PERKINS,
International President.

Organized labor scoffs at the employers' explanation of the shortage of common labor. George W. Perkins, international president of the Organized Labor Scoffs. Cigarmakers' Union, outlined labor's stand for The Daily News.

"For thirty years I have studied the propaganda of the employers for a wide-open door to cheap labor from the southern and eastern European countries," said Mr. Perkins.

"Investigation will show that there is no shortage of labor in any of the great subdivisions of industry. Individual employers may not be able to obtain workers at the wages they offer, but they should not be entitled to grow rich at the cost of lowering the quality of our people.

"Why even if selfish employers are permitted to import all the cheap labor they want—by their own admission those laborers will desert the factories as soon as they know enough of our customs to earn a better living elsewhere. Or, as employers' literature shows, the disillusioned immigrants will return to their own country rather than work at low wages in the mills.

"When employers see fit to give a living wage to the men who do the hard work of industry they will have no difficulty in obtaining all they need for that work. Children of laborers now seek escape from the life of their fathers because they find it unattractive.

"To those who predict dislocation of industry because of the shortage of workers, I commend economic history. Whenever common labor is found too costly a machine is invented to do the work. Much of the rough work of industry is still performed by common labor because it is cheaper than the installation of labor-saving machinery.

"And remember that not many months ago the president's unemployment conference was trying to devise relief from the problem of 6,000,000 idle who wanted work but could not find it. How much worse will be the problem during the next depression if employers are permitted to bring in fresh hordes at this time."—Chicago Daily News.

The selfish exponents of special privilege, ever alert to undermine popular government, were given the worst beating in history at a special election, December 12, 1922, on a proposed new Constitution for the state of Illinois.

The avalanche of votes against the reactionary basic law as proposed, a basic law dictated by big business and its preparation directed from Wall St., should and no doubt will put heart into the true friends of democracy everywhere.

Organized Labor, directed by the Illinois State Federation of Labor, was first to call the attention of the people to the monumental hypocrisy of the Constitutional Convention and was foremost in the efforts put forth which resulted in the staggering defeat of a conspiracy aimed to wipe out entirely statutory justice.

With big non-union manufacturers combined the workers must also combine in their unions or they will fall one by one. Think in an unequal struggle in which the Right cards are stacked against them. Let us apply the thought wave to our unions in the shape of a new slogan "Every day in every way the union is getting better and better." This may sound captious; there is some merit in it nevertheless. Constant thought along right lines develops a certain mental attitude. Too many workers are in some instances indifferent, others are despondent, and some are gloomy and pessimistic. Thinking along the line suggested in the new slogan will be helpful to all such. Anyway it can do no harm and costs nothing and is well worth trying.

The value of persistent propaganda is greatly underestimated. Big interests and the privileged few fully understand and appreciate the value of persistent agitation, propaganda, and its dissemination, and the broadcasting of things that are not so.

Big interests pay clever writers for the sole purpose of misleading and dividing the masses, and then pay big money to get their articles into magazines and otherwise distributed. The false notions are in many instances absorbed, and create a mischievous state of mind that is often hard to overcome.

If every member of every labor organization from now on staunchly defended the union it would create an ever widening healthy state of mind that could not be stopped and would ultimately result in organizing all wage earners in all industries.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Economically speaking the union is our best friend. Treat it as such. Treat it right. It deserves it.

In organization work let us buckle on our armor and adopt the slogan "Onward, union workers" and success will crown our efforts.

Little drops of enthusiasm and little grains of determination make the mighty union and appropriate pay envelope.

Organized labor has challenged the claim that present wage rates are responsible for the high cost of living. This claim is one of the pet stock defenses of "profiteers."

Federationist.

Don't confuse the kicker with the knocker. The malicious knocker is beneath contempt. We have the utmost respect for the manly kicker who in the union kicks against what he considers wrong. One is a disgrace to himself and a detriment to the organization, while the other is a credit and is helpful to the constructive trade-union movement.

Be a booster. Boost the union. Boost the label.

If you can't boost don't knock; that will help a little.

Talk Union Labels.

Preach Union Labels.

Buy None but Union Label Goods.

See that your friends and neighbors do the same.

Too many men would rather be recognized as "radical" than as right.

"Company union"—a union formed by the company, of the company, and for the company.

Labor does not ask the Government to better its conditions, but simply to give it a chance to do that for itself.

A guilty conscience and an insincere trade unionist are very similar—they never feel secure. Demand the label.

I rejoice at every effort working men make to organize. I hail the labor movement. It is my only hope for democracy. Organize and stand together. Let the nation hear a united demand from the laboring voice.—Wendell Phillips.

If I were a factory employe, a laborer on the railroads, or a wage-earner of any sort, I would undoubtedly join the union of my trade. If I were opposed to the policy of the union, I would join it for no other reason than to help rectify the mistake. If I took exception to a dishonest leader, I would join that union to help remove him. In short, I believe in the union, and I believe that all men who are benefited by the union are morally bound to help to the extent of their power in the common interest advanced by the union.—Theodore Roosevelt.

To love justice, to long for the right, to love mercy, to pity the suffering, to assist the weak, to forget wrongs and remember benefits, to love the truth, to be sincere, to utter honest words, to love liberty, to wage relentless war against slavery in all its forms, to love wife and child and friend, to make a happy home, to love the beautiful in art, in nature, to cultivate the mind, to be familiar with the mighty thoughts that genius has expressed, the noble deeds of the world, to cultivate courage and cheerfulness, to make others happy, to fill life with the splendour of generous acts, the warmth of loving words, to discard error, to destroy prejudice, to receive new truths with gladness, to cultivate hope, to see the calm beyond the storm, the dawn beyond the nights, to do the best that can be done and then be resigned—this is the religion of reason, the creed of science. This satisfies the brain and heart.

—Ingersoll, in "The Foundation of Faith."

Hearings are announced by the judiciary committee of the United States Senate on proposed constitutional amendments intended to regulate child labor.

Owing to the Supreme Court's annulment of all previous federal statutes regulating the labor of children an amendment to the constitution seems the only way this long needed, humane legislation may be expediently enacted. While this procedure is necessarily slow, made slower if possible by predatory interests, we may at least hope for some solution of a problem that is the nation's disgrace.

Organized labor, sponsor for and champion of practically all of the remedial legislation that has been enacted by the several states intended to protect the lives of children against the greed of Mammon, can be expected to do its part toward framing a suitable amendment and drafting the same into the basic law of our land.

From every real or fancied setback organized labor has gone forward stronger than before.

The depression we are now emerging from will prove no exception if we are wise enough to study past methods and energetic enough to apply past principles and the punch of yesteryear. Retrospection is of more worth just now than newly hatched schemes, fads and isms. The canvas of the past presents a picture of men and women in the labor movement braving all opposition and surmounting every obstacle in the pathway leading toward their ideals.

The labor movement of today is largely ready made for the present generation. Being ready made it is held as a thing to be supported with dues and assessments only. While the prompt payment of dues and assessments is necessary, putting as it does blood into the veins of the organization, its vitality must be further strengthened by personal interest and perpetual propaganda.

In 1887 the entire receipts of the American Federation of Labor were only a little more than $2,000.00 yet in that year its convention took the first steps toward promoting the eight union labels then in existence. Courage was high and determination was the driving force. If so much could then be accomplished from so little in the way of capital and man power we can now do much more with our present treasuries, and our vastly augmented man power with the same spirit properly applied.

In the President's address to the Cleveland Convention, April, 1920, he recommended that during the period of reconstruction conventions of the International Union be held often. The Committee on President's Report, to whom this recommendation was referred, reported in favor of conventions every two years. This recommendation of the committee was adopted.

In this issue of the Journal, Union 132, Brooklyn, has proposed as an amendment to the constitution that we hold a convention commencing the second Monday in August, 1923. At the time of the last convention, 1920, the delegates were practically unanimously of the opinion that a convention should be held within two years. We have already exceeded that limit. The necessity of a convention is as great if not greater now than it was at that time. The question, however, can not go to popular vote unless it receives the required number of seconds. The amendment should be seconded to thus give the membership at large the opportunity to register its wishes upon this important question.

Too often we are prone to drift into and settle down in an old rut of thought. When we reach that stage disintegration sets in. All progress stops. Hope and ambition are abandoned. Get out of the rut! There is another roadway not always smooth and strewn with roses but traversed with rugged determination it leads to better conditions, better life, more sunshine and happiness here on earth. Keep moving along in the broad and rugged pathway of organization that leads to better wages, shorter hours, and a happier existence.

The pessimist is so saturated with gloom that he never bumps into anything but trouble. Optimism is the sunlight of human existence. It is one of the things that has not been patented. It has escaped the profiteer; it is free. Try it.

Since the beginning of recorded time in all walks of life there has been an overproduction of doubting Thomases, the fellows who are always saying, "It can not be done." Despite this handicap the whole world and civilization are steadily growing better and better but there is still plenty of room for improvement. About all the good that the doubters have accomplished or can accomplish is to make us hesitate and look before we leap. The chap who says "It can not be done" is mistaken. We well recall that early in the '80s when we were struggling with might and main to reorganize the union a chap who was always anxious to speak on every question said, as he invariably did, "It can not be done." He was mistaken; it was done. In the particular town where this incident occurred, at the end of 1880 the town was almost one-hundred per cent organized.

Cy Theysay and Hiram Iheardso are mighty unreliable chaps to tie to when it comes down to what really did happen. This is particularly true of union gossip. As a test and to prove the unreliability of word of mouth communication,—a sentence of six words was passed by word of mouth from one to another of six or eight people and it was found that when the sentence came back to the starting point not only the wording but the actual meaning was entirely changed. The safest and surest way to get reliable information as to what happens in the union is to attend the regular meetings.

"Labor is prior to and independent of capital. Capital is but the fruit of labor, and could never have existed had labor not first existed. Labor is superior to capital, and deserves much the higher consideration."—Lincoln's Annual Message to Congress, 1862.

All men are entitled to a hearing in the councils which decide upon the destiny of themselves and their children.—Andrew Johnson.

Unlawful combinations and agreements are largely responsible for high building prices in the opinion of members of the Illinois Building Investigation Commission, which has made public its report on conditions in the building trades to be submitted to Governor Small tomorrow.—Boston Herald, Dec. 31.

By John P. Frey.

Nothing has done more to weaken labor when a crisis is reached than division in the ranks.

Again and again strong organizations have failed when the crucial test was reached, because of divided counsels and secession movements.

The pages of industrial history supply too many instances where ultimate success was made impossible because unity of action and unity of purpose had been destroyed through division in the movement.

Some seventy years before the birth of Christ, industrial conditions in Rome had become intolerable for the freemen among the plebeians as well as for the slaves. The conditions imposed upon the mass of the workers had become such that they only required a strong, capable leader to organize them into an irresistible movement.

The leader proved to be a Greek gladiator named Spartacus. With a few of his loyal friends he struck down the guards at the gladiatorial school in Capua and succeeded in gaining the mountains.

Keeping in touch with the trade unions in the Italian cities and calling upon them for assistance, he was soon able to gather around him a large body of Roman trade unionists and of slaves who were willing to fight for their liberty. Small Roman armies were sent against him and these were all defeated. Imperial Rome became alarmed and some of its best generals took the field against the labor leader whose successes as an organizer and a general were threatening the Imperial institutions.

For ten years Spartacus was able to defeat all of the Roman legions sent against him.

The trade unionists in his ranks manufactured the necessary weapons of war for his troops and directed the transportation of materials and food. Finally Rome, becoming more alarmed, gathered together all of her military resources with the intention of placing so enormous an army in the field that it could overwhelm the freemen's forces.

The ten years' experience which Spartacus had in fighting Roman troops convinced him that to meet this new and enormous army in pitched battle would mean defeat. The time had arrived when it was necessary for him to use strategy and to attack the enemy piecemeal. But younger generals in his army, men who were envious of the high position he occupied, began to circulate the story that Spartacus was becoming conservative; that he was losing his energy; that he desired to lean back upon his laurels; that he was unwilling to meet a new condition with new policies. They carried on their propaganda so successfully that a great revolt or secession movement took place. Thousands of malcontents under Granicus and Castus, two minor generals in the Spartacan army, led the movement. Filled with confidence because of the victories they had won under Spartacus, they believed themselves capable of overcoming the mass of Roman legions sent against them.

The armies met, the battle resulted in a complete defeat and destruction of the secessionists and the death of Granicus and Castus.

Although Spartacus still remained in control of his main army, its ranks had been so weakened as the result of this secession movement that he was never able again to take the field aggressively; and finally the secession movement led to the defeat of the loyal troops under Spartacus and the crucifixion of some 6,000 of his followers on the military road between Capua and Rome.

Labor may not always have the most perfect program. Labor may occasionally make mistakes, but so long as labor remains united it need fear no problem, because as a united body it can overcome its mistakes if any are committed, whereas, if it divides its forces it not only will fail to overcome its problems, but will so weaken itself that it is no longer capable of maintaining its position.

The tremendous strength which has been acquired by the American Federation of Labor is due principally to two factors—the just and practical character of its policy, and the fact that it acts unitedly; once a policy has been adopted, the leaders and the membership unite in the effort to carry the policy into effect.

Division in our ranks today with the problems which lie ahead of us during the reconstruction period would be as disastrous to the welfare of the wage earners of America as the secession movement of Granicus and Castus was to the fight for liberty being made by the Roman workmen under Spartacus.

Our only salvation as workers lies in unity of action, and the trade-union movement has adopted the principle through which this is accomplished. It is called the rule of the majority and is based upon the fundamental principles of true democracy.

The citizens of the United States are governed by the rule of the majority. The American trade-union movement is governed by the rule of the majority. Both are democracies.

The secessionist, the man who preaches division in the ranks of labor, does not believe in the rule of the majority. He is influenced by other principles or considerations. Where his activities succeed his influence is more disastrous to labor than that of all of the strikebreakers and anti-trade union employers combined, because he has driven the wedge of division into the ranks of organized labor, and divided instead of united their strength.

CORRESPONDENCE

NEW YORK.

Some of our comrades are inclined to believe that the union is not a progressive and democratic institution, and this is due to the contrary opinion propagated with a mischievous and destructive purpose of poisoning their minds. This error and its consequent improper way of judging without previously taking the time to analyze and digest what is told to them, prevails among those of our comrades who are easily swayed by the outside opinion. Even though they should take note of all that is said, they should consult their own personal mental powers. By this course much good would be experienced.

But as laborers of many years experience gain through the study of what the union is meant for we cannot allow ourselves to be guided by these outside elements who are but strangers to the organization. Therefore we are accustomed to use our own faculty of thinking which gives us the true course to follow, and entitles us to affirm that the Cigar Makers' International Union perfectly responds to our ideals and collective interests.

In the first place, we shall say that the Cigar Makers' International Union of America is strictly an organization founded on characters of economy, and shielding its members with its powerful financial resistance in their strikes against the capitalist, and its benevolence comprises all those wage earners engaged in the industry. One of the principal features that gives her a national reputation is due to the fact of being despoiled from all prejudice of race and nationality, and political intrigues. The union was founded only and exclusively for the defense of its members in all questions arising from a standpoint of economy. Its members are at liberty to choose their own inclination in regard to politics or religion.

The only thing demanded from the worker is his solidarity and to faithfully observe and adhere to the labor cause in general; the union aims to completely emancipate the oppressed laboring class and to this end her strength and policy are onward.

All matters of law are brought before the members who are entitled to discuss and express their views on all questions that they may consider of importance and convince to sanction in behalf of the membership at large, and they have the right to accept or reject what they should esteem to be of real interest to the workers in general.

If this was not as told, then it could be said that it was an autocratic institution, but the indubitable facts are proving to completely destroy all inclination towards such judgment, and whether its gratuitous enemies want to or not they must come to the conclusion and agree with us that the International Union is reputed as being a democratic and liberal institution.

That persistent propaganda constantly in use against the union as being obstinately in favor of the old laws of its constitution, can readily be judged by those who are within its range. If they only take the trouble to read the official journal at the end of every month, and through the perusal of it they can easily see how ridiculous and absurd that propaganda is, as they will find in its pages the constant reforms of its laws together with the approval or rejection of all that is found not to harmonize with the aspirations of its members and evolutions of the present times.

Years ago in some localities the strike was forbidden during the months of April to September of each year, but as the time went on the members of that jurisdiction took this question up and presented an amendment to reform that part of the constitution; and today its members can declare a strike regardless of the month of the year—and now they realize that this was a progressive measure that renders great benefit to all.

Another one of importance and real advance is that which in the old laws of the constitution divided the membership by craft; but today it has been industrialized, to wit: All the workers employed in the tobacco industry can declare themselves on strike and are entitled to the same rights and benefits; a proof of this can be had from other localities, such as Tampa, Porto Rico and Denver.

That's how our organization acts when its members understand that a reform is needed—it is submitted through our official journal or at its conventions and then to the membership at large for their approval or rejection.

During our convention of 1920 the delegates representing the various unions realized that the separation by crafts was dangerous and a reform was adopted to industrialize it, and that is why we are in favor of having the convention held every two or three years—by so doing the delegates of the various unions can meet and discuss the needs of our organization, and reform that which should be most convenient for the workers.

This is the union that is criticised by those who call themselves radical and like things, and who are always endeavoring to poison the laboring class with their ill propaganda.

This is the union which they try to disrupt day after day, as if through this habit they could accomplish their purposes, most of them have not even a slight knowledge of our constitution; others entertain themselves for mere personal profits, whether they want to or not they must realize that the Cigar Makers' International Union of America is and shall forever be a progressive and democratic organization with powerful financial resistance, having proved this statement by facing strikes of long durations as the Tampa, Porto Rico and Denver conflicts. These are not mere suppositions, but real facts that surely is teasing, but we can't help it to be otherwise.

We could here cite facts and reforms to such an extent as to satisfy our comrades, but we having decided not to mention this subject over again, and by this procedure it will clearly and conclusively demonstrate to those wishing to understand it thus, that the International Union is well prepared to defend our common interests.

P. BIANCO.

Chicago, Ill., January 1, 1923.

Business organized for profit is but another name for work. In it you may invest either capital or labor, but no matter which your investment may be you naturally expect to give to it some measure of your attention.

The investment of the workers generally in business is labor, and that too often represents their total interest in the concern, denying it, as they are prone to do, the attention that is absolutely necessary to its success.

The minute you start to learn a trade you become an investor in that particular business to which your labor is attribute. You become a part of the business institution, and whether you expect to remain in it a month, a year or for all time, common sense dictates the necessity of your giving it more than the mere physical power expended. Were you investing dollars instead of hours, which after all means the same thing, you would give it careful and considerate study. Were you investing capital instead of brawn you would investigate and no doubt join the business organization to which your particular line was eligible, with the end in view of increased dividends.

Do you do these things when you invest your labor? Have you investigated the labor union of your craft which is the one business organization available to all the workers and the one which has paid and will continue to pay the greatest dividend on the amount invested of any business institution on earth?

If you have not done this, if you have not taken advantage of this opportunity, you are denying yourself the one opportunity for investment that will prove not only profitable to yourself, but to your posterity as well. Join the union and pay yourself a dividend.

R. E. VAN HORN.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1, 1923.

There is but one answer to the entire campaign of employers for the disruption and destruction of the labor movement, and that is continued organization, eternal vigilance and the highest degree of solidarity. There is no complicated device by which the campaign of employers may be met; the answer is simplicity itself. It is merely that the workers must organize and must stay organized. They must use every effort to gain an intelligent understanding of all industrial problems and they must bring to their organized efforts the highest quality of industrial statesmanship.

The struggle is one between organization and disorganization. Nothing else is involved, and organization is the complete answer. There can be no "open shop" where the workers are 100 per cent organized.

Fraternally yours,

SAMUEL GOMPERS,

First Vice-President.

REPORT OF ORGANIZER

Binghamton, N. Y., Jan. 7, 1923.

I attended a conference of the Greater New York and New Jersey unions held in New York City. I then proceeded to Oneida to see if some kind of a settlement could not be reached in the Oneida difficulty. While there I addressed the Central Labor Council of Oneida. I also attended a meeting of Union No. 12. At this meeting a motion was made to open the shop of Powell & Goldstein to union men. The president declared the motion out of order. An appeal was taken from the decision of the chair. The decision of the chair was sustained. A committee was appointed at this meeting to accompany me to the two factories involved in the difficulty. The next morning we called on Mr. Bennett, who told us he had adopted a new system of running his business and was going to stand by it. We then called on Mr. Goldstein. We had no more success with Mr. Goldstein than with the first named proprietor. I then proceeded to Buffalo.

Shortly after my arrival there I received a communication from the International President to proceed to Geneva and Seneca Falls to investigate some difficulty that a manufacturer had with Geneva union. I investigated and reported my findings to the International President. I then went back to Oneida again, thinking there might be a possible chance of doing something. Had another conference with Mr. Goldstein, which lasted for over two hours. Tried every way to get him to make some kind of a proposition, but he wouldn't do it. While in Oneida I received a communication from President Perkins instructing me to go to Binghamton, N. Y., for the week beginning Dec. 5. The Central Labor Union of that city was holding a bazaar that week, the unions of Binghamton having sent to the International office for circulars "What it cost not to belong to the union."

I proceeded to Binghamton, attended the carnival every night and talked with the non-union cigar workers that I met there. Friday night was designated as "Cigarmakers' night," and I gave a ten-minute talk on the benefits of organization. The following are the meetings I have covered in my label agitation work in this city: Central Labor Union, Switchmen's Union, Hod Carriers' and Building Laborers' Union, Electrical Workers, Stereotypers and Electrotypers, Shop Crafts, Barbers, Carpenters, Printing Pressmen, Joint Advisory Board of Birmingham, Cigarmakers' Union No. 229, Cigarmakers' Union No. 16, Cigarmakers' Union No. 218, Typographical Union, Musicians' Union, Bricklayers' and Masons' Union, Glass Bottle Blowers.

On Friday evening, Jan. 5, a joint meeting of our three cigarmakers' unions was held. At this meeting it was decided to hold a mass meeting Friday, Jan. 12, and invite the non-union cigarmakers to attend for the purpose of persuading them to join the Cigarmakers' Union.

Yours fraternally,

CHARLES H. STEVENS, Gen. Org.

Miners' Defense Committee—The Coal Miners' Trials.

Six hundred and thirty-one coal miners have been indicted for murder and conspirative charges, a majority of them in southeastern Ohio and West Virginia. In the latter place especially there has been incessant war between the miners and operators.

The terrifying mine dangers, the arduous toll, and the dreadful living conditions make the life of the coal miner the hardest of any class of industrial workers. The strength of the miners' organization and the militant activity of the miners is simply a reaction to the brutality of the gunmen employed by the operators.

The coal operators, blind to everything but profits, are meeting the increased solidarity of the miners with added ferocity. Gunmen and armored cars no longer suit their purpose and they have turned to the courts and many miners have been indicted, charged with murder or conspiracy. Many of the trials are kangaroo affairs. At St. Clairsville, O., several trials have been held, and two miners, Dominick Venturato and Dan Agosti, face life sentences. Venturato, president of one of the largest local unions, was active in making the owners of the mine live up to the rules. One day a strikebreaker was killed in the vicinity of a mass meeting which Venturato was attending, and Venturato with other miners was seized. A coal operator remarked at the time: "Now we have Venturato where we want him." The judge and the special prosecutor in the cases were former attorneys for the miners who had been ousted and hence had turned against the miners' union. The judge picks all the jurors.

A Miners' Defense Committee has been organized to give all possible publicity to the unjust convictions of Venturato and Agosti and to see that the remaining defendants have a fair trial. The committee needs the help of all labor organizations in protesting against convictions on framed up testimony. They have issued a pamphlet covering the case and they want this pamphlet to have a wide circulation. All who wish to help free these miners from unjust charges and convictions are requested to get in touch with The Miners' Defense Committee, 301 Miners' Temple, Bellaire, Ohio.

Report of the A. F. of L. National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee

The election of G. W. P. Hunt as governor of Arizona was also a victory for labor. By letters and telegrams from us we were very helpful in the election of Mr. Hunt. The election of Mr. Smith as governor of New York was heartily supported by the National Non-Partisan Political Campaign. The elections of J. J. Blaine for governor of Wisconsin, A. Victor Donahey for governor of Ohio, Fred H. Brown for governor of New Hampshire, Wm. H. Flynn for governor of Rhode Island, William B. Sweet for governor of Colorado and J. J. Scrugham for governor of Nevada were also the result of labor's activities.

Early in the campaign the committee sent circular letters to all national and international unions requesting that they urge their local unions in New York state to give all the assistance within their power to the non-partisan campaign. Much correspondence followed and New York was organized effectively to enter the primary and election campaigns.

At a meeting of the New York State Federation of Labor, President Gompers mentioned former Governor Smith as the next governor of New York. The sentiment expressed in that convention set the state aflame for Smith. The enormous majority he received demonstrates conclusively that he had the solid support of labor and the forward looking citizenship.

The election of Mr. J. C. Walton as governor of Oklahoma was another victory for the wage earners. They had joined with the farmers and made an excellent campaign for the progressive candidate for governor. The re-election of Governor Blaine in Wisconsin was the result of his progressive administration. He was heartily supported by labor.

Among the pleasant surprises of the campaign were the many requests made before and after the primary election by members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives for their legislative records on measures of interest to labor.

The committee was very active in the primary campaign which resulted in the defeat of a number of anti-labor members of congress. Among them were Senators New and McCumber and Representatives Campbell and Copley. It was believed that the greater the agitation for acceptable candidates in the primaries the more interest would there be in the elections. While the newspapers were daily printing statements that there seemed to be no interest being taken in the campaign in the various states, the correspondence received by the committee proved otherwise. Much attention was given to the determination of the politicians to destroy the direct primary system in some of the states. Organizers were sent into Idaho to help in defeating a plan to destroy the direct primary. This question was called to the attention of the labor organizations in all states. President Gompers also wrote a letter to Senator Borah which was used in the campaign. It is now said that the abolishment of the direct primaries for state officials helped to defeat both Governor Miller and Senator Calder, and helped in the election of Governor Smith and Dr. Copeland. The people are aroused in the primaries and have more interest in the election. Early in the year the publicity bureau of the national republican party began criticizing the American Federation of Labor and labor generally. Undoubtedly it was believed that the propaganda spread against labor since the armistice had been so effective that any attack on labor would discredit those whom labor supported. Instead, the propaganda aroused the wage earners to the dangers of re-electing the present members of congress.

Some confusion was caused by the distribution of legislative records of members of congress that appeared to be sent out in the interest of organized labor. However, these records were not intended to apply to strictly labor questions, but to issues which were said to affect the whole people. The influence of the American labor movement was so effective that misunderstandings were soon eliminated.

While it is known that many friends of labor were elected members of the House of Representatives, until the official reports are received a list cannot be prepared.

Among the successful candidates for senator supported by the National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee are:

Arizona—Henry F. Ashurst, Dem.
California—Hiram W. Johnson, Rep.
Delaware—Thomas F. Bayard, Dem.
Indiana—Samuel M. Ralston, Dem.
Iowa—Smith W. Brookhart, Rep.
Maryland—William Cabell Bruce, Dem.
Michigan—W. N. Ferris, Dem.
Minnesota—Henrik Shipstead, F.-Lab.
Mississippi—Hubert D. Stephens, Dem.

Montana—Burton K. Wheeler, Dem.
 Nebraska—R. B. Howell, Rep.
 Nevada—Key Pittman, Dem.
 New Jersey—Edward I. Edwards, Dem.
 North Dakota—Lynn J. Frazier, Rep.
 New Mexico—Andrieus A. Jones, Dem.
 New York—Royal S. Copeland, Dem.
 Rhode Island—Peter G. Gerry, Dem.
 Tennessee—Kenneth D. McKellar, Dem.
 Utah—William H. King, Dem.
 Virginia—Claude A. Swanson, Dem.
 Washington—C. C. Dill, Dem.
 West Virginia—Matthew M. Neely, Dem.
 Wisconsin—Robert M. LaFollette, Rep.
 Wyoming—John B. Kendrick, Dem.
 The following candidates opposed were defeated:

Delaware—T. Coleman du Pont.
 Indiana—Alfred J. Beveridge.
 Michigan—Charles B. Townsend.
 Minnesota—Frank B. Kellogg.
 New Jersey—Joseph S. Frelinghuysen.
 New York—William H. Calder.
 North Dakota—Forster J. McCumber.
 Ohio—Atlee Pomerene.
 Washington—Miles Polindexter.
 West Virginia—Howard Sutherland.
 Wyoming—Frank W. Mondell.

While a report was made to the Executive Council and to the American Federation of Labor convention held in Cincinnati on the activities of the National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee up to that time, it was deemed best to include that portion in the full report of what was done during the entire primary and election campaigns. The result has been gratifying. The lack of funds proved a hindrance in sending out as many speakers as it was hoped to the various states. We utilized the activity of the A. F. of L. organizers. Most of the meager funds at our disposal were utilized in the printed word. The A. F. of L. is most fortunately situated to be of service not only to labor but to the high aspirations of the masses of our people. Our international unions, state federations, city central bodies, their non-partisan legislative committees and our organizers are permanent bodies through whom may be conveyed the necessary activities in order that the rights and welfare of the masses of our country may be protected and promoted not only upon the economic but also the political field. We cannot too highly commend the spirit of solidarity and activity so excellently displayed. For our part, we may also add that we gave every effort within our power to contribute to the accomplishment of the results both in the primaries and the recent elections.

Our committee recommends that it be authorized in the name of the Executive Council to endeavor to bring about co-operation of all labor and progressive organizations and groups so that there may be unity of action to protect and promote the rights and interests of the working people and the people generally.

(Signed)

SAMUEL GOMPERS,
 FRANK MORRISON,
 JAS. O'CONNELL,

Executive Committee, A. F. of L. National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee.

The one bright spot in this local is the secretary. He seems to be out there trying all the time. He has not realized fully the authority resting with the financial secretary of local unions, but I believe he does now. As a result there will be quite a change here. Men like Gross and Simon will learn that the constitution is made for all the members alike—that owing 80 or 90 weeks' dues and continuing your membership in the union is impossible. The books and accounts here, as natural with Matt Gerlach on the job, are fine. Cash and stamp accounts correct. This place (Chattanooga) with its multitude of autos on the street and the apparent life manifested, really fools people. A real cigar town on the surface. But it is not. The manner in which these "renegade card men" turn down union labels. Ask the Garment Workers. Right now it is a question if they can hold the union card in the restaurants. Wait until these card men have trouble then they will call on every label man in the district and will be helped as usual, and when the trouble is over the same old story with label goods—do not tickle their non-union palate. How do you like it? Some of you will read this, I hope. My name is attached to the report of Financier's Examinations. Statement as follows:

The books and accounts of this local are now in the best condition that Union No. 405, Birmingham, ever had them in. Benefit cards and expense vouchers all on file. Cash and stamp account accounts correct. Ledger nicely posted; nice work. Birmingham said to be one of the best cities in the south, and has as little cigar manufacturing in it as any place in the U. S. Something needs fixing here. Someone could manufacture cigars and sell them here. We must see if we cannot get the maker here and then the Birmingham dealers to take hold. They smoke enough cigars here but they come from other places, the cigar trade could be made an industry here, should be that now. Birmingham is a merchandising city. Statement as follows:

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member, if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

PRIVATE LOANS

Should Randall Hoyd, 105343, deposit his card the secretary is requested to collect the private loan he owes No. 14, Chicago, as he promised to repay this loan immediately after it was granted. Union 14 saved his card with this loan, which was for dues, but he has not responded with a single cent since he received it.

Secretary holding card of A. E. Feters, 100617, please collect private loan granted him by 114, Jacksonville, Ill., and remit the amount to Union 114. Others owing private loans to Union 114 are warned to remit or their names will appear in the next issue of the Journal.

Union 486, New Westminster, B. C., notifies all members owing private loans, or other money to this local, to pay up at once or their names will be published in the February Journal. Some of these loans have been running for a number of years and there are other members coming through who need help.

Any secretary holding the card of Nick Vreeman, No. 37720, is requested to collect $15.00 private loan and forward same to Union 282, Bridgeport, Conn. This member has had ample time and has also been able to return this loan but has not done so and if not heard from by next regular meeting the union will take action.

IN MEMORIAM

In reporting deaths kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work: Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and, in addition, send in such cards, but place in your letter the information necessary, as the letter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 139 to 145, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

The amendment of 500, Tampa, providing for a fine upon local unions not acting upon amendments proposed, as published in the November Journal.

Received the endorsements of 44, St. Louis; 132, Brooklyn; 76, Hannibal; 138, Newark; 114, Jacksonville; 130, Saginaw; 484, Tampa; 512, Tampa; 514, Tampa; 506, Tampa; 474, Tampa.

Not having received the required number of endorsements it can not be submitted to a vote of local unions.

The amendment of Unions 87, 132, 149 and 292, Brooklyn, as published in the December Journal, as follows: "Amend Sections 205 and 206 of the Constitution as follows: Strike out the words 'Greater New York' and insert the word 'Manhattan'."

Received the endorsement of Unions 44, St. Louis, and 218, Binghamton.

The amendment of 138, Newark, as published in the December Journal, as follows:

Amend Section 150 by striking out on lines 31, 32, 33, after the word "thousand" "no union shall be allowed to furnish the labels for cigars made in whole or in part by machinery."

Section as amended to read:

Sec. 150. Each local union shall furnish through the shop collectors or committeemen (as the case may be) to all strictly union shops, free of charge, as many of the labels as may be required from week to week for all cigars actually made by members of the union and persons holding retiring cards. All label orders shall be signed by the shop collector; the label order blanks shall be furnished by the International President at cost. No shop shall be considered a strictly union shop unless the packers of the shop are members of the International Union, and the apprentice law of the local union be complied with. Where the manufacturer deals in Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, it shall be optional with local unions to withhold the label from such firm. It shall be optional with local unions to grant the union label to any manufacturer or firm whose name or firm name appears in or about the box containing Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, or whose name or firm name appears on or about such non-union cigars. All labels issued must bear the ink stamp. It shall be optional with local unions to paste them on the boxes. But in no case shall the union label be used in a factory in the United States or Canada which pays less than $9.00 per thousand for making or less than $1.00 for packing per thousand for mold work—5 molds of 20 bunches. Nor which pays less than $10.00 per thousand for hand work, less than 4 molds of 10 bunches each with press on table, or two 20-bunch molds in shaper press, to be considered hand work. Nor shall it be allowed on any cigars sold for less than $25.00 per thousand. This shall not prevent a local union from establishing a minimum bill of prices on small cigars four inches in length or less, and weighing not more than three pounds per thousand. Subject to the approval of the International President and International Executive Board. This shall not disbar local unions from establishing a price above $25.00 per thousand. It shall be optional with local unions to grant labels to members who are not employing any journeymen if they have been members for less than one year. This shall not apply to members suspended who were, prior to their suspension, members of the International Union for one year or longer, provided they be reinstated within six months after suspension.

But in no event shall a manufacturer be permitted to use the label who offers presents as an inducement for the sale of his goods, but this shall not be so construed as to prevent a manufacturer from issuing coupons to the consumer which may be redeemed in presents or otherwise.

All labels must be pasted upon the boxes before the boxes leave the factory.

Received the endorsement of Union 218, Binghamton.

Union No. 132 proposed the following amendment. The first paragraph of Section 2 of the Constitution shall read:

The next convention of the Cigarmakers' International Union shall be held on the second Monday in August, 1923.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues for 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and international assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.

The benefits of all members initiated under the foregoing provisions shall be:

First—Strike benefit of $8.00 per week for the first sixteen weeks and $4.00 per week thereafter, in the event of an authorized strike, involving members who have been such for three months. A member wishing to draw his card shall be granted a loan amounting to his indebtedness for due stamps and assessments and to $2, the same to be charged on his card as a traveling loan. No member accepting this privilege can return to the local and again be placed on the strike list.

Second—In all other respects the laws and rules governing arrearages of dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of benefits, and all other laws governing the members paying sixty-cent dues, shall apply to members enrolled under this special law.

Third—Members enrolling under this special law shall have the privilege of paying sixty-cent weekly dues and all International and local assessments and be entitled to the full benefits.

Fourth—Any member initiated under Section 61a, securing employment in a factory using the label or which pay the regular scale of prices (or should the factory in which he is employed become entitled to the use of the label, or pay the regular scale of prices) shall automatically advance to the full dues-paying class.

Fifth—Members having paid the full contributing weekly dues prior to the adoption of this amendment, or subsequent thereto, cannot be transferred to come under Section 61a, except as provided in the following paragraph:

Sixth—All former fifteen-cent Class A members now in good standing may have the privilege of transferring to the class of membership provided for in this special law. All former fifteen-cent Class A members who have become suspended may rejoin under the provisions of this special law, without the payment of an initiation fee.

Seventh—All members initiated under the provisions of this special law, at the expiration of nine months, shall be transferred to the full regular dues paying membership and be entitled to all benefits provided for in the constitution, with the constitutional time limits. A member having paid the weekly dues of thirty cents and forty cents and fifty cents and the stipulated assessments, transferring to the full contributing dues paying membership, shall be given credit for time on benefits for one-half of the time he may have paid such dues. For example, a member having contributed the dues specified in Section 61a for nine months shall be credited on time allowance for sick, out of work and death benefits, with nineteen weeks. Fractions of a week shall not be counted.

Eighth—This special law to remain in force until four months after the next convention of the International Union.

Sec. 120. Whenever such General Fund of the International Union shall fall below the sum provided for in Section 179, the Executive Board shall levy an assessment on each member to replenish the same. All members on strike or lockout, if same has been approved by C. M. I. U. of A., shall be exempt from all international assessments levied before or after these members, beginning immediately after the strike or lockout has ended, shall pay the remaining of any assessments levied after said strike or lockout has been approved.

In effect Dec. 1, 1921.

BLUE LABEL.

Section 146. The President of the International Union shall have prepared, printed and registered a trade-mark label, to be known as the Union Label, in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of a box, so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The labels shall be of light blue color, and, no more than four inches in length and no more than one inch in width, and a label two inches in length and no more than one-half inch in width, the latter size to be used on packages containing ten cigars or less. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The proportion of labels used by the Canadian unions to be printed in Canada by order and under the supervision of the International President. The International President shall have prepared, printed and registered a stogie trade-mark label in perforated sheets of not less than ten, suitable to be pasted on the outside of the box so that the label will be conspicuously displayed. The label shall be light blue in color. All labels issued shall be printed in series and numbered consecutively. The wording and size to be the same as the present stogie label.

Amend Section 117 by adding after the word due stamp, on third line, or assessments levied, so as to read:

Sec. 117. Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of one year shall be granted an out of work stamp, which shall be credited to members in lieu of the weekly due stamp and assessments levied of the denomination and in the class to which said member belongs, providing he or she shall be out of work for at least two weeks. No other change.

The amendment to postpone the May, 1922, convention was adopted. Any time after April, 1922, a convention may be called by a majority vote of the membership at large. Any local union may propose that we hold a convention any time after that date, April, 1922.

UNION NOTES

Notes by Union 97, Boston: In ye good old times our grandfathers like to paint we revealed in truck and store orders. The laborer seldom if ever had any money. He did not go to places of amusement or buy postage stamps. Teachers were paid four times a year. And all this has been changed by and through the trade union.—So the large corporations want to repeal all our laws restricting immigration. If labor is governed by the laws of supply and demand let us try and control the supply otherwise.—Under the cry of Americanization our friends the enemy tried hard to destroy the American labor movement. They wanted that misnomer—the open shop.—So one of our circuit judges expresses an opinion that congressional legislation does not bother him—he is the whole government, executive, judicial and legislative. Is this a democratic republic or is it an autocracy?

Note.—Just before the Journal went to press we received word of the sudden death of Henry Abrahams, who has been contributing these notes regularly for many years.

THE UNION LABEL.

By H. E. Scheck, President Chicago Trades Union Label League.

'Tis Union Label Month, my friend,

Let's make it real effective;

And when we have some coin to spend,

Let's be a good detective.

Hunt up the stores where goods are sold

Which bear the Union Label.

It may not be an easy task

To find our little emblem;

That's just the reason you must ask,

And do so without tramblin'.

Speak up—and let the merchant know

You want the Union Label.

If every day this month you'll try

And boost the Union Label,

The reluctant merchant soon will buy,

And soon you'll find you're able

To buy these goods in every store.

Gee! Won't that make the "open-shopper" sore?

No Lack of Labor in Alabama.

A rumor has been started by those who seek to amend the immigration laws so that this country may be flooded with cheap labor from Europe that, because of some public improvements, there is a scarcity of labor in Alabama. The Alabama State Federation of Labor says this is not true. Do not permit your members to be fooled by any such reports.

Farm Labor Union Work.

The farmers are not falling for the railroad propagandists.

The farmer has begun to realize that the worker is the greatest purchaser of farm products and that the more wages the worker receives the more food and clothing he buys.

The Denison (Tex.) Daily Herald tells an interesting incident. Here are the facts:

"Early Saturday morning circus days in Denison were brought to mind as farm wagons and farm trucks laden with farmers began to pour into the city. Many of these also carried farm products. They assembled near the Labor Temple and shortly after a parade of about 1,500 railroad men now on strike and about 500 farmers was formed and began moving to the baseball field, where the trucks and wagons were parked and the laboring men gathered around a bandstand to hear speakers selected to address them.

"The parade was led by Rev. E. C. Atherton, minister of Sherman, who carried a large United States flag.

"During the speaking the striking craftsmen were invited to march to the baseball field, where there were foodstuffs from the farms brought from Oklahoma and Grayson counties to be distributed free of charge to the striking shopmen.

"Strikers received eggs, chickens, cabbage, corn, syrup, peas, beans, potatoes, onions, okra, sweet peppers, flour, watermelons, lard, cantaloupes, grapes, preserves, plums and blackberries.

"On a large truck load of produce was a banner bearing this inscription: 'Striking shop craftsmen, be firm. The Farm Labor Union's first mite. Coming once a week if it lasts 10 years. Remember July 22.'

"Painted on the banner was a figure representing a farmer reaching over a fence shaking hands with another representing a shop craftsman. Under this painting was the following: 'Farm and labor shaking hands, and they thought we wouldn't do it.'

It is certainly cheerful to hear that the farmers are standing by their fellow producers.

And besides the farmers' wheat and other products may go up in price if the car shortage increases the demand for same. Many are going to hold their grain for the cost of production. If the railroad executives autocratically hold out—other farmers will be compelled to hold their grain.

"It's an ill wind that blows nobody good."

A state grows in power as its citizens become enlightened.—Storrs.

The law of nations is founded upon reason and justice, and the rules of conduct governing individual relations between citizens or subjects of a civilized state are equally applicable as between enlightened nations.—Grover Cleveland.

The memory of Lincoln
Lincoln's will live through the ages.
Words Live. His place among the immortals is fixed and will ever remain secure. His wisdom, too, as expressed in his many speeches, lives and serves as an inspiration for all who believe in the principles that have made our nation the land of the free.

Lincoln was and is known as The Great Emancipator. Not only was he the emancipator of the chattel slave, he was the emancipator of all labor, in his heart at least. He was endowed with vision and blessed with a straight thinking, incorruptible mind. He had the courage to voice his convictions and above all of our chief executives he stands out as the true champion of real democracy.

It should afford the whole people, the common people especially, great pleasure and it would surely afford them much wisdom were they to study carefully the speeches and writings of this real man, easily the peer of America's greatest.

What Has the Workers, seemingly Union Done? intelligent along other lines less vital to their own particular interests, often ask the question, "What has the union done for me?"

Among those who have asked the question, seriously enough perhaps if a lack of understanding can be termed seriousness, have been cigar makers.

To enumerate the many things that the Cigar Makers' International Union has done for those engaged in the cigar industry, both those who are organized and those who are unorganized, would require far too much space for any one issue of our Journal.

Only a few "old timers" have any defi ite idea of the conditions prevalent in the cigar industry at the inception of the International Union. To the great majority of those now engaged in making cigars such conditions are absolutely unknown and almost beyond comprehension.

Two outstanding conditions now enjoyed by both the organized and unorganized cigar makers, viz., reasonable hours of labor and sanitary conditions, came only after years of persistent, heartbreaking work and constant agitation by the loyal members of the union. These relatively improved conditions were not, as many seem to think, a gift from kind and generous employers.
The twelve and sometimes the sixteen hour day under unsanitary conditions that would now be considered as intolerable by the most exploited cigar maker in the trade was then the general rule rather than the infrequent exception. The most poorly paid unorganized cigar maker working for the most bitter of the labor hating corporations today enjoys far better working conditions than were the general average in the early days of the union's existence.

The Cigar Makers' International Union reduced the hours of labor and eliminated the tenement house and the sweat shop style of production. It has increased wages, improved shop conditions, decreased sickness, increased length of life, etc., not easily, not without an effort, but with a strong,
steady push by its members!

So we find that even the unorganized worker as he or she sits in a fairly sanitary shop, working less hours and under more favorable conditions generally than previously enjoyed has cause to thank the organization, although he or she did not contribute a single thing toward his or her own betterment.

The Union is sometimes blamed for the things it has NOT done. While it is a fact that we have been unable to do all the things for the good of those dependent upon the industry for a livelihood that we should have liked to do, and we have not gone as far as our vision may have reached, why? Because, after all, the union is only the machinery and the power to move the machinery as we should like it to be moved rests with the cigar makers themselves and the organization has been denied the help of many of them from the fact that they have never affiliated themselves with us, never became a part of the power necessary to properly move the machinery. The things that have been accomplished, and they are many, things that have helped the unorganized as well as the organized, have been done by the unionists and in spite of the indifference of those who have remained on the outside. This part of the workers that elected to play the individual rather than the collective hand at bargaining, are clearly responsible for the things that remain undone and they should properly be the ones blamed instead of the Union.

The Union is only a means to an end and this means will be strong or weak according to the numerical strength of the organization. In any industry where the great mass of the workers have supported the organization of their craft there is no need for the question, "What has the Union done for me?"

Labor's Interest in Schools.

No part of our national life and no part of our government is of greater importance to all the people than is that part appertaining to schools.

The free public school, primarily a fruit of organized labor's demands, is and will continue to be the general seat of learning for the masses of this and future generations. Few children from the homes of the workers will be fortunate enough to find the ways and means to attend any other school. Even those few who may be fortunate enough to continue through the higher grades usually secure their grammar school training in the free public schools. As the public school is and will continue to be the general means of our children's education it becomes a matter of vital interest to all of us, parents as well as children, that they be correctly and truthfully taught.

While organized labor seeks no undue advantage in the public schools we are well aware of the fact that far too few teachers are properly qualified to truthfully teach even the fundamentals of labor economics and that far too many text books are most decidedly biased on this subject as well as on many other vital subjects wherein the whole truth and nothing but the truth should be religiously adhered to. Teaching the truth from a truthful text on labor economics, history or civil government is not asking any undue advantage for organized labor. Our position is not narrow. It is, on the other hand, based upon the broad conception of truth and we know that such a conception will make for tolerance and better citizenship whether the child be from the home of a worker or from the home of the rich.

Labor, business and government form a triangle that dominates to a great extent the lives of all the people and unless the child's education is properly and truthfully grounded on this triangle we cannot hope for the fullest measure of progress in our national life or for the best in the social or economic lives of the people.

We who are parents have perhaps paid too little attention to these vital matters in the past. We have criticized but have offered little in the way of constructive suggestion. Our interest should make it a duty that we aid in every way possible any plan that will tend to improve a condition that is recognized by all to be far from good.

Among the most important of the many agencies that will make for good is the organization of the teachers for the study of true economics. Educators themselves often need educating. Many of them are especially deficient in learning when the question of labor economics is considered. In the university of the common good, the meetings of their profession, they will learn the truths of the labor movement, what it really means to good government and to posterity, and they will then be in a better position to disseminate knowledge that is of practical every day need rather than the froth that now comprises so much of the schooling of our children.

Dissension.

Internal dissension over immaterial things is one of the great obstacles the labor movement has to overcome.

We can, and do, meet the greater obstacles that are meant to impede our progress with a majority strength that makes for success in the long run. We can, and do, successfully smooth out the differences that honestly arise from time to time as regards laws, rules, etc., in their application to our policies and programs.

Internal dissension over immaterial things is the one real menace to be guarded against and it is the only way that a labor organization can be really disrupted. Among the outstanding causes of such dissension we find racial, religious and partisan political prejudice, elements that have absolutely nothing in common with the economic movement of organized labor.

What possible difference does one's race, religion or political belief make so long as he is a loyal trade unionist, fighting for the right, shouldering his share of the responsibility and paying his just portion of the expense entailed? Yet we find that so potent is this weapon that it is one of the most widely used of the many schemes employed by our enemies to disrupt us.

We are organized for the purpose of securing for ALL who toil with hand or brain more of the better things in life. We cannot hope for full success until we can expunge from our internal affairs all racial, religious and klannish tendencies.

In view of the known attitude of those who hope to disrupt us, knowing as we do that they employ every agency possible to further their ends, even to the hiring of spies and known disrupters, it is well that we watch carefully the chap who injects any thing into our meetings that has not to do with our common aims and that is not in keeping with our common cause.

The daily press, generally, has denounced in bitter editorials the acquittal of the five men recently tried in connection with the Herrin, Ill., mine riots.

Murder Is Murder.

They sum up the verdict as a travesty upon justice and the burden of their lament is "Murder is murder." They "view the verdict with alarm," claiming that in its effect it "gives to labor the right to murder."

Let us see if murder is murder. Was it murder at Homestead? Was it murder at Ludlow? And will it be murder, and the punishment for murder administered, in Arkansas where only recently a worker, the father of three children, was lynched for no other reason than that he was on strike against a 25% reduction in wages as a shopman being formerly employed by a railroad now operating under Judge Wilkerson's infamous injunction?

The Herrin, Ill., News sizes up the situation locally as follows:

"As the trials of other indicted miners proceed, the citizens of this community are wondering more and more why there is not some punishment that can be dealt out to an outlaw operator, the only one of his kind that was produced by the long suspension of 1922 in the entire Middle West. If the law can be called upon to punish men out of employment for protecting men attacked by gunmen, is there not a law that will protect the community from invasion by a man whose thirst for quick wealth will permit him to come into a peaceable and law-abiding county with an insulting and arrogant army of gunmen, terrorize the entire country-side tell a labor union to go to h—, refuse the advice of county officials, operators and others, block the public highway traffic and the entire community into a state of civil war and shoot down miners who seek a peaceful conference, that this man, the most fitting example of the profiteer that the past war period has produced, may make, as was testified to, his $5,000 to $7,000 a day profits? The other side of Herrin challenges the serious consideration and study of every citizen of the nation."

When industry puts an army into the field to break the spirit of men whose only aim is to better their living and working conditions, when the machine gun is used instead of mediation, when reason is dethroned, justice denied and the passions of men are inflamed by abuse intended to incite violence then murder is murder, and the history of the labor movement shows clearly the dripping red hands of those responsible for it.

Wm. H. Barr, President of the National Founders' Association, which is one of the most reactionary and domineering among the many employers' associations in this country, asks that Congress determine "What value, if any, the trade unions are to the public."

Barr's Questions.

He furthermore submits thirteen questions, many of them pure sophistry based on nothing more tangible than the workings of his own reactionary brain, with the hope, no doubt, that they may be put over on the public as a part of the vicious propaganda disseminated by this class of labor-hating employers.

Mr. Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, has commented on the questions asked by Mr. Barr, checkmated each of them in turn and has asked a few questions himself basing them squarely upon facts and the American standard of justice and humanity.

We are sorry indeed that lack of space prevents the publishing at this time of Mr. Barr's questions, the comment on each of them by Mr. Gompers and his (Mr. Gompers') questions in reply. It is surely worth the while of any one to secure a copy of the American Federationist for January, 1923, and read the entire article carefully.

Mr. Gompers, for organized labor, issues the following challenge, which up to date, has not been accepted by those to whom it is addressed.

We challenge the organized labor-hating employers of the country to lay facts on the table before any impartial tribunal or commission. Labor will answer all questions honestly and fully. Our proposal is that representatives of the American Federation of Labor and the United States Chamber of Commerce meet to agree upon a proposal for the creation of a fair commission and that this agreement be passed upon as fair by the Federal Council of Churches, the National Catholic Welfare Council, the Authors' League, and the National Federation of Women's Clubs. Under such a fair plan so approved let a commission be constituted. We challenge the National Founders and every other organization and corporation of anti-trade union employers to a show down of truth. Will they accept?

Opportunities may have been scarce in Shakespeare's time. It is a sure thing that they were not as plentiful as they are today. In any event Shakespeare was mistaken when he wrote that opportunity comes only once in a lifetime and if taken at the opportune time leads on to success, or words to that effect. The statement was not true, even in William's time. It certainly is not true today.

Opportunity is knocking at the door of all men and women, enterprises and nations every day in every year. He who waits for the high tide or alleged psychological moment is lost. The opportunity to improve every day in every way is perpetually with us.

The opportunity to increase wages and improve economic conditions is with us all the time just so long as there is a formidable trade union movement, and it is opportune at all times to embrace this opportunity. There are no high tides nor low tides. The "I Will" spirit and determination to join the union and forever stick is the high tide of opportunity in our economic lives.

The Monthly Labor Review for Labor January, 1923, issued under date of Cost. February 6 by the U. S. Department of Labor, publishes a résumé of its investigations in the saw mills in the United States. In this report they bring out the interesting fact that this investigation showed that the productivity was more than double the productivity shown from computations of the census figures, all of which goes to show how unreliable census figures may be. The report shows great variations in the output in different states. It shows that "the minimum state average output reported for all employees was fifty feet per hour for employees in Georgia and the maximum 117 feet in Oregon," and that "the minimum of band sawyers was $0.40 an hour in Georgia and North Carolina and the maximum $1.50 per hour in the Oregon plants," and the further remarkable statement that "the lowest labor cost for this occupational group was found in Oregon." This statement on its face proves the oft-repeated statement of trade unionists that generally speaking good wages don't increase the cost of production; that on the contrary in Oregon, where the maximum price of labor is the highest, the labor cost is the lowest.

During the flush times of Lamentations. the war and for a short time immediately thereafter when wages were "good" and jobs plentiful some erroneously thought that those conditions would last forever and that they did not need any union.

They have found out from bitter experience that they were mistaken. At the first sign of ill times and jobs not so plentiful wages went down with a rush. Stock was bad and the "good-natured" foreman resumed his old time bullying, slave-driving role.

The organizers and officers of our unions report that hundreds of our former members are now bemoaning their fate and bitterly and vigorously lamenting their action in dropping the union.

Union 97, Boston, the general labor movement of Boston and Massachusetts, and the International Union have suffered an irreparable loss in the passing away of Henry Abrahams. He was a thorough-going, up-standing trade unionist with unshaken faith and loyalty to our great movement. He was frail in stature, but mighty in faith, determination, and willingness to sacrifice for labor's great cause. He insisted on working and did so right up to the day preceding his checking out, which occurred on January 15, 1923. He had one of the largest funerals ever held in Boston. During the time his remains were lying in state in a public hall the Governor's staff, city officials and thousands of men and women engaged in all occupations passed in review. He was beloved by many, had few enemies, and was respected by all, and is universally mourned.

Reducing wages is a favorite pastime of non-union manufacturers, and they have been working overtime at it ever since the depression started.

"It can't be done" is a favorite expression of non-union manufacturers when discussing the power and influence of the union on bettering wages and working conditions. This refrain has been worked to an extent that has developed a psychology in the minds and hearts of too many non-unionists. The only change we should make in the quoted sentence which starts this paragraph would be to strike out "can't" and insert "can."

February 5, 1923.

Mr. G. W. Perkins,
Int'l President,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:

As a small manufacturer and card member of the International Union I am taking the liberty of addressing you upon a matter of considerable importance to small union shops directly, and to the membership of the union indirectly.

I have often found it hard to obtain the kind of tobacco that I should like and to keep it uniform. In conversation with other union manufacturers, even with those who employ from five to twenty workmen, I find they experience the same difficulty.

Won't you please offer some suggestion whereby the difficulties the small union shops have in maintaining a uniformity of tobacco can be overcome, and tobacco obtained in lots that we are able to pay for without tying our money up in stock that can not be promptly turned into the necessary cash.

Yours very truly.

A MANUFACTURER CARD MEMBER.

Chicago, February 8, 1923.

Mr. _____,

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of the 5th inst. in which you point out certain difficulties small union manufacturers have to meet in the purchase of raw material for manufacturing purposes, and may say that I am in full accord with the purposes you have in mind. There is no question that the issue you raise is of paramount importance to all concerned. The larger manufacturers in and out of the trusts and chain shop combinations, having unlimited resources at their command, go into the markets and buy everything in sight. They even maintain their own packing houses and have agents constantly in the field looking for bargains. Through these methods they have an advantage over the growers, packers, and the independent leaf houses. They can hold off purchasing and thereby force lower prices from the grower.

Any well worked out plan to circumvent this monopoly would, I think, appeal to the grower in a sense and probably receive his hearty co-operation. I deem it advisable, however, to say to you that, while the International Union would gladly assist our small union manufacturers, it is, as you know, not engaged in trade and commerce. The union is purely a labor organization and devoted to the organization of the workers in the cigar industry. It can and will, however, be helpful in creating co-operation whereby a plan for the purpose of accomplishing the object you seek can be worked out and put into force.

There are several means whereby the object sought can be obtained. One is the well known co-operative plan. Another is the formation of an association consisting of union manufacturers for the purpose of buying and distributing on a pro rata basis leaf tobacco suitable for cigar purposes. An association such as this should be open to all union manufacturers with a limitation that would protect the small manufacturer in maintaining his pro rata share of the kind and quality of tobacco in hand and ready for distribution. This association could be controlled on a strictly democratic basis with one vote for each stockholder regardless of the amount of stock he may own, with hard and fast lines set forth in a constitution and by-laws.

The number of associations doing business wherein they have a central buying and distributing office with its many branches in which the products used in retail stores are handled, is enormous. An association started on these plans or principles has thousands of stores scattered all over the country that buy everything they use direct from the central distributing association. The central distributing association can go on the open market and buy up the whole output of a boot and shoe manufacturer. This enormous quantity of shoes is not sent to the central house, but is handled through it and the shoes they distribute as per the wants and requests of their many retail stores. They buy cloth and every kind of merchandise in enormous quantities at inside, wholesale prices and in which no profit is made by the central buying power. The central buying power is a non-profit concern. It is managed by hired managers and a superintendent. There is no middle-man's profit.

There are plenty of successful going associations with the object such as you have in mind now in existence. There is no reason why the union cigar manufacturers cannot start an association of this kind and reap some of the benefits, and the sooner they do so the better it will be for all concerned. It would be an easy matter to get the by-laws and constitutions of these associations, and a committee then could work out a plan that I am sure would be successful in meeting the object sought.

If an association such as we are discussing can be formed the International Union will be helpful in any way possible in starting and assisting such an organization. It however, cannot assume any financial responsibility or obligation. I am sure it would agree to serve on a joint board of arbitration for the settlement of disputes and for the purpose of auditing stocks and all finances associated with the enterprise.

I am publishing this correspondence in the February issue of our Official Journal, and am herewith inviting union manufacturers as well as our own members to give the matter serious consideration and to write freely for or against the proposition. If enough manufacturers show interest in the matter I shall be glad to be of what assistance I can in calling a conference at some convenient central point, where the matter can be discussed in all its ramifications.

Yours very truly,
G. W. PERKINS, Int'l Pres.

Workers' Education Bureau of America.

476 West 24th Street, New York City.

(Endorsed by the American Federation of Labor, American Federation of Teachers, International Unions, State Federations of Labor, Central Bodies, Local Unions and the Co-operative League of America.)

January 20, 1923.

To the Members of the American Federation of Labor.

Greeting:

Under date of January 15, 1923, President Gompers advised you that negotiations to establish co-operation between the American Federation of Labor and the Workers' Educational Bureau had been satisfactorily completed and that the reorganization of the Bureau under this agreement had taken place. Mr. Gompers designated George W. Perkins, John P. Frey and the undersigned to represent the A. F. of L. on the Executive Committee of the Workers' Education Bureau. At the reorganization meeting of the Bureau I was elected chairman of the Executive Committee. The purpose of this Bureau is to develop a nation-wide plan for adult workers' education and to co-operate with organizations interested in this work.

Since conscious progress must have its roots in educational work this field offers as great a return to the labor movement as any in which it could invest time and money. There is no phase of labor activity which is not now calling for better trained directors and more carefully analyzed policies. The maintenance of trade agreements and the machinery of collective bargaining are making increasingly heavier demands for specialized industrial information and for understanding of both financial and industrial organization.

Having in mind this growing need the Cincinnati convention urged that all affiliated organizations appoint educational committees to assist in furthering a program of adult workers' education. Some international unions, state federations and central bodies have already taken action in conformance with this suggestion.

The second practical step necessary in carrying out this program is affiliation of all labor unions with the Bureau. Annual dues for affiliation are as follows:

$25.00 for international and national unions.
$20.00 for state federations of labor and other state labor organizations.
$10.00 for city central unions, district councils and labor educational enterprises.
$5.00 for local unions and student associations.
$2.00 for associate members.
$1.00 for student members.

Annual dues entitle you to the full services of the Bureau and representation in annual conferences. A membership application blank is enclosed with an addressed envelope.

The Bureau is ready to help in the development of educational work of national organizations as well as in local educational enterprises or activities. A Workers' Bookshelf with vol umes especially prepared for men and women of labor is in active preparation. Outlines for class study are likewise ready for distribution. Manuals on general principles have been published as well as much other helpful material. In all this work representatives of the A. F. of L. have taken part. I am glad to submit this practical activity for your consideration and most heartily and earnestly urge your co-operation.

If there is any additional information that you desire I shall be glad to serve you. Will you not consider this proposition at your earliest opportunity and take necessary action for affiliation?

Fraternally yours,

MATTHEW WOLL,

Chairman, Executive Committee, Workers' Education Bureau; Chairman, Committee on Education, American Federation of Labor.

CORRESPONDENCE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15, 1923.

National and International Unions, State Federations, City Central Bodies:

Dear Sirs and Brothers: During the past year the Committee on Education of the American Federation of Labor and the Workers' Education Bureau co-operated under a temporary agreement. A number of conferences were held, the results of which were reported to the Executive Council from time to time and to the forty-second annual convention held in Cincinnati. That convention approved the work thus far accomplished and directed the Committee on Education to continue conferences to develop a satisfactory plan under which the A. F. of L. would be adequately represented in directing the work of the Bureau so that the American Federation of Labor and the Bureau might continue to co-operate.

Such plans were developed and have been approved by the Executive Council. Under the terms of this agreement an executive committee of nine members was created to direct the policies and activity of the Bureau. The chairman of the Federation Committee on Education, Mr. Matthew Woll, has been elected chairman of the Executive Committee of the Workers' Education Bureau and two other members of our committee, Mr. George W. Perkins and Mr. John P. Frey, have been elected members of the same Executive Committee.

In accordance with the convention instructions I wish to commend the work of this Bureau to you and your membership for the purpose of furthering adult workers' education. I earnestly urge all affiliated organizations to co-operate in this work through affiliation with the Bureau. International and national labor unions, state federations of labor, city central bodies, and all labor organizations directly or indirectly affiliated to the A. F. of L. are eligible to membership in the Bureau. There is also a provision for individual membership. Mr. Spencer Miller, Jr., Secretary, Workers' Education Bureau, 465 West 23rd street, New York City, will be glad to furnish all information and data respecting the work of the Bureau. It is earnestly hoped that you will communicate direct with him regarding the matter.

Hoping to hear from you favorably at your early convenience, I am

Fraternally yours,

SAM'L GOMPERS,

President, A. F. of L.

In response to requests from representatives of the press for an expression of opinion regarding the cabled appeal of the German organized workers, President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor on Friday made the following reply:

The appeal of the representatives of the organized labor movement of Germany has my heartiest support. It deserves serious and sympathetic consideration by the government of the United States.

The era has passed when compulsory labor can be imposed upon workers. The trend toward the abolition of slavery began three-quarters of a century ago.

The heart of the people of France throbs with generosity and is opposed to the imposition of compulsory work upon the people, or any portion of the people of Germany.

The German people must understand that they cannot entirely escape from some reasonable payment for the ravages and devastation which the kaiser in their name so ruthlessly carried on.

Though the Senate of the United States has refused to ratify the Versailles treaty and therefore the United States is not legally bound by its terms, we cannot escape the moral responsibility which devolves upon us of recognizing that it was that treaty which ended the war and that the armistice was merely a stoppage of actual military conflict. In formulating the conditions of the Armistice the United States was a party. Do what we may regarding our refusal to ratify that treaty, a moral obligation in all honor requires that our country shall do its share in bringing about an arrangement between France and Germany so that an honorable settlement of the awful situation arising out of the dispute between these two countries may be accomplished.

I repeat and emphasize the statement I recently made in commenting upon the Ruhr situation, that had our country ratified the treaty, or if we and Great Britain had guaranteed to France the protection which she so naturally and logically needs, that is against future aggressions of Germany, no such situation as that which now exists in the Ruhr would have arisen.

Now, I believe that our government should tender its good offices as mediator. We have no selfish designs upon either of their countries or upon any country, and the offer to act as mediator should in my judgment be made in good faith to France and to Germany and offered without regard to whether either or both nations will be pleased or displeased.

Chicago, Feb. 10, 1923.

The amendment of Union 132, Brooklyn, to Section 2 of the Constitution, providing for a convention in August, 1923, the earliest date it could be held in conformity with our law, should easily secure the required number of seconds.

Reasons for a convention are many, of pressing import, and should be recognized by any of us who really have the welfare of the International Union and our own best interests at heart.

We will never be able to successfully solve the larger problems that confront us through the medium of the initiative and referendum, and all of us recognize the fact that we have some mighty weighty problems that need a solution if we hope to successfully meet the ever-changing conditions in our trade. Changed conditions in the trade must need changes in our basic law. This fact is immutable.

The questions of organization, the advent of machinery into the industry and our relationship to the machine, and our system of benefits, more especially the death benefit, are questions that in themselves necessitate a convention. They are questions that we can never hope to properly settle for the good of all concerned until we meet each other in convention, exchange ideas and in a friendly debate bring out all of the vital points, both pro and con, that may be pertinent to the subject matter under consideration.

Action on several matters of supreme importance was fairly started at the last convention, but so far they have stagnated in their initial stage and they will no doubt die in their infancy unless nourished by further conventional action.

We have under way of consideration a plan whereby it may be possible to have our death benefit underwritten by some regular life insurance company. This subject in itself, and some final disposition of it, necessitates more publicity than it will ever get through the referendum, and the need for its final disposition becomes more pressing each year.

By all means let us have a convention. Its cost, whatever it may be, will prove to be the best money we ever invested.

R. E. VAN HORN,
Secretary Union 14, Chicago.

New York, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1923.

To Officers and Members of Local Unions.

Fellow Craftsmen: The amendment offered by Union No. 90 of New York, as published in this Journal, for a cheaper NON-BENEFICIAL class of membership will remove a good many obstacles and will no doubt lead to a better and finally to a thorough organization of our industry.

The outstanding features of this amendment are:

1. A cheaper membership without division as to their economical and industrial rights and privileges.

2. Not a division of the funds to the detriment of the older members; on the contrary, a protection for them by not assuming new liabilities.

3. By mutual right and privilege to change from the beneficiary to the non-beneficial class if the member so desires.

Trusting that you will endorse this amendment and enable us to bring it before the membership for their approval,

Yours fraternally,

JACOB RHINE,

Sec'y C. M. I. U. of A., Local 90.

New York, Jan. 29, 1923.

The J. A. B. of New York kindly request that you publish in the official journal this letter reference to the statement of the Brooklyn locals, which appeared in the December Journal:

The statement signed by John Braham, chairman for the committee, would lead the members to believe that the New York J. A. B. was entirely responsible for the falling off of the use of the union label in Brooklyn.

The J. A. B. of New York believe that the members know different, for it is not Brooklyn alone that has felt the sting of the open shop campaign by the manufacturers, and also the effects of the prohibition and the general depression in business, but every other locality that had not been thoroughly organized and could not stand the attacks upon organized labor in general has suffered to some extent, not alone in membership, but also in the use of the union label.

The statement reads that since the J. A. B. of New York has taken full control there are very few union label shops in Brooklyn.

This is not a truthful statement; it is made without any knowledge of facts and misleading to the members.

The facts are that when the Brooklyn label committee consolidated with the New York J. A. B. in June, 1921, Brooklyn then had 105 manufacturers recorded who were receiving the union labels.

According to the records of the New York label committee there are 104 manufacturers receiving the union labels up to the present date.

Since the consolidation there have been come manufacturers of Brooklyn who have gone out of business and some others who applied for the union label, which shows conclusively that there is actually an increase of manufacturers that are now receiving the union label, and not as the statement signed by John Braham reads, only a few manufacturers left.

The fact that those manufacturers who are receiving the union label do not produce as many cigars as they did and not employing as many cigarmakers is not the fault of the J. A. B. of New York. The greater part of union label cigars were disposed of in saloons, but since prohibition has gone into effect it has deprived the label manufacturers of this trade and actually owing to all the other general conditions reduced the output of union label cigars until such time as our general agitation can create a new field to dispose of our label cigars.

The J. A. B. of New York, in conjunction with the Central Union Label Council, is actively engaged in promoting the use of the union label in the interest of the Brooklyn cigarmakers just as much as for New York and have shown their activity to the storekeepers and dealers of Brooklyn as well as to all the trade organizations and have safeguarded the interest of the label whenever an attack was made or danger threatened and succeeded in retaining label shops when the manufacturers' associations of Brooklyn declared for the open shop, and when a few of the main label manufacturers declared for the open shop the J. A. B., with the assistance of the Central Union Label Council, put up a real fight in the interest of the union label, and placed the men back to work under union label conditions.

The J. A. B. of New York fails to see what real complaint Brooklyn has as the facts and records prove that through consolidation the Brooklyn members have had an added strength that has been the means of retaining their footing so that through combined confidence and efforts will build up for the future.

In fact, the action of the Brooklyn members shows that they believe in consolidation and closer affiliation, as an amendment which was lately introduced by Union 133 of Brooklyn calling for the consolidation of all the locals into one, but unfortunately did not receive enough indorsements, proves that the interests of both Brooklyn and New York being so closely identified that combined efforts will bring better results for all concerned.

Therefore, the J. A. B. of New York feels it their duty in justice to the members to acquaint them with the facts, and not have them be misled by the unwarranted statement not supported by facts as appeared in the December Journal and signed by John Braham.

We know according to the sentiment of the Brooklyn membership that they are not in sympathy with the statement signed by John Braham.

It is true that the J. A. B., through its limitation of funds, could not carry on as broad an agitation as it desires, but we hope and expect that through some change in the budget and better mutual understandings that will afford us better opportunities for broader agitation for the coming year.

It is only necessary for the membership to have confidence in themselves and lend their combined efforts in the interest of themselves, that will lead to a better, broader and successful constructive agitation for the union label.

Committee,

JOSEPH WOCH,
DAVID LEVY, Sec'y.

REPORTS OF ORGANIZERS

Boston, Mass., Feb. 3, 1923.

The uncertain times in business conditions that have held sway in the cigar industry for many months past because of general depression and the unstable relations of industry seem to be fast coming to an end and brighter prospects throughout the New England states are now clearly visible, awaiting on the spring tide to be ushered into the channels of trade with renewed vigor and prosperity.

Boston, in keeping pace with the times in the cigar industry, and the outlook for increased production by the manufacturers, with greater employment of the workers, is now holding out better prospects for the near future than has been manifest for a long period of time and all forecasts in that direction give promise that it will materialize and continue on a steadier basis than has been felt since the days of the armistice.

There is a danger, however, lurking in the back ground like a spectre of evil omen stalking on the heels of prosperity, waiting to break in on the trade in Boston and its environs. The American Tobacco Trust and other concerns of the cheap paid child labor, non-union stripe, including the Blackstone and Quincy cigars, that still remain on the "We don't patronize list" of organized labor, are exerting every effort to invade the field and unload their product on the market.

The strong barrier that has prevented the sale of those goods in New England in the past has been the demand for the UNION LABEL. Agitation for cigars bearing the Cigarmakers' International Union Label must be kept alive, and the flame of patriotism declaring for organization, fair wages and conditions, must be kept aglow. There is no more potent weapon at the command of the organized workers than the union label. Agitate and educate and true co-operation along trades union lines will bring the desired result.

At meetings of the Union Label Committee and the Executive Board of Union 97 I tried to instill the above principles of "declarations" more forcibly upon the minds of their members as there has been a tendency on the part of some of the members of that local in the recent past to disregard the necessity of label propaganda and "boosting union label goods." I spoke at the Central Labor Council and covered a number of local unions while in the city, appealing for the support and requesting that all smokers demand cigars bearing the label.

Manchester, N. H., is one of the outstanding cigar centers in New England and has a creditable force working at the trade there. Business is good and the industry is "going strong." Reports coming from every angle of the trade in that city carry with them the cheerful tidings that the big firm located there will soon be compelled to enlarge their factory in order to meet the demands for supply of goods. All cigars turned out there bear the union label and the members of that local have been and still are doing active label agitation.

Lowell, one of the cities within a short radius of Boston, is not rated important as a cigar producing center, but her population has the distinction of being strong on consumption of the weed. They take kindly to the product made in New England and smokers there are one of the great assets to fair manufacturers, as the label is demanded on the greater per cent of cigars consumed. Home production has been allowed to shrink. There should be 200 employed at the trade. I addressed the Central Body in the interest of organization and the union label.

Fraternally,
R. S. SEXTON, General Organizer.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 7, 1923.

Since my last report several matters of importance in organization work have taken place. After spending several weeks on the distribution of comparison circulars among the girls of the various suction factories, the following voluntary increases have been made: The firm Congress Cigar Company increased $1 per M; Bayuk Bros., 60c per M; Bobrow Bros., 80c per M. Why the increase? Use your own judgment.

The executive board, Local 165, are doing all in their power to assist in organization work. The rank and file have awakened to the realization that success along the lines of organization depends to a large degree upon their interest and co-operation.

The strike against the firm of Roig & Longsdorf was called off in shop meeting and the greater number returned to work under the old conditions—the old story of the unorganized strike.

Central Labor Union having formed a joint committee with the United Business Men's Association for the purpose of restoring the 5c fare, as embodied in the contract of 1907 existing between the city of Philadelphia and the Rapid Transit Company, was elected auditor on the joint committee. Have assisted in every way possible to arouse public opinion in the interest of their (the people) contract.

The mayor and the Public Service Commission have been petitioned by the joint committee to take steps through the city's legal department for the purpose of getting a decision on the contract. As a delegate to the Union Label Trades Dept. has been successful in creating enthusiasm in support of all union labels.

Organized labor still continues to be neglectful in its patronage of union label goods, cards and buttons. I desire to impress upon organized labor, especially in Philadelphia, in a word the UNION LABEL is a weapon with which the trade union arms the fair employer and disarms the unfair employer. It facilitates organization by increasing the demand for the products of organized workers.

Let me say at this time the committee on organization in the state of Pennsylvania are working hard to make the campaign a success.

In conclusion I want to suggest: Spread the gospel of unionism among the unorganized. In the same measure that it takes root it will benefit you.

HARRY GIFFORD.

Reading, Pa., Feb. 6, 1923.

Since taking up the organization work after Jan. 1, 1923, I find the cigar making industry going along about the same, if not better than in 1922. All the chain shops and mostly all the others are looking for help and are short of production, showing they are selling the product and have orders ahead.

They are doing all this at the same old prices that prevailed during and right after the war, with the cigarmakers reduced in prices for making without a protest. I have spoken at many meetings of other trades hoping to arouse them to the patronage of union label goods and co-operate with organization work, hoping to get the unorganized cigarmakers to see the light of organization and realize they are away behind in the economic world.

The officers and members of many of our locals in Pennsylvania are doing good work in helping to organize the cigarmakers and I believe that in the near future the cigarmakers in many of the underpaid districts of Pennsylvania will take their stand alongside of their fellow workers in the organization of their craft.

In most of the cheap districts the manufacturers tell the men and women that if they know of any cigarmakers to tell them to come around, that there are jobs open at the same old cheap prices, with the same old hard stock and the same old wholesale and retail prices, with all the profits to the manufacturer and dealer and only long hours and hard work for cigarmakers for their share.

No doubt if the active members of the locals in Pennsylvania will keep up the sentiment they started and are now putting forth for organization more cigarmakers will come into the union and help to get some of their share in money instead of long hours and hard work. Let us all say now for a long pull and strong pull for organization in 1923.

WM. A. McCABE, Org.

Montreal, Feb. 4, 1923.

As soon as I got my commission as organizer I consulted with the Executive Board and the Label Committee of Union 58. At these meetings we mapped out a program of organization meetings and of label agitation. The president of the union, Mr. B. Drolet, was appointed to accompany me on intended visits to the different trade union meetings in the city.

We began our campaign by calling a special meeting of the union for the purpose of getting all the members interested in the work of organization. I notified each and every member by postal card to attend this meeting. The meeting was fairly well attended and all those present showed some interest in the work just started. I made as strong an appeal as I could as to the great necessity there is of organizing our trade in the province of Quebec.

On the 29th of November we held a mass meeting which was well attended by members and non-unionists. Quite a number signed up their applications at this meeting.

Another mass meeting was held on the 20th of December, but owing to the inclemency of the weather, the meeting was poorly attended and those of the non-unionists present could not be induced to join at this time. Owing to the holidays coming on and the usual lay off at this time, we gave up the idea of holding any more open meetings for a while.

During spare time I have visited a number of dealers in the interest of blue label cigars. Accompanied by Brother B. Drolet I attended the following meetings, made short talks on the label, and distributed advertising matter: Painters and Decorators, Local 349; Electricians, Local 492; Sheet Metal Workers, Local 251; Street Railway Employees, Local 790; Printing Pressmen, Local 52; Gas Workers, Local 16571; Carpenters and Joiners, Local 134; Bricklayers and Masons, Local 4; Metallic Lathers' Union; Painters and Decorators, Locals 359 and 399; St. Marie Lodge 234, B. of Railway Carmen; Musicians' Union 466; Chauffeurs' Union; Trades and Labor Council; Int. Ass. Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, Local 357; Fur Workers, Local 66; Fire Fighters' Int. Union, Local 62 (day shift); Plumbers and Steam Fitters, Local 144; Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Local 2998; Barbers' Union; Iron Moulders' Union; Electricians, Local 521; Plasterers' Union; Blacksmiths, Local 57.

The state of trade is very dull at this writing. All shops laid off around Christmas and remained closed for three and four weeks. Without exception the shops are all working on a limit and there is still quite a number of people out of work. Indications are that this month will not bring much relief, so the work of organization will be very difficult for some time yet. However, I am hopeful that good results will be achieved in this line as soon as the trade gets back to normal state. There is plenty of material here to work on and we should, by persistent efforts, succeed in building up a good strong organization which would bring better conditions and better wages to those employed in our industry.

Fraternally yours,
A. GARIEPY, Organizer.

New York, Feb. 6, 1923.

On Monday evening, Feb. 5, I visited the Tobacco Exposition at the Grand Central Palace, New York. Although it is called a Tobacco Exposition, there were not many tobacco or cigar exhibits, but the greater part of the space was taken up by machinery. Other parts of the space were taken up by exhibits of pipes, labels, boxes, signs, humidifiers, tobacco journals, molds, gum and cigarette supplies. The Int. Machine Co. exhibited the automatic cigar machine and had four girls in like uniform operating the machine. This machine attracted the interest of most of the visitors and while the cigarmaker is skeptical of the success of this machine, yet they produce cigars. This company also exhibited a banding machine and a suction rolling machine. The Universal Machine Co. exhibited several stripping machines and suction bunch machines. There were two men rolling by hand the suction bunches, which appeared to be pretty fair cigars.

The Liberman Mfg. Co. exhibited a suction bunch machine and board rolling suction tables which appeared to turn out pretty fair work.

There was an exhibit by Miller, Dubrue & Peters of a bunch machine which was supposed to produce twenty bunches a minute.

The Philippine government display of Manila cigars in class A, B, C had a good appearance, although not attracting many of the visitors.

About the only tobacco displays were by H. Duys & Co., Inc., and Cullman Bros. of Sumatra and Java, and it was mostly statistical, showing miniature displays of plantations of the Columbus in 1492 and Sir Walter Raleigh times.

There was a cigar exhibit by the Like America Co. of its famous brand, the R. U. On, which was quite a splendid exhibit. This factory is run as an organized shop in New York City and the proprietor is a member of the union.

The finest display of the whole show was the exhibit of the Carolina Royal Cigarettes, who had a wonderful display. This cigarette is manufactured by Bailey Bros., Inc., of Winston-Salem, N. C. This firm has an agreement with the Tobacco Workers' Int. Union and seems to be quite proud that they have a union label factory. They have signs prominently displayed in their exhibit of the union label and also a certificate of agreement with the union. When I got in conversation with some of the men in charge they seemed to be quite enthusiastic with the union label and are handing out literature to the visitors which tells of their agreement with the union. They have a very large space and seemed to be the most attractive and interesting to the visitors.

I was very much disappointed when entering this Tobacco Exposition to see so little of tobacco and cigars, which was hardly of interest or comment, and it appeared to me that it was a machine exposition and not a tobacco exposition. Nevertheless the machinery in our industry and the improved machinery coming into the industry should not be taken lightly and the Int. Union as well as the cigarmakers in general should realize the importance of this factor, and we ought to recognize and deal with these changes in our industry. Organization and legislation within our Int. Union dealing with this important change in our industry would be to the best interest of the cigarmakers.

Yours fraternally,
MAURICE SIMONS, Org.

Nov. 15, from G. A. Kerr, President, North Carolina Carpenters' Council: "We are well satisfied that the circular entitled the 'Bugle Call' did a great deal of good in this town alone. We surely do appreciate your advice. Every man elected in this district from senator down was favorable to labor."

Nov. 16, from J. M. O'Hanlon, Chairman, New York Federation of Labor, Legislative Committee: "Every account we receive from the districts of this state and from other states were that the non-partisan campaign of the A. Nov. 15, from R. S. Brennan, attorney for the Butcher Workmen: "No doubt you were elated over the outcome of the Nov. 7 election in the state of Kansas. If the republicans had won in Kansas the Kansas City Star and other leading publications which turned their columns over to the republican state committee during the campaign would now be conducting Gov. Allen toward the White House."

Nov. 27, from H. L. Franklin, Secretary-Treasurer, West Virginia State Federation of Labor: "What we were up against, and the complete VICTORY for every candidate endorsed, and the defeat of all who were opposed by the A. F. of L. on Nov. 7th this year was the big convincing fact that the A. F. of L. political policies were not a failure, and that the time was not ripe for a breaking away from them by the workers of West Virginia."

Utica, N. Y., Dec. 5, 1922.

To the Organized Workers:

The union label! The all powerful union label! The much neglected union label! Let's talk about it for a few minutes.

We got together on last election day and achieved a smashing victory. Why can't we get together on the union label just now? If we do the results will be heard around the world. The "open shopper" would be on his knees suing for mercy from organized labor, whom he has spurned since the armistice was signed, and the wreckage of which he expected to trample under his feet, and from which dream he is now awakening. Let's wake him up good so he will never harbor another hallucination of that nature by beginning a real union label campaign.

It will be easy enough to start such a campaign, and an effective one. If the officers of every union and central body will get busy and stay busy among their membership it won't be any time at all before the influence of the union label will be felt throughout their city. It won't do to make a spasmodic effort and then lay down ignominiously defeated. It will require hard work for a considerable length of time. Suppose you try it for a stated time—a year, say. You are bound to succeed. You can't help but interest your members. What they want is a leader—a strenuous, persistent leader. After success has crowned the efforts made by all hands manufacturers will be pleading for the privilege of using the union label with its consequent obligation. The condition of every wage worker will be improved and the ideal of a "saving wage" will have been achieved with no more trouble and cost than spending our money for union label products.

Be sure and get the women interested in your campaign. They spend most of the household money and will be terrors to the dealers in non-label products once they set their minds on buying only union labor products.

If merchants claim they cannot secure union label goods, write this office and we will forward to you a list of manufacturers making this manner of goods as compiled by the Union Label Trades Department of the A. F. of L.

There is no question about it, this branch of our work has been too long neglected. There is no sense or reason in the apathy so far displayed when we take into consideration the great benefit that would come to organized labor if the officers of the organizations would take the subject up as if they meant it. The membership will surely follow energetic and persistent leadership.

It is a fact that there has been enough talk and literature put forth in the past to have accomplished the purpose many years ago. The efforts of the earnest ones seems to have fallen on deaf ears.

Let us all get together and drive the non-label product out of the state or else decorate themselves with the label. It can be done by united effort. Will you kindly inform the undersigned what steps you have taken or what efforts you will make toward making all our lives worth more to us than they are now?

The work will be no easy task to begin with, but if persisted in will bear wonderful results.

With best wishes for success and hoping to hear from you that the campaign is well under way, I am

Fraternally yours,

EDWARD A. BATES,
Sec.-Treas., N. Y. S. F. of L.

LINCOLN AND HIS PRINCIPLES.

For Contemplation Upon the Anniversary of the Birth of the Great Emancipator, February 12.

The assertion "that all men are created equal" was of no practical use in effecting our separation from Great Britain; and it was placed in the Declaration not for that but for future use. Its authors meant it to be—as, thank God, it is now proving itself—a stumbling block to all those who in after-times might seek to turn a free people back into the hateful paths of despotism. They knew the proneness of prosperity to breed tyrants, and they meant, when such would reappear in this fair land and commence their vocation, they should find left for them at least one hard nut to crack.—(Speech at Springfield, Ill., June 26, 1857.)

The fight must go on. The cause of civil liberty must not be surrendered at the end of one or even one hundred defeats.—(Letter to H. Asbury, November 19, 1858.)

Think nothing of me; take no thought for the political fate of any man whomsoever, but come back to the truths that are in the Declaration of Independence. While pretending no difference to earthly honors, I do claim to be actuated in this contest by something higher than an anxiety for office. I charge you to drop every paltry and insignificant thought for any man's success. It is nothing; I am nothing; Judge Douglas is nothing. But do not destroy that immortal emblem of humanity—the Declaration of Independence.—(Speech at Bardstown, Ill., August 12, 1858.)

No man is good enough to govern another man without that other's consent. . . . Those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves, and under a just God cannot long retain it.—(Speech at Springfield, Ill., October 1, 1854.)

Allow all the governed an equal voice in the government; that and that only is self-government. . . . Finally, I insist that if there is anything that it is the duty of the whole people never to intrust to hands other than their own that thing is the preservation and perpetuity of their own liberties and institutions.—(Speech at Peoria, Ill., October 16, 1854.)

The strongest bond of human sympathy outside the family relation should be one uniting all working people of all nations, tongues, and kindreds.—(Reply to Committee of Workingmen's Association of New York, March 21, 1864.)

And inasmuch as most good things are produced by labor, it follows that all such things of right belong to those whose labor has produced them. But it has so happened, in all ages of the world, that some have labored and others have without labor, enjoyed a large proportion of the fruits. This is wrong and should not continue. To secure to each laborer the whole product of his labor, or as nearly as possible, is a worthy object of any good government.—(Complete Works, Vol. 1, p. 92.)

No men living are more worthy to be trusted than those who toil up from poverty; none less inclined to take or touch aught which they have not honestly earned. Let them beware of surrendering a political power which they already possess, and which, if surrendered, will surely be used to close the door of advancement against such as they, and to fix new disabilities and burdens upon them till all of liberty shall be lost.—(From annual message, December 3, 1861.)

You can better succeed with the ballot. . . . Let there be peace. Revolutionize through the ballot box, and restore the government once more to the affections and hearts of men by making it express, as it was intended to do, the highest spirit of justice and liberty.—(1855, advice to free toilers who talked of using force.—Herndon, p. 380.)

The candid citizen must confess that if the policy of the government upon vital questions affecting the whole people is to be irrevocably fixed by decisions of the Supreme Court, the instant they are made in ordinary litigation between parties in personal actions, the people will have ceased to be their own rulers, having to that extent practically resigned their government into the hands of that eminent tribunal.—(Inaugural Address, March 4, 1861.)

The people in these United States are the masters of both congresses and courts, not to overthrow the Constitution, but to overthrow the men who pervert the Constitution.—(Speech at Cincinnati, Ohio, September 17, 1859.)

The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.—(Address on the Gettysburg Battlefield, November 19, 1863.)

The union label is a weapon with which the trade union arms the fair employer and disarms the unfair employer.

The idea that compulsory arbitration laws encourage the organization of the workers amounts in fact to the paradox of organizing the workers for the primary object of destroying the very power that makes organization itself worth while.

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE TO THE THIRD CO-OPERATIVE CONGRESS.

By Its Committee on Promotion of Co-operation by Trade Unions and Unanimously Passed.

Every State Federation of Labor should have a Committee on the High Cost of Living and Co-operation. This committee should be composed of five or seven members. They should read the necessary literature to make them familiar with the history, principles and methods of the co-operative movement. The first job of this committee is to educate itself. When it has carried its education far enough it should next proceed to preach the gospel of co-operation to the members of the labor organizations of the state. It should be to this committee that the members of the unions look for advice and instruction. Before the members of a union start with the organization of a co-operative store or other enterprise, this committee should serve the useful purpose of protecting them from making false steps and from being taken in by spurious enterprises.

The State Federation of Labor should have a state co-operative adviser wherever possible. Under no circumstances should the state adviser be appointed until he has made himself thoroughly informed on not only the theory but the practical points of co-operation. He should be a man who not only has had co-operative experience, but who should have the confidence of the labor movement as well. His function should be to go among the existing co-operative societies, study their methods, watch their progress, and give them auditing, accounting, merchandising and educational advice necessary to guarantee success. This method is not experimental, but has been tried in several districts in the United States. The amount of money which such an adviser can save co-operative societies in checking up and standardizing their methods and in preventing them from putting their money into spurious schemes will pay his salary many times. When we realize that in western Pennsylvania the workers could have been saved $200,000 in two years by such an adviser, an equal amount in the Chicago district, and a similar amount on the Puget Sound district, we realize that such an adviser would be a highly profitable investment. In the face of the fact that the working people in the United States in the last three years have lost $15,000,000, not in honest co-operative mistakes, experiments, or inefficiency, but by putting their money in absolutely spurious and fraudulent enterprises masquerading as co-operative, we realize the possibilities and the need of a co-operative adviser for trade unions.

Such a trade union state adviser should function until a state co-operative league is formed to take over this service.

2.

Every State Federation of Labor should be in touch with the Co-operative League of the U. S. A., and should contribute to its support, in the interest of co-operative education, guidance and protection.

3.

Every State Federation of Labor should assist the existing co-operative societies in the state in the formation of a district co-operative league for the federation of these societies.

As the district league becomes effective and as more and more co-operative societies are organized to add to its strength, the district league should perform and take over the co-operative functions which had been performed by the trade unions prior to the existence of the district league.

By the above methods the trade unions take the initial steps to promote co-operation on a sound basis in districts which are without co-operative organization or in which co-operation is weak. This method has the advantage that it places the initiative of co-operation in the hands of the trade unions and makes it possible for a co-operative movement to develop in closer relation to the Trade Union Movement.

The Co-operative League should have a representative on the Committee on Co-operation of each State Federation of Labor. The selection of such representatives should be left to the league so that the co-operative societies would not only feel that they were being represented by someone they selected themselves for that purpose, but that they could make that representative responsible to the league.

All government—indeed, every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act—is founded and compromise and barter.—Edmund Burke.

The best regulated labor organization is that which most clearly distinguishes between the time for talk and the time for fight—which fights with all its power and when it quits, stays quit.

A trade union without the right and power to strike is an anomaly. A trade union, the chief use of which is to make a strike impossible, as under the compulsory arbitration system, is a crime against common sense.

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

G. W. PERKINS, President,

503 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, 318 W. 51st St., New York City, First Vice President.

I. M. ORNBURN, 288 York St., New Haven, Conn., Second Vice President.

MANUEL GONZALEZ, Box 396, Ybor City, Tampa, Fla., Fourth Vice President.

E. G. HALL, 4124 Bryant Ave., S., Minneapolis, Minn., Fifth Vice President.

CHAS. H. STEVENS, 350 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Sixth Vice President.

E. J. STACK, Labor Temple, Portland, Ore., Seventh Vice President.

GIBSON WEBER, 1710 N. Gratz St., Station C, Philadelphia, Pa., Treasurer.

Always refer to the Constitution when your interests are involved.

When a member changes from the 60c to the 40c list or retires absolutely, all previous cards should be returned to the International Union.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address.

Section 140g distinctly and plainly states: "No sick or out-of-work benefit shall be paid to members adjudged to be insane." All amounts so paid are illegal. No dues shall be collected from any insane member.

The International Union will not authorize payment of death benefit except in strict compliance with the law. Several cases have occurred in which there has been no will, no widow, no minor children and no dependent relatives, but other relatives have stepped in and demanded the death benefit. No such claims have been recognized for the payment of benefits authorized. The International Union furnishes the designation blanks free and where members refuse or neglect to fill out such designation blanks the responsibility for the non-payment of benefits rests entirely with such members.

Secretaries may use the numbers of deceased and suspended members for new members—except numbers belonging to those owing loan accounts.

In several instances where cards have been stolen from members secretaries had granted the thieves loans without demanding to see the due books showing their standing. No loans should be granted unless the party has both card and due book in proper condition.

Members out of work are not entitled to the sixteen weeks' privilege unless they notify the secretary weekly commencing before the eighth week. This includes traveling members, who should always carry a certificate and have same signed weekly.

In reporting the death of a member secretaries should send in with such reports the card of the member, if he had one, having previously, however, taken a record of all necessary information thereon for future reference.

Also as per section 145, give full record of membership, as far as your own records show. If there is a will on file send it to the International office. In order that you may fully understand the necessity for complying with the request carefully study section 141c of the Constitution. Remember that "verbal wills" do not comply with the requirements of the Constitution.

Section 140c of the Constitution first distinctly provides that members may designate the person or persons to whom the death benefit shall be paid. Secondly, it provides that if in such designation the death benefit shall be paid to the widow of such deceased member, if there is no widow, then to the minor children of such deceased member, and if there be no widow and no minor children of such deceased member, then to any relative of the deceased member who at the time of his death was dependent for support in whole or in part.

DECISIONS OF THE
INT. EXECUTIVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16, 1923.
In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., of Union No. 248 of Jacksonville, Florida, against a decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows—None.

Affirmative—None.
Negative—Ornburn, Kennedy, Gonzalez, Hall, Stevens, Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was, a member of the union was fined by the union for certain alleged offenses and his card annulled. He entered suit against the president of the union, which suit was dismissed. The union claims that the International Union should pay the expenses of this suit. The International President claimed that this was a local matter and would not agree to the financing of the case by the International. The union thereupon appealed to the International Executive Board against the decision of the International President. The union claims that since its president was sued and it was necessary for him to defend the suit, the International Union should pay the expenses thereof.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That the basis of the suit in question seemed to be a quarrel between the member expelled and other members of the union; that the International President had sent various organizers to Jacksonville in order to straighten out this matter; that instead of getting together, matters were so aggravated that it led to court action; that the International could not assume any responsibility for court expenses when the members had not exhausted all of the resources provided by the law of the International. A full perusal of this case shows that both sides were more or less at fault. Had the officers of the union taken the advice of either one of the International organizers no court action would have been necessary.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President was sustained.

FRaternally,
SAMUEL GOMPERS,
First Vice President.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

The amendment of Unions 87, 132, 149 and 292, Brooklyn, as published in the December Journal, as follows: "Amend Sections 205 and 206 of the Constitution as follows: Strike out the words 'Greater New York' and insert the word 'Manhattan.'"

Received the endorsement of Unions 44, St. Louis; 218, Binghamton, and 46, Grand Rapids.

Not having received the required number of endorsements it cannot be submitted to a vote of local unions.

The amendment of Union 132, Brooklyn, as published in the January issue, as follows: The first paragraph of Section 2 of the Constitution shall read: "The next convention of the Cigar-makers' International Union shall be held on the second Monday in August, 1923."

Received the endorsement of Unions 302, Tecumseh; 165, Philadelphia; 389, New York; 257, Lancaster; 97, Boston; 14, Chicago; 44, St. Louis; 404, Austin; 22, Detroit; 213, New York; 329, Fond du Lac; 470, Portland.

The amendment of 138, Newark, as published in the December Journal, as follows:

Amend Section 150 by striking out on lines 31, 32, 33, after the word "thousand," "no union shall be allowed to furnish the labels for cigars made in whole or in part by machinery."

Section as amended to read:

Sec. 150. Each local union shall furnish through the shop collectors or committeemen (as the case may be) to all strictly union shops, free of charge, as many of the labels as may be required from week to week for all cigars actually made by members of the union and persons holding retiring cards. All label orders shall be signed by the shop collector; the label order blanks shall be furnished by the International President at cost. No shop shall be considered a strictly union shop unless the packers of the shop are members of the International Union, and the apprentice law of the local union be complied with. Where the manufacturer deals in Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, it shall be optional with local unions to withhold the label from such firm. It shall be optional with local unions to grant the union label to any manufacturer or firm whose name or firm name appears in or about the box containing Chinese, tenement-house or non-union cigars, or whose name or firm name appears on or about such non-union cigars. All labels issued must bear the ink stamp. It shall be optional with local unions to paste them on the boxes. But in no case shall the union label be used in a factory in the United States or Canada which pays less than $9.00 per thousand for making or less than $1.00 for packing per thousand for mold work—5 molds of 20 bunches. Nor which pays less than $10.00 per thousand for hand work, less than 4 molds of 10 bunches each with press on table, or two 20-bunch molds in shaper press, to be considered hand work. Nor shall it be allowed on any cigars sold for less than $25.00 per thousand. This shall not prevent a local union from establishing a minimum bill of prices on small cigars four inches in length or less, and weighing not more than three pounds per thousand. Subject to the approval of the International President and International Executive Board. This shall not disbar local unions from establishing a price above $25.00 per thousand. It shall be optional with local unions to grant labels to members who are not employing any journeymen if they have been members for less than one year. This shall not apply to members suspended who were, prior to their suspension, members of the International Union for one year or longer, provided they be reinstated within six months after suspension.

But in no event shall a manufacturer be permitted to use the label who offers presents as an inducement for the sale of his goods, but this shall not be so construed as to prevent a manufacturer from issuing coupons to the consumer which may be redeemed in presents or otherwise.

All labels must be pasted upon the boxes before the boxes leave the factory.

Received the endorsement of Unions 218, Binghamton; 248, Jacksonville; 402, Quakertown; 247, Blue Island; 416, Norwalk; 132, Brooklyn; 149, Brooklyn; 61, LaCrosse; 37, Fort Wayne; 87, Brooklyn; 52, Elmira; 48, Toledo; 165, Philadelphia; 257, Lancaster; 14, Chicago; 17, Cleveland; 429, Niagara Falls; 46, Grand Rapids; 172, Davenport; 228, San Francisco; 23, Springfield; 126, Ephrata; 35, Dayton; 516, Wheeling; 357, Vancouver; 213, New York; 16, Binghamton; 162, Green Bay.

Having received the required number of endorsements it will be submitted to a vote of local unions.

Amendment by Union No. 90 of New York.

Strike out Section 61a-Special and insert the following:

SECTION 61a. NON-BENEFICIAL CLASS.

All persons engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted therein, may become members under the following plan:

1. $2.00 initiation fee, payable in 4 weekly installments of 50c each.
2. 30c weekly dues.
3. All International strike and label assessments.

4. All local assessments.

Members enrolled in this class will be entitled to the following:

1. The full strike assistance, same as the 60c paying members receive.
2. Out of work stamps.
3. Traveling loan not exceeding $10.00.

Members enrolled in this class shall have the privilege of paying the 60c weekly dues and all International assessments and be entitled to all benefits from the time of such transfer. (To illustrate, for sick, death and full traveling loan benefits they will be considered as new initiates.)

Members having paid 60c dues prior, or those who may pay 60c dues after the adoption of this provision, shall have the privilege to transfer to this non-beneficial class, they must sign waiver rights to all further benefits from the International Union (excepting those that this class entitles them.)

In all other respects the laws governing arrearages in dues, suspension from membership, limitation as to time in the payment of strike assistance, out of work stamps and traveling loan, and all other laws governing the 60c paying members shall apply to members enrolled in this class.

This amendment to go into effect upon adoption.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Amendments adopted since the latest edition of the Constitution:

In effect May 1, 1921.

Section 61a—Special.

All members engaged in the cigar industry enumerated in Section 61, with the exceptions noted herein, working in any factory not entitled to the use of the label, and which does not pay the regular established bill of prices may become members under the following conditions:

First—An initiation fee of $1.00, payable in four weekly installments of 25 cents each.

Second—Weekly dues for 30 cents for the first three months of membership, 40 cents for the second three months of membership, 50 cents for the third three months of membership, and regular dues of 60 cents after nine months of membership.

Third—Exemption from all assessments for the first four months of membership. After four months of membership such members shall pay one-half of all local and International assessments, except label assessments, except as hereafter provided.
